

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

INTRODUCTORY

EDWARD GIBBON somewhere wrote: "A lively desire of knowing and recording our ancestors so generally prevails, that it must depend on the influence of some common principle in the minds of men."

✓ Doubtless in many cases the feeling is similar to that which led Darius the Great to inscribe upon the rock of Behistun his proud boast: "From ancient time our family have been kings. I am the ninth king by lineal descent." But family pride is not the only reason for these records; historians quite generally elucidate their annals by genealogical tables, and scientists like Dr. Francis Galton testify to their utility in the study of heredity and of social science. A recent writer wisely declares that "the day has gone by when self-respecting men may boast of ignorance of those who bore their name before them."

On the other hand there is profound truth in the remark of a speaker at a recent banquet of the Society of Colonial Wars in New York City, that "the man who does not respect his ancestors is unlikely to do deeds for which posterity will respect him." It is therefore well that this society and others organized in late years to honour the memory of the men who fought the battles of the Revolution, or of their descendants who by their swords in the field or in other ways defended the supremacy of the Government then established, have greatly increased the interest in the whole subject of genealogy and family history, and given a stimulus to the compiling and printing of pedigrees. There is in this neither arrogance nor pride unfitting to the citizens of a republic. For, despite the sonorous periods of the Declaration of Independence, we do not need the teachings of modern science to convince us that men are not "born equal."

The inheritance of a good name and the memory of the noble deeds of our forefathers, or merely of their simple honesty and their self-respecting labour for daily bread, must have its influence on our lives. Noblesse oblige, if not misapplied, is a true principle, and one of special value to our American civilization, which is too apt to measure every thing by the yardstick of commerce, and to value a man by his present possession of material wealth, quite irrespective of his antecedents. These cannot be known unless they have been recorded in some permanent shape. Left to be handed down by tradition or popular report, they will soon be forgotten.

"Time," says Sir Thomas Browne in his Hydriotaphia, "which antiquates the erections of man's hands, hath yet an art to make dust of all things, and oblivion blindly scatters her poppy, and deals with the memory of men without any distinction to the merit of perpetuity. There is no antidote against the opium of Time! Our fathers find their graves in our short memories, and sadly tell us how we may be buried in those of our survivors. Even our gravestones tell truth scarcely forty years—generations pass while some trees stand, and old families last not three hardy oaks." How much then does it become us to guard against this "eating tooth of time," by recording in permanent form that which we know of the history and fortunes of our own families; each one, in the language of the Book of Nehemiah, "doing the work over against his own house."

The process is not so difficult as it seems at first sight, and there are few families but can trace their ancestry back to the emigrant progenitor if they set about it in the right way. One important preliminary, in most cases, is to put out of consideration the accepted family tradition; for, as the historian Freeman wrote in his entertaining essay on "Pedigrees and Pedigree-Making": "The family tree, the family tradition, the roll of Battle Abbey, are simply so many forms of sheer falsehood." Descents may be proven, but it must be by something very different from all these.

Public records and documents, wills which give the names of the testator's family and state their relationship, deeds which convey particular estates in land, church and court records, the entries in the family Bible so far as they state facts within the writer's personal knowledge, the names of parents, the births of children, etc., all are of value in compiling a genealogy.

The first step is to set down, as far as possible, all the known facts, with exact dates of births, marriages, deaths, and other noteworthy events, and then to follow out the traces pointing in one direction or another, until the evidence of records either confirms them and gives the investigator clues to a further extension of the genealogy, or directs attention to a fresh line of research. It would also be well to write to other members of the family and enlist as many as possible in the subject, that all branches may receive due attention and the genealogy be complete. If the ancestors of one individual merely are to be recorded, Mr. William H. Whitmore's ancestral tablets furnish a most convenient method and place of registration. A last recommendation, and one of great importance, is to print, in however inexpensive form, the result of your investigations, so that copies may be multiplied sufficiently to secure its permanent preservation ; and also to deposit it in more than one library, thereby giving students an opportunity to make use of your labours, for of all men the genealogist, who works for others, should be most generous in contributing his knowledge to the common stock. The history of few families of fair social position can be written without touching others at many points and often casting unexpected light upon the dark places in their pedigrees.

Each compiler of a genealogy must confess his deep obligation to those who have gone over the field before him, as well as to those who have responded to his direct requests for information. It would be impossible to name all to whom the author of this volume is indebted for assistance, but he would mention as deserving of especial gratitude, the late Messrs. Samuel Chew, of Germantown, Pennsylvania ; William G. Thomas, of Yonkers, New York, and his father, Philip E. Thomas, of Baltimore, the compiler of the first Thomas Tree ; Messrs. Beverly Chew and John C. Chew, of New York ; Dr. Francis Thomas, of Sandy Spring, Maryland, and others of his family ; Mr. Charles P. Keith, of Philadelphia, author of the "Provincial Councillors of Pennsylvania ;" Dr. A. R. Thomas, of the same city, author of "The Thomas Family of Hardwick, Massachusetts ;" Messrs. Charles W. Evans, of Buffalo, author of a "History of the Fox, Ellicott and Evans Families ;" John D. Crosfield, of Forest Hey, near Northwich, England ; Nicholas Brewer, genealogist, Annapolis, Maryland ; and notably the Librarians of the Historical Societies of Pennsylvania and Long Island, and Mr. John G. Gatchell, Assistant Librarian of the Maryland Historical Society.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

IN this book the attempt has been made to give the records of as many branches of the Thomas family as are accessible, and to furnish in the Appendix a brief biographical sketch of every notable person of the name not found in the genealogies. A number of allied families have also been included.

The genealogies, excepting those that give the book its title and are placed first, appear in alphabetical order. References to principal authorities are somewhat liberally made, and an adequate Index is added. Where exact dates confirm a statement, an accuracy may be assumed; in all other cases the effort has been made so to word the language that the weight of authority may be determined by the reader, and the author must not be held responsible for anything more than he distinctly says.

The genealogies are written, as far as possible, in historical form, proceeding directly down the line of descent. Where, however, the record of the issue of any one child would occupy so large a space as to confuse the reader, it is transferred below, and a new series begun. In all cases these are placed in the order of their dates, the record of the eldest son immediately following that of his parents, and each new line is completed before another is taken up. Surnames of children are not given, except in cases where they differ from the main line.

The generations upon a page are usually distinguished by different styles of type, according to a system easily understood.*

Everything has been done with a view to making the subject matter of the book clear to others besides professional genealogists, rather than technically and scientifically correct in form.

All dates before A.D. 1752 are Old Style, the year beginning on March 25; therefore dates between that day and the previous December are written as of both years, e.g., February 7, 1701, New Style, would appear as February 7, 1700-1. (It should be remembered that in Quaker phraseology March was known as First Month.) Great care has been taken in reducing such dates to a uniform system.

* In each paragraph the first generation is in this type: THOMAS m. MARTHA.

The second in this: JOSEPH m. GRACE DESHON.

The third in this: FRANCES m. GABRIEL SISTARE.

The fourth in this: Joseph m. Mary Christophers.

The fifth in this: Charles m. — Bassett.

SEAT OF SIR RINGS AP THOMAS

SIR RHYS AP THOMAS, K.G.

SIR RHYS AP THOMAS, K.G., in the reigns of Henry the Seventh and Henry the Eighth of England, according to the Welsh anti-quaries and historians, had an extant pedigree¹ going back to Adam ; but the historical part probably begins with Urien Rheged, a British prince, living, according to the best authorities,² in the sixth century after Christ. Possibly the links that connect him with Sir Rhys may not all be of equal certainty, but that the latter was descended from Urien is the uniform judgment of all writers upon Welsh history and genealogy. Urien is called the son of Cynvarch Oer ap Meirchion Gul, a prince of the North Britons in Cumbria, on the borders of the kingdom of Strath Clyde. Driven out by the invading Saxons in the sixth century of our era, Cynvarch took refuge in Wales and entered the ranks of the clergy, founding the church of Llangynvarch or S. Kinemark's, Maelor in Flintshire.³ His name is on the pillar of Eliseg near Llangollen. He m. Nevyn, daughter of Brychan, who likewise entered religion and founded the church of

S. Newyn, Caernarvonshire. By her he had issue :¹ Urien ; Eurddyl, his twin sister, who m. Elider of the numerous clan ; Aron, who was one of Arthur's "knights of counsel, so wise and prudent that no one could at any time defeat him ;" and Llew or Llewellyn, who m., according to the Romances, Anna, sister of King Arthur, and had two sons, Gwalchmai and Medrawd or Mordred, the traitor, one of the three royal knights, "whom neither king nor emperor could vanquish ; if they could not succeed by fair means, they would by foul and disgraceful ones." Gwalchmai, Walweyn, or Gawain, the other son, is by some authorities described as the son of Anna and a second husband, Gwyar. He is celebrated as one of the three golden-tongued knights, and such was their eloquence "that no one could refuse whatever they asked." Other Triads call him "one of the three most courteous men of Britain," and one of the "three scientific ones of the Isle, to whom there was nothing of which the elements were not known." William of Malmesbury states that in the year 1086 his tomb was discovered on the seashore of Rhos on Pembrokeshire, where there is a district called Walwen's castle.

Urien, the eldest son of Cynvarch, was a great patron of the bards, by whom he is called "brave as a lion and gentle as a maid." The Welsh Triads name him as one of "the three Bulls of Conflict" and "the three pillars of battle." In the Arthurian romances he appears as Sir Urience. All the authorities agree in representing Urien and his sons as strenuously opposing the Saxon advance, and fighting, Taliesin declares, as many as ten battles against Ida and Deoric of Northumbria.² His greatest exploit was the expulsion of the Goidels, Gwyddelians, or Irish Scots, from the territory lying between the Tawe and Tavy rivers, and comprising Gowerland, Cydweli, Iscenen, Carnwallon, and Cantrev Bychan, to which was given the name of his father's northern principality, Rheged. About 567 he was treacherously slain by Llovan Llawdivo, while besieging Ida's son Deoric in the island of "Medcant," possibly Lindisfarne. Llywarch Hen, one of the greatest of the bards and the son of his father's younger brother, Elider Lydanwyn, in a long elegy celebrates his prowess and bewails his death.³ The Welsh pedigrees marry him to Modron, dau. of Avallech, but the family history and other authorities¹ say he m. Morgaine Le Faye, of Castle "La Belle Regard," dau. of Gorlois, Duke or Lord of Cornwall, and Igerne, who bore King Arthur to Uther Pendragon through the device of Merlin. His children were Pasgen, of whom presently; Elwri, who m. Morgan Morganwdd; Rhun, or Rum,² who is said to have preached Christianity in Northumbria before the mission of Paulinus; Rhiwallon, Elphin, Garth, and Cadell, who died fighting against the Saxons; Morvydd, a dau., and Owaine or Ewaine, Knight of the Round Table,³ called by the Triads one of the "three blessed princes of Britain," also with Lancelot du Lac and Cadwr of Cornwall the "three knights of battle of Arthur's Court," because they would not retreat either for spear, for arrow, or for sword, and the King never had shame in battle the day he saw their faces there. He is said to have slain Ida of Northumbria, and himself been killed in battle by Ida's son Deoric, Flamdwyn or flame-bearer, as the bards call him. Taliesin the Bard laments his death in the following lines: ⁴

Cox, calls Urien Rheged a mythical divinity—lord of the evening and the dusk, the twilight realm of illusion and glamour—and identifies him with Bran the Blessed.

"The soul of Owain the son of Urien; may the Lord consider its need,
The Chief of Reged the heavy sward conceals him;
His knowledge was not shallow.
A low cell contains the renowned protector of bards.
The wings of dawn were the flowing of his lances,
For there will not be found a match for the chief of the glittering West;
The reaper of tenacious foes;
The offspring of his father and grandfather
When Flamdwyn killed Owain there was not one greater than he sleeping.
A wide number of Lloegr went to sleep with the light in their eyes."

Owain m. Dwynwen, dau. of Llewddyn Lueddag, of Dinas Eid-dyn (Edinburgh), and was the father of Cyndeyrn⁵ (S. Kentigern or Mungo), who is said to have been b. at Culross, in Perthshire, and arriving at manhood went to Cathures, now Glasgow, founded a monastery and was made Bishop there. The increasing power of the pagans caused him to go into Wales, where he settled in Flintshire and built a church on the site of what is now S. Asaph's, named from his disciple, whom he left in charge when he returned to the North. After the battle of Ardderyd, in 573, when Rhydderch Hael defeated the heathen party under Guendolen, Cyn-deyrn was recalled to Strathclyde and d. there in A.D. 603.

Some authorities derive Sir Rhys ap Thomas from Owain through S. Kentigern, but the family history and the Welsh annalists usually make Pasgen the eldest son of Urien, his ancestor. He succeeded his father in the principality of Rheged, but was deposed for his cruelty, his sister's husband, Morgan Morganwdd, being put in his place. The Triads called Pasgen one of the "three haughty chiefs of Britain." He had issue: Mor,¹ who became a saint, i.e., a Celtic monk, and is bu. at Enlli or Bardsey Island; Nidiaw,¹ also an anchorite; and Gwrwyn,¹ who founded a church in Anglesey and had a son, Nidan,² Confessor to the monastic community of Pennion, in Anglesey. Mor was the lineal ancestor of Rhys ap Goronwy, ap Einion, ap Lloarch, ap Kymbathweye, ap Gurwared, ap Syssilt, ap Rhyne, ap Llarch, ap Mor, ap Pasgen, of whom nothing more than their names¹ has descended to posterity. Rhys ap Goronwy m. Margaret, dau. and heir. of Griffin ap Kiddy, Lord of Gwynvey, and had a son, Elider ap Rhys, m. Gladwys, dau. of Philip ap Bah ap Gwathvoed. Gwathvoed was possibly the Gwathvoed Vawr who m. Morfyd, dau. and heir. of Ynys Ddu, King of Gwent, and refused to be one of the subject princes who rowed King Edgar, the Saxon, in his boat upon the River Dee, in 973, bidding the King in reply to his threats, rather "ofner na ofni angau"—"fear him who fears not death." Another Gwathvoed lived a century later and was Prince of Ceredigion and Lord of Cilwyr. Some say Gladwys who m. Elider ap Rhys was his descendant; Philip ap Bah, Lord of Esginbrath, being his grandson. Elider and Gladwys had a son, Sir Elidur Ddu, Knight of the Holy Sepulchre, who m. Cecily, dau. of Syssilt ap Llewelyn, Lord of Cantrescliffe, and had issue: Katherine, m. David Morthye, Lord of Odyn Castle and Fountain Gate; and Philip, m. Gladys, dau. of David Vras, and was the father of Philip, who had issue: Crisley, m. Richard Aubrey; Gwylliam (ancestor of Captain John Vonderhorst Rees, of Killymaenllwyd, J. P., in 1872); and Nicholas his eldest son, who m. Janet, dau. and heir. of Gruffyd ap Llewelyn Voethes, descended from Elystan Gloddryd, Prince of Ferlys, sometimes called Ethelystan. He was a godson of King Athelstane, of England, and son of Cuhelyn ap Ivor, Lord of Builth, descended in the seventh generation from Teon, Bishop of Gloucester, who had Cassibelaunus as his ancestor. Elystan was Lord of Caermarthen and Prince of Ferlys between the Wye and Severn rivers, m. Gladys, dau. of Rhun ap Ednowen, or Gwennlian, dau. of Einion ap Howel Dda, and d. about the year 1000, founding one of the Royal tribes of Wales.

Nicholas ap Philip and Janet ap Gruffyd had an only son and heir, Gruffyd ap Nicholas, who was a remarkable and most ingenious gentleman. The possessor of an ample fortune and allied by marriage with some of the principal families both in North and South Wales, his power and influence in Caermarthenshire were very great. He appears to have had property in Caermarthen town, for his mother d. there, and was bu. at Whitland.

His hasty spirit and violence of temper often involved him in complications with his neighbours, from which it required the exercise of all his ingenuity to extricate himself. He even incurred the enmity of no less a personage than Richard, Duke of York, by withholding from him a piece of land in Herefordshire, and he insolently and peremptorily refused to obey the summons of the Sheriff to answer for his conduct. At the head of a numerous and warlike clan, which was strongly attached to him, he gave shelter and encouragement to innumerable Welsh thieves, who were in the constant habit of plundering and ravaging the English border. The frequency and severity of these predatory incursions raised against him a host of enemies, the most powerful of whom, Humphrey, Duke of Buckingham, Richard of York, Jasper Tudor, Earl of Pembroke, and the Earl of Warwick, made such representations to the King, Henry VI., accusing him of being an encourager and harbourer of thieves, that he was deprived of the Commission of the Peace and Captaincy of Kilgarran Castle, which that sovereign had granted him. It is alleged that his hatred of the English was Gruffyd's reason for harbouring those who ravaged their territory. A Commission was finally appointed by the King in 1441 to arrest the accused and investigate the charges against him, at the head of which was placed Lord Whitney.¹ Gruffyd, who had heard of the Commission, but was not informed of its precise object, laid his plans with the craftiness and executed them with the boldness peculiar to his character. He met the Commissioners on their entry into Caermarthenshire, himself meanly dressed, and accompanied only by four or five attendants raggedly attired, and as miserably mounted. Right glad was Lord Whitney to find the truculent Welshman apparently in his power, and he was not a little astonished also to hear him offer his services to guide him to Caermarthen, the place of his destination. Their road followed the windings of the Bran to where that river unites with the Gwydderig in its confluence with the Towey. On the western bank, on a rocky eminence, was Gruffyd's Castle of Abermarlais, hidden from the Commissioners by the thick woods which lined the shores of the river. A graceful curve of the road, however, brought them to the foot of the gentle eminence on which the castle stood, and then Gruffyd, turning to the surprised Commissioners and pointing to the open postern, invited them, with a smile, to enter and refresh themselves. They were received with demonstrations of extreme respect by Gruffyd's son Thomas, at the head of one hundred horsemen handsomely dressed and gallantly mounted, and began to open their eyes to the real power and consequence of their companion. After having well refreshed themselves, the whole party, including Thomas ap Gruffyd and his armed retinue, left the castle. A little farther on their way they came to the ancient fortress of Dinevawr, not far from the town of Llandeilo Fawr, then the stronghold of Owen, Gruffyd's son. He received them at the head of a chosen body of two hundred armed horsemen, and played the part of host with such address that he contrived to draw from his guests the secret of their commission. The whole party then proceeded on their way, leaving the mountains for the plain where the Towey meets the Gwili, at the little village of Abergwili. Here they were met by a splendid body of five hundred "tall men" on foot, well armed and accoutred, and led by Gruffyd's eldest son. Thus magnificently attended the Commissioners entered Caermarthen, then the capital of South Wales. Gruffyd now excused himself from attendance on the Commissioners and committed to his sons the care of entertaining them at the banquet prepared in their honour at the Guild Hall. Lord Whitney privately sent for the Mayor, Stephen Griffith, and the Sheriff, and showing his commission, demanded their assistance to arrest Gruffyd, which it was determined should be done on the following morning.

The banquet was now prepared, and the Commissioners were escorted to it with much pomp by the sons of Gruffyd. The tables had been arranged along the centre of the floor, and according to the architecture of the time a row of pillars separated the upper end of the room, which was slightly elevated, from that part which was assigned to the less distinguished members of the assembly. Lord Whitney was conducted to a seat on the dais, splendidly hung with cloth of gold, and Owen placed himself upon his right hand. On either side of this elevated dais galleries had been raised, in which were placed the bards of that land of minstrelsy. The guests betook themselves with right good-will to the noble cheer provided, and Owen in particular plied them with Ypocras, Garhiofilac, and other delicate and precious drinks, which soon produced the desired effect upon the Commissioners. Lord Whitney after his conference with the authorities, and exhibiting to them his commission, carelessly placed it in his sleeve, which was made very wide after the fashion of the time, and often used for such purposes. During the revel, Owen abstracted it from its hiding-place, while Lord Whitney was in such a state of mental obscurity from the strong potations that had been pressed upon him, that he not only did not notice its loss at the time but retired to bed without doing so. Owen communicated to his father the success of their plans, but Gruffyd abated nothing of his formal courtesy to the Commissioners, and the next morning presented himself before them in the Guild Hall, splendidly dressed and attended by his sons and armed retainers. He was immediately arrested by the officers of the Court, to whom he made no resistance, but with an air of great humility requested that the proceedings against him might be conducted according to law, and asked to see their commission. Lord Whitney readily assented to his request, but upon putting his hand into his sleeve and finding the warrant gone, his consternation may be easily imagined. "Methinks Lord Whitney," said Gruffyd, "if he comes here, as he says, by the King's grace, must have valued his commission too highly to have committed it to the safe-keeping of that ruffle or carelessly to have lost it." Then dropping his assumed deference, clapping his hat upon his head, and turning to his friends and followers, he exclaimed: "What! have we cozeners and cheaters come hither to abuse the King's Majesty's power and to disquiet his true-hearted subjects?" Then looking on the Commissioners with a bitter frown, he said, "By the mass, before the next day come to an end, I will hang up all your bodies for traitors and impostors." The Commissioners were panic-stricken, and entreated for their lives; which Gruffyd at last granted on condition that Lord Whitney should put on his livery coat of blue and wear his cognizance, and be bound by an oath to go to the King so arrayed, acknowledge his own offences, and justify the Welshman's proceedings.

In 1451 a great eistedfodd was held at Caermarthen under the patronage of Gruffyd ap Nicholas, at which the rules of the Welsh metres Dosbarth Caerfyrddin were determined. Gruffyd continuing his depredations upon the Lords Marchers was at length found guilty of felony on an indictment preferred against him in the Co. of Salop. This decision at once illumined his mind as to the rival claims of the Houses of York and Lancaster. A Lancastrian King had adjudged him a felon, the Duke of York was therefore of necessity the champion of a good cause and him he would support. He joined Edward of March, the Duke's son, at Gloucester, with eight hundred men well armed and provisioned, and marched with him to Mortimer's Cross, in Herefordshire. Here on February 2, 1461, a battle was fought between the Yorkists and the Lancastrians under Jasper, Earl of Pembroke, in which Gruffyd was mortally wounded, surviving only long enough to know that his friends were victorious.

GRUFFYD AP NICHOLAS, m. 1st, Mabel, dau. of Meredith ap Henry Donne, of Kidwelly Castle, by whom he had a son and heir, Thomas; he m. 2d, a dau. of Sir John Perrott of Pembroke, by whom he had a dau. Maud, m. Sir John Scudamore, of Kentchurch, q. v., and 3d, Joan, dau. and co-h. of Jenken ap Rees ap David of Gilvach Wen, by whom he had Mabel, m. Philip Mansel. He also had younger sons Owen, m. Olive, heiress of Henry Maliphant of Upton Castle, Pembroke, whose line ended in heiresses in 1760, and Thomas, junior. He was succeeded by his son Thomas ap Gruffyd, who is described as a man of a character very different from his turbulent father, and one of the most accomplished gentlemen of the age, with a mildness of disposition and elegance of manners rarely found in those cruel times of civil warfare. To avoid taking part in the contests of the rival houses of York and Lancaster he withdrew to the accomplished Court of Burgundy, then ruled over by Philip the Good, in whose service he enrolled himself. There he became famous for his boldness and skill in the tilt and tourney, and in single combat. After the death of his first wife, Elizabeth Griffith, his gallantry and gracious disposition are said to have won the affections of a near relative of the Duke, and Thomas, having probably offended by his presumption the Duke's heir, the Count of Charolois (afterward so well known as Charles the Bold) was compelled to return to Wales. There he had constant encounters with his neighbours, particularly Henry ap Gwilym of Court Henry in the Vale of Towey, between whose family and his there seems to have existed an ancient feud. His last duel took place some time toward the end of Henry the Sixth's reign, or the beginning of that of Edward the Fourth, when he fought with David Gough somewhere in Merionethshire and killed him. Having laid aside his armour and thrown himself upon the ground to rest after the combat, he was treacherously run through the body and killed by one of Gough's retainers. He was buried in the Abbey of Bardsey, Caernarvonshire.

He was m. to Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Sir John Griffith of Abermarlais, and possibly ¹ to another Elizabeth, dau. of James de Burgoigne, natural son of Philip, Duke of Burgundy, or herself a natural dau. of the Duke; from her descended the great clan of Johnes of Abermarlais, Dolau Cothy, Llanbadarnfawr, and Hafod. It has given ten high sheriffs to Cardigan, Caermarthen, and Pembroke; numbered among its members Thomas Johnes, the translator of Froissart, and was represented by John Johnes, Esq., of Dolau Cothy, J. P. and D. L. for Caermarthen in 1872. By his first wife Thomas ap Gruffyd had issue:

- i. MORGAN, killed in the Civil Wars.
- ii. DAVID, killed in the Civil Wars.
- iii. A dau., m. GRIFFITH AP HOWELL, issue.
JAMES AP GRIFFITH (q. v.).
- iv. MARGARET, m. SIR RICHARD HERBERT, of Coldbrook (q. v.).
- v. RHYS or REES, his heir, of whom presently.
- vi. Another dau., m. JOHN, 4th son of WILLIAM HERBERT, Earl of Pembroke (q. v.).
- vii. DAVID 2d.
- viii. JOHN.
- ix. Possibly a second MARGARET, m. JOHN HERLE, of Brecknock.

Thomas ap Gruffydd's two elder sons, Morgan and David, became, immediately on their father's decease, warm partizans, on opposite sides, of the houses of York and Lancaster. When Jasper, Earl of Pembroke, after the overthrow of Queen Margaret at Tewkesbury, retired to Pembroke, accompanied by his nephew, Henry, Earl of Richmond, Morgan ap Thomas invested the castle, in order to prevent their escaping out of the country. Upon this David ap Thomas hastily collected together about two thousand men, armed any way, fell on the besiegers by surprise, obliged them to retire, and gave the Earl and his young charge an opportunity to escape to Tenby, whence they immediately sailed to Brittany. This is nearly all that is recorded of these two brothers. But both are said to have lost their lives in the Wars of the Roses.

RHYS AP THOMAS, his favorite son and eventual heir, was b. in 1449, and was educated at the Court of Burgundy, where he held a post of honour in the Duke's household. This he relinquished to accompany his father on his banishment to Wales. His bravery was so noted that after his death one of the Welsh bards lamented that a "drum had not been covered with his skin; the sound of which alone," he assures us, "would have always ensured the victory to the British." He seems to have been as wise and politic as brave. He put an end to the long-established feud between his own family and that of Court Henry by marrying Eva, the only dau. and heiress of Henry ap Gwilym, the head of that house. By this marriage he added to his possessions a property not much inferior to his original patrimony, and became one of the most opulent subjects of the realm.

The anonymous author of his life, exalting the family of his hero, quotes Mr. Camden, the Herald, as saying "that they were the best born gentlemen in Wales, and furthest spread in their branches of any family in England, being allied with the Houses of Northfolk, Worcester, Pembroke, Bullinbrooke, and Barkley."

His establishment and hospitality were in every respect suitable to his immense wealth, and indeed displayed the magnificence of a prince, rather than of a private gentleman. He acquired unbounded popularity, and by degrees very formidable power, by re-establishing the games of his country on his estates, and by training the young men to the use of arms, under the guise of sham fights and spectacles. It is stated that he had nineteen hundred tenants bound by their leases to attend him at the shortest call, and that brief warning having been given, he could bring into the field five thousand disciplined men, mounted and armed. He was a great builder and enlarger of castles, built New Castle Emlyn, and greatly added to Carew Castle, which came into his possession by a forfeited mortgage from Sir Edmund Carew, erecting the magnificent state apartments there and making it his favourite residence. He was proprietor of the Lordships of Dinefawr, Carew, Llansadyrn, Cilsane, Emlyn, Cilcenin, Aberayron, Llanrystyd, Narberth, Llangybi, and several others, as records an old list of his possessions. Fuller writes of him, "though never more than a knight, he was little less than a prince in his native country." Ocland called him "Flos Cambro Britannicum," and a poet of those days wrote :

" Y Brenin bia'r Ynys Ond sy o ran i Syr Rhys."

"The King owns the island except what pertains to Sir Rhys." Every effort was made to interest him in the cause of Henry of Richmond, with whom he was connected in blood by their common descent from Rhys ap Tewdwr of the Royal House of South Wales.¹

By the Earl of Richmond, Rhys ap Thomas's assistance was regarded as of great consequence ; especially as Milford Haven was the safest, if not the only place at which the Earl could land, and here Rhys was completely master ; his friendship was therefore most essential, and consequently a reconciliation was effected between him and the Duke of Buckingham. Enmity having existed between the families since the time of Gruffydd ap Nicholas, at about this period Buckingham had sent Rhys a message to say that unless he gave him satisfaction for a certain injury he would come shortly and cudgel him out of his castle of Caermarthen. Rhys coolly answered that the roads being hilly and rough, his highness might spare himself the trouble of the journey, for he intended waiting upon him shortly at Brecknock, to receive his commands.

The mission from the Lancastrians to Rhys was entrusted to Dr. Lewis, a former tutor of Rhys and now physician to the Countess of Richmond. Dr. Lewis found Rhys at Abermarlais, preparing for the expedition to Breconshire, and succeeded in obtaining Rhys's consent to make up his difference with Buckingham. Rhys and Buckingham, soon after this, met at Trecastle, where they agreed to bury all past animosities in oblivion ; but Rhys's views on the main question—Red or White Rose—were not then ascertained. Richard being apprised that a plot was hatching, demanded distinct assurances and hostages from those whose fidelity he doubted. Among others, Commissioners were sent to Rhys ap Thomas at Caermarthen, to administer to him the oaths of fidelity and to require his only son, Gruffydd, five years of age, as an hostage. Rhys took the oath without hesitation, but wrote a letter to the King, praying to be excused from parting with his son, on account of his tender age. He expressed indignation at the suspicion of his loyalty, observing that such suspicion might read to some of fickle minds and unstable thoughts, evil lessons against themselves. He made, however, the following voluntary protestation : "Whoever, ill-affected to the State, shall dare to land in those parts of Wales where I have any employments under your Majesty, must resolve with himself to make his entrance and irruption over my bellie." The general opinion is that Rhys was perfectly sincere in his declarations in this celebrated letter, "which is a very able composition," drawn up by the Abbot of Talley, a zealous—though, to Rhys, concealed—Lancastrian. It is filled with such expressions of loyalty as were likely to satisfy Richard, but, at the same time, couched in such equivocal terms as might leave Rhys (under the guidance of his spiritual counsellors, the Abbot of Talley and the Bishop of S. David's) at liberty to break with the King, with what he might deem a safe conscience, should he afterward see cause to do so. Finally, becoming offended at the King's suspicions and moved by a letter from Richmond, in which it was stated that all his fortunes hung on Rhys ap Thomas's decision, the chieftain called a council of his most trusty friends to consider the question. At this were present the Abbot of Talley, the Bishop of S. David's, several of the more influential gentry, and two of his father's veteran officers in whom he had great confidence. They advised his aiding Henry, and when he spoke of his oath, the Churchmen silenced his scruples and one of them proposed a method by which he might keep its letter while evading its spirit. Still he hesitated, and it was not until he had consulted his soothsayer or prophet that he sent a messenger to Henry assuring him of his assistance. This prophet, by name Robert of the Dale, answered his first inquiry as to the success of the enterprise quite plainly :

“ Full well I wend
That is the end ;
Richmond, sprung from British race,
From out this land the Boar shall chase.”

But Sir Rhys was not satisfied. Richmond might indeed win the crown and dispossess the Boar of Gloucester, but unless he did this by the help of the Knight of Carew and entered Britain over his territory, what opportunity would there be for his action and what hope of reward ? So by the threat of death he forced the prophet, after a day's delay, in order to learn the will of Heaven, to declare the future more exactly, which he did in the following verse :

“ Hie thee to the dale. I'll to the vale
To drink gude ale and soe I pre have a care of us all,”

which was understood to mean that Richmond would land at Dale in Milford Haven, and being successful, the lives and fortunes of the people were to be the care of Sir Rhys.

This being deemed sufficient encouragement, the knight consented to join the conspiracy on condition that he be made Justiciary of Wales. Henry immediately set sail for England and directed his course for Milford Haven, where he was met upon landing by Rhys ap Thomas at the head of two thousand picked men. It is said that he carried out the suggestion of the Bishop of S. David's by crouching under one of the arches of a bridge over which the Earl rode, thus “ passing over his bellie.” Henry appointed Shrewsbury as the place of rendezvous for his friends and divided his army into two bodies, one of which he led himself by way of Cardiganshire and the other he committed to Rhys ap Thomas. On the march the chieftain's army was augmented by vast numbers of the Welsh, from whom he made a selection of two thousand horse, the flower of his attendants, and five hundred foot, dismissing the rest to their homes. The infantry he placed under the command of his younger brothers, David and John, and left in the principality to secure it for Henry. The horse he led himself to Long Mountain, on the borders of Shropshire, and there joined the Earl.

King Richard, though taken by surprise, rose to the occasion, and hastily gathering an army, marched to meet them. The hostile forces came in sight of each other on the field of Bosworth, near Leicester, August 22, 1485. The events of the battle are familiar and need not be described here.

Richard, toward its end, made a desperate plunge at the Earl of Richmond; he killed with his own hands the Earl's standard-bearer, Sir William Brandon, and dismounted Sir John Cheyney and many a high-born gentleman who attempted to stay him in his career. He had nearly reached the spot where Henry stood, when Rhys ap Thomas perceived the Earl's danger, and mounting his favourite charger, "Llwyd y Bacse," or Grey Fetterlocks, with Sir William Stanley bore down between. The Welsh tradition asserts that it was Rhys who slew King Richard, fighting with him hand to hand. Whatever may be the foundation for this story, his conduct on that day was so distinguished that Richmond ascribed to it the issue of the battle and in gratitude ever after applied to him the title of "Father Rhys." He also knighted him on the field after the victory. The spoils of King Richard's tent were shared by Rhys and Sir William Stanley. Other honours were subsequently heaped upon him by the grateful monarch when established on the throne. He was appointed a member of the King's Council, and it is said that he declined the Earldom of Pembroke or Essex, alleging that knighthood was the greatest honour that could be conferred on a soldier. November 3, 1485, he received a grant for life of the offices of Constable, Lieutenant, and Steward of Brecknock. November 6th, of the same year, he was appointed Chamberlain of Caermarthen and Cardigan and Steward of the Lordship of Builth. February 26, 1485-1486, he was appointed one of the Commissioners of the King's Mines. Loaded with these marks of the King's gratitude and friendship, Sir Rhys was sent to South Wales to heal the disorders which had arisen from the distracted state of the supreme government, and to restore the authority of the laws, a task which he appears to have executed with great judgment and success. Sir Rhys's next appearance on the public theatre was during the attempt of Lambert Simnel to impose himself on the country as the young Duke of York. Simnel brought to the field a considerable force of Irish recruits, and encamped at Stoke. Henry, wishing to crush the plot in its infancy, marched against him with the utmost expedition. As Sir Rhys had not time to collect his Welsh followers, the King gave him a troop of English horse. The eager valour of our hero had nearly cost him his life in this engagement, June 16, 1487; for, being imperceptibly drawn forward from his men, in an encounter with one of the Irish commanders he was suddenly beset by several of the enemy, and only escaped destruction by the timely succour of the Earl of Shrewsbury. Henry, hearing of his narrow escape, addressed him jocularly, "How now, Father Rhys? how likest thou of the entertainment here? Whether is better, eating leeks in Wales or shamrock among the Irish?" "Both certainly, but coarse fare," replied Rhys; "yet either would seem a feast with such a companion," pointing to the Earl who had rescued him.

In 1492 he accompanied Henry in his French expedition, and the military appearance and handsome equipment of the soldiers of "Richard Thomas," as he calls him, is spoken of by Bacon in his "History of the Reign of Henry VII."

August 6, 1494, "Res ap Thom's Knyghte" executes a deed to his (step) son, Edward Stradlyng, on the latter's coming of age, and seals it with a square seal bearing a raven between two flowering plants, over the Raven the letter R.¹

June 22, 1497, with fifteen hundred horse, he was at the battle of Blackheath, fought between the King's forces and the revolted Cornishmen under Lord Audley, and after a fierce conflict took the latter prisoner, and totally defeated his followers. The leaders in the revolt were immediately executed, but the bulk of the insurgents returned home and shortly afterward joined Perkin Warbeck, when he landed on their coast at the head of an Irish army. Failing to take Exeter at the first attack his courage left him, and taking sanctuary at Beaulieu Abbey he finally surrendered himself to Henry, and, it is said, afterward attempting to escape from confinement, was executed. April 22, 1505, Sir Rhys was elected a Knight Companion of the most noble Order of the Garter, and occupied the twelfth stall of the sovereign's side in S. George's Chapel, Windsor, where his Garter plate still remains.² The motto, "Secret et Hardi," and his badge of a raven, is a boss in the vaulting of the choir.³ He was frequently employed by King Henry in negotiations on the Continent, and the records of the Garter show that he was excused from attendance at several Chapters of the Order "as being absent on the King's business." In 1507 he gave a tournament at Carew Castle in honour of his admission to the Order, which "The Beauties of England and Wales," 1812, describes as "the most magnificent spectacle that was ever perhaps exhibited by a private individual at his own charge."

Sir Rhys having announced his intention of holding this solemn joust and tournament, with other martial exercises, the gentry of the different counties of the Principality, to the number of five or six hundred, exclusive of their attendants, assembled.¹ Every necessary accommodation was made for their entertainment. "Tentes and pavilions were pitched in the parke, near to the castle, wheare they quartered all the time, everie man according to his qualitie, the place being furnished aforehand with all sortes of provisions for that purpose. This festival and time of jollitie continued the space of five days," beginning on the day before S. George's Eve (April 21st), when Sir Rhys viewed the company and selected five hundred of "the properest and tallest men of their hands from amongst them." These he divided into five bands under captains. The second day was spent in exercising these chosen troops in all points, as if they were to go on service. The third day the drums beat, the trumpets sounded, and the martial host, armed at all points, as in battle array, proceeded to Lanphey, the palace of the Bishop of S. David's, about a mile from Carew Castle. At their coming thither they bade good morrow to the Bishop, in the language of soldiers, with arquebuses, muskets, and calivers, and then dividing themselves made a lane for Sir Rhys to pass to the gate. After a parley with the Bishop's officer, in which the Knight assured him that although in arms on S. George's Day in honour of the Martial Saint, his errand was peaceful, to pray for the rest and peace of S. George's soul, in which he would have the Bishop's assistance. Sir Rhys then arrayed himself in "S. George his livery," and the Bishop coming forth with the Abbot of Talley and the Prior of Caermarthen, all vested in rich copes, they proceeded to the chapel and the Bishop sang a mass; whereupon the whole party returned to Carew. After a dumb show of serving the (absent) King at a high table with all due ceremony, a rich feast was served to all present, Sir Griffith Rhys, as having more courtly accomplishments than the other youth, acting as Server. separating for the night, Sir William Herbert stepped forth before the company and challenged all comers, four to four, at jousts and tournament the next morning. This was instantly accepted and Sir Rhys appointed judge. Arrayed in fair gilt armour, two pages on horseback before him, a herald and two trumpeters and four footmen in attendance, while two hundred tall men in blue coats went before and after, he presided at the lists. After gallant deeds performed, and sundry tilts run and the tourney fought, supper was served, and so ended the fourth day of the festival ; Sir Griffith ap Rhys having made challenge to Sir William Herbert to tilt with him, four to four, in the ring next morning, the losers to pay for a supper at Caermarthen "for theyre farewell at parting." The next morning they ran their six courses, and as had been agreed between them, "Sir Rhys gave sentence against his son, that he might show his friends what entertainment the place was able to afford." After a dinner, as formal as before, Sir Rhys gave a hunting party in his park, where they killed divers bucks, bestowed upon them for their supper at night. That feast over, a comedy was acted by some of Sir Rhys's own servants, with which, says the annalist, "these majesticall sights and triumphs were concluded." He thinks it noteworthy, that for the space of five days, among not less than one thousand people, "there was not one quarrel, cross word, or unkind look that happened among them."

November 7, 1509, Sir Rhys was appointed Justiciary for South Wales. May 12, 1510, he was made Chamberlain of the same District. In a list of the Vanguard retinue of Henry in his French expedition, dated May 15, 1513, appears Sir Ryce ap Thomas with captains and petty captains, foot-soldiers, demi-lances, in all 2,993. The MSS. diary of John Taylor, Clerk of Parliament, under June 25th, of the same year, says : "The French fled before Sir Rice ap Thomas ;" June 29th, "Sir Rice recaptured one of the King's great guns which had been taken by the French." At the battle of Guinegate or Spurs he took four French standards, and was instrumental in the capture of the Duke of Longueville. August 22d, he was present at the siege of Therouenne, and September 9th at that of Tournay. June 4, 1515, there is recorded a confirmation and quit-claim from the King to "Sir Rhesus ap Thomas son and heir of Thomas son and heir of Griffin Nicholas, of the Castle and Lordship of Trayne March, and third part of the Ville of St. Clair in Caermarthen." May 16, 1517, he was granted the offices of Steward and Chancellor, in survivorship with his son, Sir Griffith, of Haverford West and Rowse in the Marches of Wales. July 5th, of the same year, he was one of the witnesses to a treaty executed between Henry, Maximilian, and Charles. In a list of the persons who should accompany the King to the Field of the Cloth of Gold, drawn up March 12, 1518-19, Sir Rhys was one of the four Knights of the Order, i.e., the Garter, who were to go, each having 22 servants, 2 to be chaplains, and 2 gentlemen, with 48 horses. In 1520, Henry, writing to Thomas, Earl of Surrey, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, says that he has "written to our trusty and right welbelovéd Sir Rice ap Thomas to putt the nomber of fifte horsemen of Walys in arredinesse for the Irish wars." May 27, 1522, he was appointed to attend the King at the visit of Charles the Fifth,¹ the first Knight on the list. He was Mayor of Caermarthen in 1488, 1494, and 1500. The exact date of his death I have not been able to ascertain, but it is on record that February 2, 1524-5, he made his will, and died that year, the will being probated July 5, 1525. (Appendix II.) He was buried in the Church of the Grey Friars at Caermarthen; but his body was afterwards removed to the eastern aisle of S. Peter's Church, in the same town, where his monument, a sculptured marble block, surmounted by recumbent figures of Sir Rhys and his wife, Elizabeth Herbert, is the most remarkable which the church contains.² After remaining for three hundred years, unskillfully put together in the northeast corner of the chancel, this monument was, in September and October, 1865, restored to its original form and removed to a position under the arch between the chancel and the consistory court, by the fourth Lord Dynevor. The effigy of Sir Rhys and the slab on which it lies consists of one piece of the stone called clunch, 10 feet long by about 3 feet wide and 2 feet thick. The Knight is lying in the attitude of prayer, clothed in mail and chain armour, armorial bearings on the breast, with the cloak and collar of the Garter, head resting on a pillow, shield, helmet, and lambrequin; his hair is flowing in ringlets over his shoulders; the crest is broken off just above the wreath. The pillow, etc., is curiously supported by the Dragon of Wales, lying on its back clasping the shield, its head issuing out of the wreath. At each top corner of the slab the arms are repeated. The feet rest against a couchant lion with his head twisted back. The figure of Lady Rhys is of small size, in the act of prayer, cap almost square, a necklace, a tucker above her gown, which is short, showing the petticoat beneath;

Sir Rhys is also said to have married Jenet, dau. of Thomas Matthews, whose rights are reserved in the attainder of Rice Griffith,³ and the dau. and heiress of Sir John Ellis descended from Sir Henry Elys, of Yorkshire, temp. Richard I.⁴ He had illegitimate issue : by Elizabeth, dau. of John Mortimer, Lord of Coedmor, near Cardigan, a dau. Jane; by Alice Kyffin, of Montgomeryshire, he had a dau. d. y.; and by a dau. of Howell ap Jenkin of Ynys y Maen-Gwyn, he had his favourite dau., Anne or Catherine, m. Henry Wirrion, Esq., of Orielson, High Sheriff of Pembrokeshire, 1547, whose heiress m. Sir Hugh Owen, of Bedowen, in Anglesea, ancestor of the Owens of Orielson, whose line ended in Sir Hugh Owen, Bart., Sheriff 1804, d. u., 1809.

In the eye of the English law, Sir Rhys would appear to have had only one legitimate son, Sir Griffith ap Rhys, whose son was his heir, but in Wales it must have been otherwise, judging from the position and marriages of his other children.

As Mr. G. T. Clark, in his "Genealogies of Morgan and Glamorgan," notes: "The Welsh squires of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries paid but little attention to the sacrament of marriage, and even after the Reformation continued to form unions of a patriarchal character, which though regularly recognized and recorded, had not the sanction of the Church."¹ In a case occurring at Builth, 27th, Edward I. (1299) the jurors report "that they say in these parts both legitimate and illegitimate succeed to the heritage of their ancestors, and that such has always been the custom."

A noteworthy instance of this is the noble family of Herbert. The proud Earls of Pembroke and Montgomery descend illegitimately from its founder, a contemporary of Sir Rhys ap Thomas. Indeed, Henry VII., the king whom Sir Rhys seated on the throne of England, apart from the fact that there is no evidence existing to prove a marriage between Katherine of France and his grandfather Owen Tudor,² derived his royal Lancastrian blood illegitimately. His mother, Margaret of Richmond, being a granddaughter of John Beaufort, eldest natural son of John of Gaunt, by Catharine Roet or Swinford (sister-in-law to the poet Chaucer), who afterward became his third wife.

GRIFFITH AP RHYS, the only son of Sir Rhys ap Thomas by his first wife Eva, of Court Henry, b. 1478, was once nominated as a candidate for the Garter, but failed to secure an election. When Henry VII. revived the Order of the Bath, November 17, 1501, on the marriage of his son, Prince Arthur, to Katherine of Aragon, Griffith ap Rhys was created a knight of that ancient order. He was a favourite companion of the Prince, and as such gave some curious testimony at the proceedings in reference to the divorce of Queen Katherine. In April, 1502, at the funeral of Prince Arthur, a contemporary account (printed in Grose's Antiquarian Repertory, ii., 327-330) says "Sir Griffith Vap Sr. Ris rode before the corpse in mornynge Abitt on a courser trapped with black, bearing banner of Prince's arms." And at the interment in Worcester Cathedral, April 27th, "Sir Griffith Vap Rise Thomas offered at the Gospel the rich embroidered banner of my Lord's Armes." The standard of Sir Griffith ap Rhys, K.B., was: per fess murrey and blue; device repeated twice, a trefoil slipped and barbed ar. charged with a raven ppr. Motto, Psalm cxlvii. 9, "Pulus (sic.) corvorum invocantibus eum."

RICE AP GRIFFITH, the only son of Sir Griffith ap Rhys and Lady Katherine St. John, was the heir of his grandfather, Sir Rhys ap Thomas, K.G., and as such succeeded to a position of high rank and large possessions. A true Celt, he was a gallant youth, fond of splendour and display. Brought up with a knowledge of his great wealth and position, and m. to a dau. of the proud Duke of Norfolk, he seems to have shown an arrogant disposition, which made him dangerous enemies. With a numerous and devoted tenantry he felt secure and able to defy them; but in the end, by obtaining the ear of the jealous King, they effected his ruin. The history of his fall is brief, though tragic. In July, 1528, we find him at the height of his power, and in his loyalty writing from Caermarthen to Cardinal Wolsey to complain of the numbers of Irish rebels from Desmond's country, who came into Pembrokeshire, and that the Mayor and Council of Tenby encourage them. March 3, 1528-9, he writes to Wolsey, complaining that his tenants are disturbed by persons under Lord Ferrars, the King's Justiciary for South Wales; and reminding the Cardinal that he encouraged him to declare any grievance of himself or tenants, asks to be Lord Ferrars's Deputy. "Would be content to give my Lord such sum as Wolsey thought convenient for it."

The eleventh of the same month he notifies Wolsey that he has taken a pirate vessel, and thanks the Cardinal for his continued goodness. July 8th, he writes again, giving an account of the trial of the master of the pirate vessel, one William Hughes. Whether this is the same person afterward concerned in Rice ap Griffith's treason, I do not know. Between these two dates occurred an event which was probably the cause of Rice ap Griffith's conspiracy. June 16th of this year, Walter Devereux, Lord Ferrars, writes from "Kermarthen" to Wolsey, "that during his sessions in that town, Rece Griffith, Esq., encouraged the malefactors by causing proclamation to be made in divers churches to induce the people to attend upon him, instead of the Justiciary, and by making quarrels in Kermarden. On Tuesday, June 15th, he came to the Castle with his armed servants, where I was with other gentlemen, and picked a quarrel with me about Thomas ap Howen,¹ his kinsman, who was in ward for various misdemeanours, and hurting the people when they came to complain of him. Rece drew his dagger on me, and I took it from him and put him in ward. His friends stir up the people to rebellion, but he shall not be let out until he find security." The next day Lady Katherine Ryx writes Wolsey, reminding him of his friendship for her family, and telling him that "his servant, master Ryx Griffith, is in Caermarthen Castle on false surmise of desiring Thomas ap Owen, servant to the King, then in ward, to take out of the constable's hands one Jankyn, servant to Ryx, upon which Ferrers drew his dagger, and Ryx his also in self-defence. No harm was done except that Ryx was hurt in his arm and arrested, at which the county is greatly discontented. Great dissatisfaction has prevailed ever since Ferrers' coming to Caermarthen. Ryx would have written, but is kept from pen and ink." In conclusion she begs that Wolsey "will not allow them to have shame and rebuke."

The arrest seems to have caused a great disturbance among the people; and Lady Ryx and her friends seem to have tried to release her husband by force without waiting for Wolsey's action, as we find Ferrers writing, June 18th, to Wolsey, about "the great insurrection in these parts at the instigation of Rece Griffith and Lady Haward. There has not been such in Wales in anyone's memory. Everything is now quiet, and the captains and ringleaders have returned home."

From the fact of his presiding at the trial of William Hughes, master of the pirate vessel, Rice ap Griffith appears to have given the necessary security and been released by the Justiciary. The insult, however, no doubt rankled in his memory; and two years after, when he went up to London, predisposed him to listen to the proposals of some of the papal emissaries.

"The history of his conspiracy is a very mysterious one," says the historian Froude, and my investigations have enabled me to throw very little additional light on the subject. William Hughes, called in the act of attainder, "gentleman of London," who was his partner in the plot, was actively engaged in behalf of Queen Katherine of Aragon at the time of the proceedings in regard to her divorce. From a conversation between two friars after the execution of Rice ap Griffith, reported in Froude's second volume, from the testimony of one who overheard them, it would appear that the unfortunate youth was in reality innocent of the crime charged against him. It is doubtful if he committed any fault other than offending the jealous susceptibilities of the King by adding "Fitz Uryan" to his name, which is complained of in the plea against him,¹ as implying an intention of making himself an independent Prince of Wales. The case of his wife's nephew, the chivalrous Earl of Surrey, was not dissimilar. The conspiracy itself was probably part of the great Papal movement against England which was carried on all through the sixteenth century. The intention seems to have been to assassinate the King, and in the uncertainty with regard to the succession, Rice ap Griffith may have been persuaded to think that his claim as a descendant of the British and Welsh princes might be sufficient to give him the throne of Wales at least. An old prophecy that "James of Scotland, with the bloody hand, and the Raven" (Rice's crest), should conquer England, was also brought to mind to encourage him. Probably Rice was not guilty of doing more than listening to their treasonable propositions, but that was sufficient to ruin him. Some time in the autumn of 1531, probably October 2d, he was arrested. His friends in Wales broke out in open insurrection, and we find that a warrant was addressed to Lord Ferrars, dated October 7, 1531, directing the arrest of James ap Griffith ap Howell, sister's son to Sir Rhys ap Thomas, who had fortified himself in the Castle of Emllyn. He seems to have directed the revolt, and probably was the last of Rice's adherents to surrender. At its session of January 15, 1531-2, Parliament passed an act² forfeiting "Rychard ap Gruffyth late of London Esquire, otherwise Rice ap Griffith of Carewe and William Hughes late of London gentleman, as indicted and convicted in the Court of the King's Bench of having at Iseldon (or Islington) in Middlesex, on August 28, 1531, and elsewhere compassed, &c. the death of our Lord the King."

January 4, 1531-2, Carlo Capello, their English Agent, writes as follows to the Signory of Venice: "The heretic friar was burnt alive; and, three days ago, they sentenced to death Master Ris, who had been put in the Tower before October 3, 1531, and this morning, on Tower Hill, he was beheaded in public, and one of his servants (presumably William Hughes) was hanged and quartered."¹

In the act of forfeiture the rights of Lady Katherine Rice were scrupulously reserved, but uselessly; for in the Parliamentary Session of 1541-2 we find her name, Katherine, Countess of Bridgewater (she had m. 2d Sir Henry Daubeney, Earl of Bridgewater), among others, as attainted of misprision of treason, along with Queen Katherine Howard.

March 26th, of uncertain year, but apparently after the attainder, William Brabazon and Hugh Whalley write from Carew that they are there, preparing for the safe conducting of the King's stuff. "A chaplain of my Lady Howard's (Rice's wife) came with the King's command about her jointure, and asked leave to lie in the castle, that he might have the rooms cleaned. Suspected and searched his room, and found four boxes of evidences belonging to Narberth, Carew, and Kidwelly. Among other things a silver raven worth £40."

THOMAS, OF WEST RIVER, MARYLAND

PHILIP THOMAS, of the mercantile house of Thomas & Devonshire, at Bristol, England, son of Evan Thomas of Swansea, Glamorganshire, Wales, who died in 1650, is the earliest ancestor of this family of whom we have legal and documentary proof, although I have little doubt that the descent given in this genealogy is accurately taken from Sir Rhys ap Thomas, K.G., and will be confirmed by further investigations. A curious old tradition in the family derived them from Thomas de Douvre¹ (d. November 18, 1100), the first Norman Archbishop of York, whose nephew, Thomas, son of Sampson, Bishop of Worcester, was Archbishop from 1109 to 1114, but it is utterly without foundation. The coat of arms² (ar., a chevron chequy of or and sa., between three ravens, close, of the last) borne by Philip Thomas upon his gold-headed cane and service of silver,³ served to point out the true affiliation when I came across the arms of Sir Rhys ap Thomas of Carew, in an old copy of Guillim's "Display of Heraldry" (viz., Ar. a chevron sa. between three ravens, close, of the last). The connection with the Knight of Carew I first attempted to trace through a supposed younger son of his unfortunate grandson, Rice ap Griffith, by the name of Thomas; but the document at the Record Office in London which I understood to state that such a person was at the Court of Scotland with James ap Griffith (q. v.) instead, declares "that ap Griffith called himself Rice."

Further research satisfied me that the descent was to be taken directly from Sir Rhys through one of his sons by Gwennlian (q. v.), sister of his friend and counsellor, Robert ap Gwylym Harry ap Jevan Gwyn of Mydhifynych, Abbot of Talley.¹ Referring then to the genealogy of Sir Rhys ap Thomas for its earlier history, we begin the present family with this THOMAS AP RHYS, b. after 1478, whose son Philip ap Thomas m. Sybell, dau. of Philip and Joan (Warnecombe) Scudamore, and dying before 1585 left a son and heir, John Philip Thomas, who appears to have inherited from his mother the demesne lands of Grosmount Manor, Monmouthshire, and a grist-mill near by, before 1585, when he held them "in right of Philip Skidamore,"² and in 1591 was Queen's lessee of mills at Kentchurch in the same shire.³ He m. Gwennlian, fourth dau. of Walter Herbert, Esq. (q. v.), of Skenfrith, Sheriff of Monmouthshire in 1552, and had issue: Evan Thomas, b. 1580, whose name begins the pedigree compiled by the late Philip E. Thomas, Esq., of Baltimore. I find notices,³ of Evan Thomas ap Evan, Under Sheriff of Glamorganshire in 1615; Evan Thomas, who was one of the Awennydion, or College of Bards, of Glamorgan in 1620; Major Evan Thomas, killed on the part of the King, at the battle of St. Fagans, near Cardiff, May 8, 1648; Evan ap Thomas of Eglwysilan, Wales, b. 1581, d. 1666; E. (probably Edward) Thomas, printer of Deacon's "History of James Naylor," at "his house in Green Arbor, London, 1657;" and Evan Thomas, of Pembroke-shire, who was fined for absence from church as a Quaker, but whether any of these are Evan of Swansea I cannot say. His wife's name is unknown. Philip, his son, was b. about 1600, and may have been the Philip Thomas in the East India Company's service who petitioned for unpaid wages in 1621, but his behaviour was complained of and he was discharged their service on December 17th. Another Philip Thomas, with Thomas Lawrence and Martin Saunders, gives information about a Romish plot April 1, 1628; and there was a Philip Thomas called to account for saying at the Castle Tavern in St. Clement's parish, London, January 20, 1638, that "the punishment of Prynne, Bastwick and Burton, the Puritans, by ear-cropping, etc., was not more than they deserved." Before 1638 a Philip Thomas was messenger of the Chamber for charitable uses, and August 13, 1638, he suggested a new commission. Philip Thomas, the emigrant, before 1650, formed a business partnership with one Devonshire at Bristol, and some time in the year 1651, only seventeen years after Leonard Calvert and Lord Baltimore's first colonists landed at St. Mary's, removed to the province of Maryland. The earliest land patent in his name, dated February 19, 1651-2, conveys to him 500 acres of land called "Beakely" or "Beckley" on the west side of Chesapeake Bay, "in consideration that he hath in the year 1651 transported himself, Sarah, his wife, Philip, Sarah, and Elizabeth his children, into this our province."

He would appear to have come directly from Bristol to Maryland. An examination of the land records of the colony of Virginia, made by the well-known genealogist, R. A. Brock, Esq., of Richmond, fails to show any grant to a Philip Thomas in the seventeenth century, and there would seem to be no reason to suppose that he was in America before coming to Maryland, or, as some have thought, was a member of the Puritan Colony in Virginia and removed thence along with them, when in 1649 and 1650 about seventy families of Puritans from Colonel Richard Bennett's plantation at Nansemond, Va., emigrated to Maryland and settled first on Greenbury's Point, at the mouth of the Severn River, principally on 250 acres surveyed in 15-acre lots, and called the "Town lands of Severn." The first meeting-house was erected on land adjoining that of Elder Durand, their minister. Mr. Philip Thomas is said to have lived on the premises and guarded the sanctuary. About five years later the settlers transferred their lands to Bennett, and moved away. Between 1658 and 1661 Philip Thomas had patented to him 100 acres called "Thomas Towne;" in 1665 a patent of 120 acres called

CANE OF PHILIP THOMAS

“Fuller’s Poynt;” in 1668, of 300 acres called “The Planes;” in 1672, of 200 acres called “Phillip’s Addicion,” and numerous other patents¹ of unnamed tracts. This land lay mostly in Anne Arundel County, near what is now known as West River. “Fuller’s Poynt,” between the Severn and South Rivers, is now called Thomas Point, and is the site of a light-house. A man of character and resolution, the emigrant soon acquired influence amongst his neighbours, and, affiliating himself with the Puritan party, he became one of its leaders in the conflict with Lord Baltimore, the Proprietary, and his representatives in the province. When Cromwell and the Parliamentary party were supreme in England, their sympathizers in Maryland broke out in open rebellion under Colonel Richard Bennett, and Philip Thomas, holding a military commission as lieutenant, was of their muster in Anne Arundel County, Md. Governor Stone immediately summoned the militia of the province, and with a little army of 250 men, after seizing a magazine of arms collected by the Puritans, set out for Providence on the Severn, the head-quarters of Bennett’s partisans. Part of his men were transported in small vessels, and part marched along the Bay shore. As they drew near Providence, Stone sent forward a messenger to the enemy, summoning them to surrender; but the messenger did not return; and on the evening of the same day, March 24, 1654-5, the Governor’s little fleet, with all his army now on board, made its appearance in the Severn.

Captain Fuller, the commander at Providence, put some men on board a ship lying in the harbour, who fired on Stone’s boats as he landed his forces, but did no damage. On the next morning, which was Sunday, Governor Stone and his force came marching up to the attack, under the black and yellow flag of the colony, while over Fuller’s men, 107 in number, drawn up in order of battle, floated the blue cross on a crimson field, the standard of the Commonwealth of England. The battle was short, but sharp; about fifty of the Governor’s men were killed or wounded, and Stone himself, with nearly all his force, compelled to surrender, under a promise that their lives should be spared.

The Puritan annalist writes: “After the battle our men were so tired with watching and anxiety (before the attack) that the guards set over the prisoners fell asleep at their posts; yet the Catholics were so disheartened by their defeat, that no one of them attempted to escape." "Hammond against Heamans," a contemporary pamphlet¹ by one of the Governor's party, notes that "three days after the battle Captain Fuller, Wm. Burgees, Richard Evans, Leo Strong, Wm. Durand, Roger Heamans, John Brown, John Cuts, Richard Smith, one Thomas (Philip Thomas), one Bestone, Sampson Warren, Thomas Meares, and one Crouch, sat as a Council of War, condemned a number of the prisoners to die, and executed four of them."

March 20, 1656-7, Lieutenant Philip Thomas was appointed one of the six High Commissioners of the Provincial Court, the father of his son-in-law, John Mears, being another.² When Oliver Cromwell ordered the revolutionists to return the province to the Proprietary he was one of the commissioners to make the surrender, which was effected on March 24, 1658-9, when the articles of surrender were signed, sealed, and delivered.³ After this he does not seem to have taken an active part in the political affairs of the province, the notices of his name upon the colonial records having to do with transfers of land, etc., the number of which were considerable.

From a petition to the Colonial Assembly, dated April 16, 1666, we learn that he had returned from a voyage to England in the preceding month. Tuesday, October 17, 1671, the Upper House of Assembly consents to a bill for ferries, among them being one "over Potapasco River, from Philip Thomas point in Anne Arundel Co. to Kent Co."

In April, 1672, George Fox, the founder of the Society of Friends or Quakers, arrived in Maryland, landing at the Patuxent just in time to reach a "general meeting for all the Friends in the Province of Maryland," which had been appointed by John Burnyeat to be held at West River. He describes it¹ as a "very large meeting," and held four days, "to which, besides Friends, came many other people, divers of whom were of considerable quality in the world's account." Immediately after this meeting Fox appears to have continued his labours by preaching his doctrines and establishing meetings for discipline at various places in the province. He remained in America until after the "general meeting" at West River, which commenced on the 17th of 3d month (May), 1673, and lasted four days. The next day, being the 21st, he set sail for England. In describing this meeting he says, "divers of considerable account in the government and many others were present, who were generally satisfied, and many of them reached, for it was a wonderful glorious meeting." It is possible, from the language of his will, that Philip Thomas himself was one of those "reached" by George Fox, and there can be no doubt that during his missionary tour his preaching brought a number of the family under the influence of Quakerism, as we find their names enrolled upon the early records of the Society immediately afterward. In point of fact, an examination of those records shows that, for the generation then living and their children, in Maryland at least, George Fox, John Burnyeat, Samuel Bownas, and the other preachers of Quakerism, did very much the same work as was done a century later by John Wesley and the Methodists. Such religion as they had was formal and lifeless; many, indeed, had cast off all restraint, and were living in utter neglect of the ordinances of religion and common morality. The Quaker missionaries coming amongst them with their fervid zeal, and speaking, as they thought, messages direct from heaven, aroused the slumbering souls of their hearers, and reaped a large harvest of converts to what was in fact the first presentation of a spiritual religion they had known.

As a result of this, the Quaker Registers of the end of the seventeenth century are a veritable Libro d'oro in Maryland, containing as they do the names of so many of the leading families of the province. Whether Philip Thomas became a Quaker or not, his widow certainly was one, and probably a preacher of the sect. September 9, 1674, he made his will, which was proved August 10, 1675. A copy, apparently made by one of his sons-in-law, is still preserved at the family seat, "Lebanon," West River, Md. From this he appears to have disposed of much of the land granted him, only mentioning "Beckley," "Fuller's Poynt," and the "Playns," and his two houses in Bristol, England. The clause in the will making "the body of Quakers" a final Court of Appeal in the event of any dispute arising under its provisions, was a common one amongst the Society of Friends, and in this case recourse was had to it. After the death of his widow, Sarah Thomas, his son Samuel claimed all her estates by virtue of a verbal will which he alleged she had made in his favour. This claim was resisted by his brother-in-law, Edward Talbot, and the West River Meeting of Friends was appealed to, to decide the question. The Meeting decided that although she had expressed a wish that Samuel Thomas should be her sole heir, she had not given legal effect to it, and that the estate should be equally divided between her several heirs. The two houses in Bristol were sold before September 13, 1690, when John Talbot claimed an interest in the proceeds of the sale in right of his wife, the granddaughter of Philip Thomas, to the extent of £10, and £50, as her share of the whole landed estate.

PHILIP, eldest son of Samuel and Mary (Hutchins) Thomas, b. March 1, 1694, is spoken of by Governor Sharpe in his correspondence¹ as a man of ability, whose understanding and capacity were never questioned, well affected to the proprietary, though something in his conduct appeared at one time to have given a different impression about his feelings. He would seem to have been somewhat like William Penn in position and character, evidently, from the Governor's account, a courtier, and interested to advance himself, but at the same time he and his wife were both recorded ministers of the Society of Friends.² November 24, 1732, he was a member of a Committee on the part of West River meeting to prepare an address of welcome to Lord Baltimore. At least as early as May 20, 1742, he was a member of the Governor's Council.³

March 13, 1743-4, the Honourable Philip Thomas, Esq., was commissioned Judge and Register of the Land Office.⁴ In 1744, with Edmund Jennings, R. King, and Thomas Colvill, he represented Maryland in a treaty with the Indians at Lancaster, Penn., to settle the western bounds of the province.⁵ On the journey he is spoken of as having "a great disputation with one Gatchell, a Quaker of Nottingham, concerning carnal weapons," which would imply that he was hardly of Quaker principles at that time. Governor Sharpe writes of him as generally well esteemed. He had, at least in the latter part of his life, a very bad constitution, was a little melancholy, and frequently indisposed for a long time together and unable to go up to Annapolis from his plantation, some twelve miles away, near Arundel Manour. In 1755 the Governor writes of him as a member of his Council, and as "not averse to writing to the Lower House as the other members were." Another letter of the Governor puts the matter even more strongly: "Scarcely any of the Council except Mr. Thomas have ever taken upon themselves to pen a common message, yet all of them except Mr. Thomas enjoy lucrative offices."

This was a matter of concern to his Excellency, and comes up a number of times in his letters, various suggestions being made, among them that he should be joint commissary with Colonel Tasker, "which," he writes, "I hope he will accept, there being no gentleman else in the Council at all acquainted with law except two on the Eastern Shore." This failed, Mr. Tasker refusing to have a co-partner in the office. Another proposition was to appoint him Deputy to the non-resident Secretary, Calvert, as on being sounded he was found not averse to making the Secretary a "more reasonable and handsome consideration" than Colonel Tasker offered for the office. But this also fell through; and the appointment of his eldest son as rent-roll keeper seems to have been the only favour actually shown him. In 1758 he is spoken of as a suitable person to be of the commission on the Maryland and Pennsylvania boundary, if his health would "permit him to undergo the fatigue."

May 23, 1760, the Governor speaks of him "as such an invalid that he hardly ever goes from home, nor is it expected that he will again enjoy a better state of health." Secretary Calvert about this time proposed that Philip Thomas, then the third member in age, should resign his seat in the Council to his eldest son; but the Governor objected strongly to it; writing May 26, 1760, "that in the office he enjoys (rent-roll keeper), I believe the son may serve his Lordship very well, but I hope you will not think of recommending him to a seat in the Council, since such a promotion would disoblige numbers here and oblige nobody that I know except possibly the Messrs. Hanbury [Baltimore's business agents]; not even his father, to my knowledge, would wish to see it." This promise he made good in 1756 by appointing him keeper of the Eastern Shore rent-rolls, and October 16th of that year he notifies Secretary Calvert of the appointment, saying : "He is a gentleman that has endeavoured to deserve well of the government, the son of Mr. Thomas of the Council, and one that I persuade myself will not spare any pains to give his Lordship the satisfaction he expects and requires." The Secretary at first objected to the appointment on the ground of his residence on the opposite shore of the Bay ; and suggested his being put in another office. There is quite a correspondence on the subject, which resulted in leaving him rent-roll keeper. Some years later the Governor, as we have seen, refused to put him in his father's seat in the Council. April 29, 1773, he was re-appointed roll-keeper by Governor Eden.² June 27, 1776, he returned

SAMUEL, eldest son of Philip Thomas by his second wife, Ann Chew, b. June 12, 1725, resided at Perry Point on the Susquehanna River near Havre-de-Grace and was proprietor of ferry rights on both sides of the river. He seems to have led a retired life, the only notice of him in the Maryland State papers being in connection with the lease of 100 acres of Talbot Manor and a lawsuit resulting from it in 1752,¹ in which he defended the title of Lord Baltimore to the manor, which had been disputed; and seems to have put himself to considerable expense by his loyalty and been thought by Secretary Calvert to have had some "pretence to satisfaction in connection with the affair."² It is doubtful, however, if he received any, and he does not appear to have held any office under the provincial government. He m., October 23, 1750, his cousin MARY, dau. of Samuel and Mary (Snowden) Thomas (q. v.). For this he was disowned by the Meeting, and February 23, 1759, they acknowledge their error in marriage and ask lines to Nottingham meeting, Cecil Co., from the meeting at West River. JOHN CHEW, fourth son of Samuel and Mary (Thomas) Thomas, b. October 15, 1764, entered the University of Pennsylvania 1780, graduated in 1783, A.M.; resided after his marriage at "Fairland" in Anne Arundel Co. (now site of a post town), which place he afterward sold for $50,000. He was a man of high character, and an active member of the Society of Friends. He was a lawyer by profession, admitted to the Bar at Philadelphia, Pa., December 15, 1787, and in early life took an interest in politics and was elected by the Federal party in Maryland one of their representatives in the Congress of 1799-1801. As a member of that House he took part in the celebrated election of President in the last-named year, which, after three days of intense excitement, and thirty-five ballots, resulted in the election of Thomas Jefferson, and the transfer of the government to the Republican party. After this he declined a re-election. At Indian Spring Monthly Meeting, held at Sandy Spring June 21, 1811, Mary S. Thomas and her five children, Henrietta, John C., Richard Henry, Samuel E., and Julia request that "they be received as members of Society." Committee appointed to visit the family July 19, and her husband's consent being given, they were admitted September 20, 1811. Mr. Thomas appears to have been a Friend, and lost his membership, probably because of marrying out of meeting and to a slaveholder. February 12, 1812, he manumitted his slaves to the number of over one hundred, and, April 11, 1812, applied to be re-instated, and before August 7th of that year was received again into membership with the Society. February 21, 1817, he was appointed clerk of Indian Spring Meeting. An only son, PHILIP.

This Philip Thomas, Jun., son of Philip and Anne (Harris) Thomas, lived at Rockland, Cecil Co., Md. He owned large quantities of land, embracing Mount Ararat and Yorkshire, and others near the ferry at Port Deposit. After his death this property, not being susceptible of division, was taken by his eldest son, he agreeing to pay the other heirs for their portions of the estate, and October 21, 1812, he caused the lower part of the town of Port Deposit to be laid out in streets and lots, by Hugh Beard, surveyor.¹ It is of him the family legend is told, which relates that one evening he and two of his cronies, Thomas Rutland the 4th, and Thomas Snowden, of Summerville, were together waiting for the fourth member of their party to engage in playing cards, as was their custom, for high stakes. A furious storm was raging, and he failed to come. A dummy was tried, but to little satisfaction. Excited by frequent potations Snowden finally expressed a wish for another partner "if it were the Devil himself." The words were hardly spoken before a terrible clap of thunder sounded, and in the lull that followed a rap was heard at the door. On its opening a gentleman dressed in sombre black appeared, who was uproariously greeted by the party, and by all pressed to take a hand in the game. "Nay," he is reported to have answered, "but ye will all take a hand with me ere the year is ended." The story goes on to relate that within the fatal year all three died suddenly.

SAMUEL BEALL, third son of Samuel and Mary (Howard) Thomas, b. August 4, 1811, at the age of twenty removed to Kentucky, and went into the employ of Colonel Edward P. Johnson, of Scott Co., then the largest stage contractor in that State. Assisted by that gentleman, after a few years he went into the same business on his own account and soon became very successful, controlling a number of lines. He was among the first who suggested the Louisville & Nashville Railroad and afterwards was one of its most efficient directors. Some time since he originated the project of building a road at right angles with the Nashville line, and after years of labor and the liberal use of his money and influence in its favor, the Elizabethtown & Paducah Railroad was built. Naturally he was made its first president, and after the election of Mr. Dulaney he remained a director, which position he held up to the time of his death.

years of his life. Much of his property was in the city of Louisville, and the splendid "Thomas Building," on Fourth Street near Walnut, will long remind the citizens of him. After the disastrous fire of 1869, which laid waste one half of the city, he procured money for the sufferers with which to rebuild, he himself going security without asking a guarantee in his favor, and to him is owing in a great measure the beautiful row of buildings, of which Main-Cross Street boasts to-day. SAMUEL, third son of Samuel and Mary (Hutchins) Thomas, b. November 12, 1702; was a minister of the Society of Friends, present as such at a meeting at Herring Creek, January 26, 1758. EVAN, only surviving son of Samuel and Mary (Snowden) Thomas, b. January 21, 1738-39; resided at Mount Radnor, Montgomery Co., Md.; was a minister of the Society of Friends, as was also his wife. In his Memorial¹ it is said that he was a delegate to the first Convention of Maryland, but refused to serve in the second.

after being elected, having returned to Friendly principles. Possibly, like Joseph Galloway and others, his loyalty allowed him to take part in peaceful protests against oppression, but kept him from joining in acts of rebellion. After the Revolution a Meeting for Sufferings held at Pipe Creek, May 23, 1795, notes that from Evan Thomas there were taken 118¾ acres of land, valued at £30 5s. 7½*d.*, by distraint, for taxes for the purpose of sinking debts incurred in the war. Before his death he freed his slaves, over two hundred in number, and gave them small allotments of land to cultivate.

Of an active, nervous temperament, of great fluency of speech, of active intellect, full of all sorts of information, and universally respected for sterling qualities of head and heart, he talked railroad wherever he could find, or, perhaps often the case, force a listener." This was after his return from England, where he had seen the first railway, that from Stockton to Darlington. No doubt he was of great use in bringing the question before the public, for though not a man to lead in any undertaking he was the man of all men to urge others to be leaders. His invention, the Aeolus, a car moved by sails, was rather a curious toy than a practical machine, though Baron Krudener, the Russian ambassador, sent a model of it to the Czar ; for it required a good gale to drive it, head winds being fatal, and a strong side wind not to be trusted, lest it should be upset. Evan Thomas remained a bachelor, and d. s. p.

PHILIP EVAN, third son of Evan and Rachel (Hopkins) Thomas, b. at Mount Radnor, Montgomery Co., Md., November 11, 1776 ; was educated at the District School under a Mr. Knox,² at Bladensburg. Arriving at manhood he went to Baltimore, then a town of only 15,000 inhabitants, and was received into the store of his brother-in-law, Thomas Poultney. In 1800 he commenced business on his own account as a hardware merchant, at 106 W. Baltimore Street, afterwards taking into partnership his wife's brother, William E. George, and finally his brother Evan. He early took an interest in municipal affairs and public charities, and in 1802 was a manager of the Baltimore General Dispensary and Humane Society, in 1807 its Treasurer, and was the first President of the Maryland Bible Society, and of the Mechanical Fire Company, one of the founders of the Baltimore Library Company, for many years President of the Mechanics' Bank, and advanced the first $25,000 to enable the State to begin building the Washington Monument.

During the fall of 1826 Philip E. Thomas held frequent conferences with George Brown, then a Director of the Mechanics' Bank, of Baltimore, in reference to the loss which Baltimore had sustained by the diversion of a large part of its Western trade to Philadelphia and New York through the Erie Canal, and similar facilities for internal navigation and traffic in the States of New York and Pennsylvania. General Barnard's report, showing the cost of completing the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, and the difficulties that lay in its way, convinced them it would not accomplish the desired end in directing the trade to Baltimore. At this time Evan Thomas was in Europe, and wrote from England to his brother, giving him an account of the railroad just built from Stockton to Darlington, in Durham, by the enterprise of Edward Pease of the latter place.

Philip E. Thomas at once saw the utility of railroads as a means of communication and carriers of passengers and freight, and resigning his position as a State Director of the Canal Company turned his whole attention to the projection of a railroad connecting Baltimore with the West. One who knew him well, said, "he was remarkable for his self-possession, clearness of perception, and admirable judgment. His persuasiveness was remarkable. Never thrown off his balance, quiet in his speech, laborious in his search for facts, and eminently successful in his own affairs, people listened to him with conviction, and he had great influence in the community."

If one examines the list of contemporary Baltimore business men, it will also be seen how large and influential was his connection. By blood or marriage, the Poultnays, Ellicotts, Tysons, Wethereds, Georges, and Hopkins, were all of his near kindred, and from 1825 to 1830 among the leading commercial, banking, and manufacturing firms of the city.

February 12, 1827, twenty-five of the most influential merchants of Baltimore met at the residence of Mr. Brown, pursuant to a call issued by Messrs. Thomas and Brown. At this meeting Philip E. Thomas ably presented the various advantages the railroad system had over the canal and the old-fashioned turnpike in efficiency, rapidity of carriage, and ultimate economy, and a committee was appointed to further examine the subject, and report to a public meeting. This committee consisted of Philip E. Thomas, Chairman, Benjamin C. Howard, George Brown, Talbot Jones, Joseph W. Patterson, Evan Thomas and John V. L. McMahan. The following Monday the committee presented their report, written by their chairman, which was unanimously adopted and fifteen hundred copies ordered printed and distributed.

A recent historian of Baltimore¹ remarks, "it almost seems as if the author [of the report] was touched with the spirit of prophecy when he unfolded the possibilities of the great scheme in the prosecution of which he was destined to play so conspicuous a part." Yet far-reaching as was his vision and comprehensive as was his intellect, he did not dream all that the new force which they were calling into existence would accomplish. It is at this day impossible to estimate the effect which that report produced upon the public. Its clear reasoning and ample statistics carried conviction to every reader's mind, and it gave an immediate impulse to railroad building throughout the whole country. That pamphlet, entitled "Proceedings of Sundry Citizens of Baltimore, Convened for the Purpose of Devising the Most Efficient Means of Improving the Intercourse between that City and the Western States," printed by William Woody, 1827, containing thirty-eight octavo pages of small type on gray paper, a copy of which lies before me as I write, is the most memorable document in the annals of American Railways, the very first of the long series of reports which have since been issued. Immediately after the meeting a charter drawn by John V. L. McMahan, the eminent lawyer, was submitted to the Legislature, then in session, and an act of incorporation passed February 27, 1827. As one has written of that time, "then came a scene which almost beggars description. By this time public excitement had gone far beyond fever heat, and reached the boiling-point. Everybody wanted stock. Parents subscribed in the names of their children, and paid the dollar on each share that the rules prescribed. Before a survey had been made—before common-sense had been consulted, even, the possession of stock in any quantity, was regarded as a provision for old age and great was the scramble to obtain it. The excitement in Baltimore roused public attention elsewhere, and a railroad mania began to pervade the land. But Baltimore led all the rest." In eleven days the subscriptions to the stock amounted to $4,178,000. April 24th of that year the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company was duly organized, being the first constructed for general purposes in America; the short tram-roads at Leiperville and Mauch Chunk, Pa., and Quincy, Mass., being only for local carriage of private freight.

The first Directors were: Philip E. Thomas, President; George Brown, Treasurer; Charles Carroll of Carrollton, William Patterson, Robert Oliver, Alexander Brown, Isaac McKim, William Lorman, George Hoffman, Thomas Ellicott, John B. Morris, Talbot Jones, and William Steuart.

Space cannot be given for a detailed history of the railway, but the main facts may be recounted so far as they fall within the scope of Mr. Thomas's presidency.

A Committee of Engineers was appointed, consisting of Lieutenant-Colonel Stephen H. Long and Jonathan Knight, on the part of the Company, assisted by a number from the U. S. Topographical Corps; Philip E. Thomas being its chairman. April 5, 1828, Messrs. Long and Knight reported the completion of their surveys, and the choice of a route along the Valley of the Patapsco, and thence in the direction of Linganore Creek to Point of Rocks.

July 4th, of the same year, the "first stone" was laid by Charles Carroll of Carrollton, with great ceremony and a magnificent procession of associations, trades, and professions. Before the road passed four miles from the city, it encountered a high dividing ridge, which had to be cut down fifty-four feet through a hard clay, involving an expense far beyond the estimates, and the funds prepared to meet them. The President and nine of the Directors immediately advanced $20,000 apiece, which met the difficulty.

By January 7, 1830, the section of the road nearest the city being completed, the company established a station at the end of Pratt Street, and ran cars, drawn by a single horse, out to the Carrollton Viaduct, about a mile and a half distant. It is said that travellers passing through the city would stay an extra day in order to enjoy the pleasure of a "ride upon the railway." May 22, 1830, the road was formally opened to Ellicott's Mills, horse and mule power being used to propel the cars. The average number of passengers during June exceeded four hundred per day, and the railroad was proven a success. After trying various expedients and setting the inventive genius of Peter Cooper, Jonathan Knight, and, especially, Ross Winans to work upon the problem of the steam engine, January 4, 1831, the President published an advertisement offering a premium for two locomotives, which is remarkable for the thorough knowledge it exhibits of what a railroad engine should be. One made by Davis & Gartner, of York, Pa., tried on July 12th of that year, won the prize offered, making a mile in three minutes on its first trip, drawing a car carrying forty persons, and the company adopted locomotives as their motive power. A long litigation took place about the right of way, in which the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal Company opposed the railroad, blockading the latter company for five years at Point of Rocks, Va., and it was only by a compromise that they were at last able to surmount that barrier, and by 1835 to open the line to Harper's Ferry. August 25, 1835, the Washington branch was also completed. The bridge on that line across the Patapsco at the Relay House was, at the time it was built, the finest structure of the kind in the United States. It was designed by the late Benjamin H. Latrobe, and, by its unfamiliar name of the Thomas Viaduct, is the only monument in Baltimore or its vicinity to the projector and builder of the railroad, to which, more than any other agency, the commercial prosperity of the city is due. His true monument we might well claim to be the railroad system of the United States. A recent writer has said "that no one can read the reports and memorials which he prepared when the construction of an extended line of railway was yet an untried experiment, without being impressed with his broad comprehension of commercial affairs and his acute perception of the relations between trade and transportation. His style in writing was clear, forcible, and even elegant, and the words and phrases which he used seem to have been handed down as part of the railroad system which he founded." June 30, 1836, impelled by the state of his health, he resigned the presidency of the Company, "to the great regret of the directors, the stockholders, and the people of the State at large."

In one of the resolutions passed by the Board of Directors on this occasion, they say: "On the commencement of this work, of which he has been, in fact, the father and projector, everything connected with its construction was new, crude, and doubtful, with little to guide the way, and that derived from distant and uncertain sources; now, such has been the increase of information and experience acquired under his auspices and direction, as to insure the completion and success of the undertaking, if prosecuted with the same zeal, assiduity, and integrity which have ever marked his course."

Philip E. Thomas was a prominent member of the Society of Friends, of which his father had been an eminent Minister. He was much interested in the cause of the Indians; several of their young men were educated at the same school with his sons, and it was owing to his exertions that the remnants of the Six Nations, residing in Western New York, were not driven from their reservation by the intrigues of the Ogden Land Company with their chiefs; the chiefs were deposed, and a republican form of government established. He was afterwards made a chief of the Swan tribe of Seneca Indians, by the name of "Sagouan," or bountiful giver, and represented them in their intercourse with the Government at Washington. In the summer of 1861, he went, as was his usual custom, to his daughter's, in Westchester Co., N. Y., and died there September 1, 1861.

THOMAS, OF BAYEUX

THERE was an ancient family in that city, several members of which held high office in England after the conquest. The first one of note was Thomas, son of Osbert and Muriel, b. in Bayeux, who sought learning beyond the bounds of Gaul, and even beyond those of Christendom. Like his Metropolitan, Mauritius, he studied in the schools of Saxony and other German lands. His love of learning carried him into the South as well as the North; he crossed the Pyrenees, and returned to Bayeux full of all the learning of the Spanish Saracens. He became a Canon of its cathedral, and Odo, the Bishop, who made up somewhat for his own misdeeds by generous promotion of merit in others, placed him in the treasurer's stall. This was an office for which one who had studied in the land of the goldsmith's craft might be supposed especially fit. He is said to have been a chaplain of William of Normandy, and after his conquest of England the King nominated him at Whitsuntide, 1070, as the first Norman Archbishop of York. A French memoir speaks of him as worthy by his virtues and his learning, and Dr. Freeman says "that he stood high in every way, and has left a special name behind him in the history of his own church as the restorer alike of its fabric and its discipline. Godwin¹ describes him as of fine stature, with ruddy complexion, courteous, and affable; hair white as swan's down, skilful in music, an accomplished vocalist, and expert performer on the organ. In 1070 Thomas came to Canterbury and sought consecration at the hands of Lanfranc. Before the actual performance of the rite the archbishop demanded a profession of canonical obedience from Thomas. He refused the demand, claiming the independence of the Northern See, and the writers on the rival side confess that the refusal was not prompted by pride or perverseness. Thomas went away unconsecrated and appealed to the King. William decreed a temporary compromise. Thomas was to make a written profession to Lanfranc, personally, pledging himself to full canonical obedience ; but he should not be bound to do the like to any successor of Lanfranc until the dispute was settled by a competent tribunal. Thus far Thomas was content to yield, though with some unwillingness, and he was consecrated Archbishop of York by Lanfranc.

The next year both went to Rome, and Alexander the Pope was minded to deprive Thomas of his see ; not because he stood charged with any offence of simony or plurality, but because he was the son of a priest, his father having been a canon of Bayeux. This, by the way, was nothing wonderful either in English or Norman eyes, and when the matter was referred to Lanfranc for decision his judgment was that Thomas should remain archbishop. While in Rome Thomas craved the Pope's decision of his controversy with Canterbury. Alexander referred it to an English council of bishops, which met the next year and decided in favour of Canterbury. In the metropolitan see of York Thomas sat with all honour for nearly thirty years. He instructed his people by his discourse and by his example, and composed some Books upon the Ecclesiastical Chant. The old dispute between the two metropolitan sees was not fully healed, and when it fell to the lot of Thomas to consecrate Lanfranc's successor Anselm on December 4, 1093, it would seem that Canterbury yielded so far, that he was consecrated not as Primate of all Britain, but vaguely as Metropolitan. The claim of independence came to nothing under the strong hand of William I., and Thomas found better scope for his energies in the reform of his own church. He became the fifth founder of the Cathedral by rebuilding, or rather it would seem repairing it, on a scale of greater magnificence than ever before. He recalled its Canons who had fled at the conquest and increased their number. At first he introduced the Lotharingian discipline, but wiser counsels led him afterwards to adopt the system generally prevalent in the English Cathedrals of secular foundation. His work still lives ; the constitution of the Church of York, as laid down by him, is nearly unaltered ; and in no cathedral in England have the rights of the whole capitular body been so little encroached on by the growth of a residential oligarchy. He d. November 18, 1100. Malmesbury says he crowned King Henry I., but this is doubtful.

Samson, brother of Thomas, was Canon of Bayeux and afterwards Bishop of Worcester in England. He was elected in the year 1096, but not having received full orders was ordained priest on Saturday, and the day following, Sunday, June 8, 1096, by Anselm, Archbishop of Canterbury, his brother Thomas, of York and three other Bishops, was consecrated at S. Paul's, London, Bishop of Worcester.

In 1100, with two other Bishops, he dedicated the great church of Gloucester, which Abbot Serlo had built, and took an active part in the affairs of the Church during his episcopate. He was in great favour with King Henry I. The Monkish writers, though opposed to him, give him the character of a man of great learning and no contemptible eloquence, keeping a handsome table, and very bountiful to others. Before becoming canon he was m., and d. on Sunday, May 5, 1112, and lies buried before the rood-loft of his cathedral, at the bottom of the steps going up into the choir. He left issue Richard, who was Bishop of Bayeux, and Thomas, who was chaplain to Henry I., Provost of Beverly Abbey, in 1108 nominated to the see of London, and June 27, 1109, consecrated at S. Paul's, London, by Richard de Beames, Bishop of London and five other Bishops, Archbishop of York. He revived the claim of independence of Canterbury made by his uncle, and had great debate with S. Anselm about it, during which the latter died. The Bishops of the province being summoned by the king to decide the matter, Samson, the archbishop's father, gave his opinion downright against his own son that he should not receive the pall sent him from Rome until he made his profession of canonical obedience to the See of Canterbury, and so the matter was settled. It is reported that on one occasion, being ill of a grievous malady, and the physicians having indicated to him a remedy opposed to purity, he declared "that he loved better to expose himself to death, than to rescue his life at such a price." The pious narrator adds, "God blessed his constancy and faith by restoring him to his former health." He d. February 24, 1114. An old French historical dictionary calls the archbishop "Thomas de Douvre," and speaks of an Isabelle de Douvre of their family who was mistress of Robert of Gloucester, natural son of King Henry I., and had by him a son Richard, Bishop of Bayeux, in 1133. She d. in 1166 at a very advanced age.

GEORGE P., tenth child of George and Charlotte (Thomas) Thomas, b. April 1, 1825. About 1845 went to Winchester, Va., and entered the store of an elder brother. Not being satisfied with a subordinate position, and Winchester not affording scope for his enterprising spirit, he went to Baltimore in 1848, without letters of introduction, or influential friends there, depending only on his own efforts.

In 1849, he associated in the management of the Globe Inn, corner of Baltimore and Howard Streets, with a former resident of Frederick Co. In this he continued about a year and a half, when he engaged as clerk in a wholesale dry-goods house, which was more congenial to his tastes.

Though not yet having accumulated any funds, he made acquaintances in the commercial community, and demonstrated his business qualities, so that he began to seek opportunities for establishing himself in business.

In August, 1852, he formed a partnership in the wholesale wine and liquor trade. The business was successful for fourteen years, when in 1866 Mr. Thomas retired, to establish a house in the same branch, under his own name, at No. 385 West Baltimore Street, and in 1874 he purchased the valuable warehouse of Drakely & Fenton, southeast corner of Baltimore and Paca Streets.

Continued success always gives a man a prominent position in the mind of his community, and an influence which he may wield either for himself or general interests. In addition to his success, Colonel Thomas possessed such a genial spirit and courteous bearing toward all, that he became universally popular, and though by nature retiring, was compelled by his fellow-citizens to occupy many public positions. In 1852, they elected him as an independent candidate to the City Council from the Fourteenth Ward, over a popular competitor who had served several terms. His success was due not so much to the political issue of the canvass as to his personal popularity.

His importance in the Council was at once recognized by the President of the First Branch, the late John S. Brown, who appointed him chairman of the Committee on Internal Improvements.

As such he urged and secured the passage of the ordinance giving the city's endorsement of a million dollars to the Pittsburg and Connellsville Railroad Bonds, believing that this road would become greatly profitable to Baltimore, a belief that has been abundantly verified since its completion. He perceived not only its importance as forming a short line to the West, but connecting Baltimore with Pittsburg and the mining and manufacturing portion of Pennsylvania, thereby developing a new trade.

Governor E. Louis Lowe about this time appointed him one of his staff, with the rank of colonel, in recognition of his popularity as well as from personal regard for him.

GEORGE P. THOMAS afterwards became President of the Maryland Life Insurance Company. He m., November 28, 1854, MARIA LOUISE KEMP, and d. November 17, 1887. Issue :

THOMAS, OF CATASAUQUA, PA.

DAVID THOMAS, b. in South Wales, November 3, 1794, was the founder of this family, as also of the anthracite iron manufacture in America. Applications to the family have received no answer, and the following sketch is derived from newspaper sources. He began work as an iron-founder in 1812; in 1817 going to the Ynisedwin furnaces, Brecknockshire. In 1820, with George Crane, one-third owner of the works, he began to experiment in the use of anthracite as fuel, the works being located on the southern edge of an anthracite coal-basin. Their first efforts were unsuccessful. In 1834, one Neilson, of the Glasgow Gas Works, discovered the use of the hot blast, and Thomas, reading his pamphlet, saw its importance, and in 1836 applied it to use at Ynisedwin. This new method was so applicable to the needs of Pennsylvania that shortly afterwards, on the recommendation of Mr. Crane, David Thomas was asked to come over and superintend the erection of furnaces for the Lehigh Crane Iron Company. He finally accepted the offers made him, and in May, 1839, sailed with his family from Liverpool in the clipper ship Roscus, reaching New York June 5th. Furnaces were immediately built at Craneville, now Catasauqua, Pa., and the first run of iron made July 4, 1840. David Thomas acted as superintendent until 1855, when his sons succeeded him. In 1854 the Thomas Iron Company was formed and the works at Hokendauqua, Pa., begun. Mr. Thomas was a ruling elder in the Presbyterian Society at Catasauqua for over forty-two years, and largely instrumental in the erection of their house of worship. He m. Elizabeth Hopkins (b. in 1796, d. in July, 1890); and d. June 20, 1882, leaving, with other issue, three sons, John, Samuel, and Thomas, and a dau. who m. Joshua Hunt. Samuel R., son of John Thomas, m., October 4, 1894, Bessie May, dau. of Alexander P. A. Laury. Another grandson is Edwin Thomas of Catasauqua, whose wife is a prominent member of the Pennsylvania Daughters of the American Revolution.

THOMAS, OF CHARLES COUNTY, MD.

THOMAS THOMAS was one of the early settlers on the Patuxent River, in Maryland, there being a surveyor's warrant to lay out for him the Broad Neck there, say fifty acres, July 15, 1651. He was probably the Thomas Thomas who first came over with Thomas Passmore, in the latter part of 1635. (See Land Records, Liber I., folio 73.) June 1, 1652, he demanded a warrant for six hundred acres for "transporting himself, his wife ELIZABETH,¹ son James Thomas, and Robert and Elioner Paterson and Matthew Smith his servants to the province in 1651," and received one to lay out for him with Will Batten one thousand acres north side of Patuxent River over against or near Buzzard's Island. (Liber A. B. H., folio 202.) November 22, 1652, there was laid out for "Thomas Thomas and Wm. Batten, planters of Putuxent River, 1,100 acres north side of Putapsco River." March 31, 1656, he was, with Captain Philip Morgan, Mr. William Ewens, Lieutenant Philip Thomas, Mr. Samuel Vethers, and Lieutenant Richard Woolman, a High Commissioner of the Provincial Court held at Patuxent. December 28, 1670, he made his will.² Proved, February 2, 1670-71. (Liber I., folio 411.) It makes no mention of his son JAMES (of whom presently), but names

- i. WILLIAM, to whom was left the home plantation and one hundred acres in the woods; he m. ELIZABETH —, remained in S. Mary's Co., and d. in 1685, leaving to his son THOMAS, "Newinton;" dau. SARAH, "Batchell's Rest;" and to "child his wife is pregnant with," one hundred and thirty acres.
- ii. MARY, left one-third of four hundred acres of land and "two pewter dishes, one pewter Bason, three poringers, six spoons, one Dutch Pott and pott hookes and one dish."
- iii. GRACE, left one-third of four hundred acres, "one pewter dish, one plate, two Poringers, six spoons and one Iron Kettle;" she m. — BREWER.
- iv. ELIZABETH, left one-third of four hundred acres, "one Iron Kettle and one small Dutch Pott, one pewter dish and two Poringers, half a dozen of spoons and one plate." She m., about 1672, WILLIAM, son of Dr. Peter Sharpe.

² No residence is stated, but the witnesses show him to have been of S. Mary's Co.

JAMES, eldest son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Barton) Thomas, b. before 1651, in which year he came over to Maryland with them; m. TERATIA —, and made his will as of "Charles County," June 7, 1701. Proved November 29, 1701. (Liber T. B., folio 215.) He left three hundred acres in that county on the west side of Patuxent River, called "Ware," to his three children,

- i. JOHN, of whom presently.
- ii. THOMAS (q. v.).
- iii. ANNA MARY.

JOHN, eldest son of James and Teratia Thomas, was of Charles Co., made his will April 30, 1756, proved July 7, 1757, from which it appears that he was of advanced age, and his wife deceased. He named his children as follows :

- i. JOHN, the eldest, left tract called "Ware," and made executor, of whom presently.
- ii. LEONARD, left "Bowling Green," two hundred acres.
- iii. JAMES, left negroes, sheep, and tobacco.
- iv. WILLIAM, left rest of lands and 'two negroes in compliance with a letter sent to Thomas Reeves, his wife's father, at the time of their marriage." (See Thomas, of S. Mary's Co.)
- v. JANE, m. EDWARD SWANN, and d. before 1756, leaving a dau., ELIZABETH, who m. THOMAS ADAMS.
- vi. ELIZABETH, m. BENJAMIN WOOD, and d. before 1756, leaving a dau., ELIZABETH.

JOHN, eldest son of John Thomas, of Charles Co., m. MARY —, who made her will, in 1763, as of Dorchester Co., and as the widow of John Thomas, naming her brother-in-law, Captain William Thomas, and son JOHN, probably the JOHN THOMAS, of S. Inigoes, S. Mary's Co., Md., who m. SARAH — (who d. in 1774), and made his will March 29, 1768; proved April 11, 1770. Issue (order uncertain) :

- i. PHILIP.
- ii. JOHN.
- iii. WILLIAM.
- iv. ANN, wife of STEPHEN MILBURN.
- v. MARY, possibly m. DR. WILLIAM LANSDALE, and had a dau., Elizabeth, m. Dr. William Thomas (q. v.).
- vi. SARAH.
- vii. ELIZABETH.

THOMAS, younger son of James and Teratia Thomas, d. before February 20, 1723-24, when SUSANNAH, his widow, being "very weak and sick," made her will, proved August 31, 1724 (Liber W. B. No. 1, folio 335), in which she names the following children :

- i. THOMAS, her executor, of whom presently.
- ii. GEORGE (q. v.).
- iii. WILLIAM, bequeathed the reversion of her personal estate.
- iv. ELIZABETH, m. — ADAMS.

THOMAS, probably eldest son of Thomas and Susannah Thomas, m. ELIZABETH —, was of Charles Co., and March 6, 1733-34, being "sick and weak," made his will, proved October 22, 1734 (Liber T. & D., folio 216), naming the following children :

- i. JAMES, the eldest, to whom is left "part of my dividend of tract called 'Ware ;' his mother is to have the rest."
- ii. THOMAS, of whom presently.
- iii. WILLIAM, of Charles Co., m. ANN —, and d. before August 30, 1776. Issue :

THOMAS, JAMES, ALLEN, WILLIAM, NEHEMIAH, ISAAC, JOSIAH, ZACHEY, ARCHIBALD, SARAH, TERESA, and ELIZABETH, named in his will.
- iv. ELIZABETH.
- v. SOPHIA.
- vi. TERESA.
- vii. SOPHANIA.
- viii. "The child my wife is now big with," mentioned in his father's will, and possibly the "Jesse Thomas," of his brother Thomas Thomas, Senior's, will, 1772.

THOMAS, second son of Thomas and Elizabeth Thomas, is called "Thomas Thomas, Senior," and was left by his father "Thomas's Fancy." He m. ELEANOR —, and d. in Prince Georges Co., Md., having made his will in October, 1772 (Liber W. F. No. 1, folio 111), in which he left to his son THOMAS, "After Stamp," Prince Georges Co.; to his son WILLIAM (see Thomas of Wilmington, Del.), a negro boy, etc.; to his son JAMES, a negro girl, etc.; and declared : "It is my will my daughters Jane Sisle (or Sivele), Elizabeth Sisle, Mary Sisle, and Sophania Maenuse, and likewise Jesse Thomas, shall have an equal part of all and singular my goods and chattels." The puzzle here is to determine the relationship of the last five persons to the testator. The first three—Jane Siscle, Elizabeth Siscle, and Mary Siscle—may have been his step-daughters; but what about Sophania Maenuse and Jesse Thomas? The Christian name of the latter (Jesse) is unique among the Thomas wills in Maryland prior to 1775. It is believed, but without absolute proof thus far, that Sophania Maenuse was the testator's youngest sister, married to a Mr. Maenuse, and that Jesse Thomas was his youngest brother.

GEORGE, second son of Thomas and Susannah Thomas, resided in Charles Co., made his will November 21, 1738, proved December 22d (Liber D. D. No. 1, folio 20). His wife appears to have been deceased, and is unnamed; his children mentioned are:

- i. JAMES, to whom he left "Godfrey's Chace," two hundred acres.
- ii. GEORGE, left "S. George's," one hundred and twenty acres, where Matthew Martin now lives; m. ANN —, and d. in April, 1752. Issue:
TYER, JOHN, left sixty acres at Cedar Point, known as "Button;" MARY, and PHILIP, all under age in 1752.
- iii. WILLIAM, to whom he left "Bowen's Dispute," ninety-four acres.
- iv. A dau., m. — BROOKS, left "Thomas's Port," two hundred acres.
- v. SUSANNA, m. — FARR.
- vi. ELIZABETH, m. — TOMPKINS.
- vii. A dau., m. — COMPTON, and had a son, BENJAMIN.
- viii. BENJAMIN, is left the residue of the estate, and he is to be executor of the will, though "also to be under the care of Capt. Benjamin Douglass, and my son, George Thomas, 'till he is 20."

THOMAS, OF SARATOGA COUNTY, NEW YORK

DANIEL THOMAS, a Revolutionary soldier, was born November 21, 1754, in Berkshire Co., Mass. Tradition says that his forefathers came from Wales in the early history of New England. He was an old-time Democrat, and moved about 1786 from Lenox with his wife and young family, to the township of Milton, Saratoga Co., N. Y. (then a part of Albany Co., which extended to the Canada line), and probably after the death of his father. It is related that he returned to Massachusetts within a few years to bring his widowed mother to Saratoga Co., where at least two of her daughters had also settled. One of these daughters married Jacob Weed, and the other married Stephen Jackson, and with these daughters the old lady spent her last years.

The children, it is said, had urged the old lady to come from Massachusetts and live with them ; but she, learning that it implied crossing the "great Hudson River," said she would never make the long journey until a bridge should be built across the river. Finally, one winter, Daniel and one or more of her other children drove over to Lenox and informed her that the bridge was built and that they had crossed it in coming for her. With this assurance she packed up, and protected against the cold by many wrappings, started in a sleigh for their homes in Saratoga, N. Y. After crossing the Hudson they asked her to look out of her wrappings and see what a fine bridge had been built. When she saw that their "bridge" was the ice she felt hurt and frightened that she had been deceived by her children and led into what she thought was such a danger, and declared if she could get safely back to Lenox they could never again tempt her to leave it.

Saratoga Co. was then new, and Daniel Thomas, soon after his first arrival, purchased a tract of forest at $4.00 per acre and commenced clearing it to make a home for himself and family. Privation and trouble came during the first year or two. The forest must first be cleared away before crops could be raised. A gunshot wound received in the Revolution broke out afresh in Daniel's hand, to prevent him for a long time from doing the hard pioneer work of felling trees or of planting. Then their cow sickened and died, adding to their trouble, so that for a long time they were badly off. Some of their relatives in Maryland and Virginia learned of their suffering and sent them corn by sloop to Albany—about forty miles away through the woods—to help them along until Daniel should again be able to resume his hard work and provide for his family. During the years that he was disabled he was obliged to search the forests and dig ginseng root to earn what he could. This root was then plentiful there, and was in demand for export to China. That he might not lose his bearings in the woods while searching for ginseng, a birch log was laid up free from the ground near the cabin door, and his little son, Moses, would frequently beat it with the head of an axe, sending the ringing sound out as a signal to his father.

He never fully recovered from his wound, and it was only after his sons grew large enough to take up farm work that they were able to make much progress. From the timber cut they finally realized some money, and afterward utilized a part of the lumber in building a large house, which for many years was used as a hotel.

On a Sunday morning, early in April, 1825, this house took fire while the family were at church. Daniel's exertion to save some of the personal property resulted in aggravating old physical troubles to such an extent that he had to be removed to the home of a neighbor, and afterward to the house of his son Freeman, where he died within a few days in great agony.

He was very active in public enterprises of his county, but never allowed his name to be put forward politically. He, like his parents and grandparents, was much attached to the old Stone Church (Baptist) in Milton, and for many years was its strongest supporter. He was never active in business after removing to Philadelphia, but spent much of his time in reading and study, of which he was very fond. He was m., March 2, 1836, by Rev. THOMAS, OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN June, 1702, REV. SAMUEL THOMAS was appointed by the Venerable Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts,¹ as its first missionary to South Carolina. His testimonials show that he was from Bally-don near Sudbury, a town on the borders of Essex and Suffolk, England. They speak of him as "a person of eminent piety." He arrived at Charleston on Christmas Day, 1702, and took up his residence in a section afterward known as S. James Parish, Grove Creek. Sir N. Johnson, Knt., Governor of the Carolinas, and the members of his Council, in a testimonial sent to the Venerable Society, speak of him "as leading a religious and virtuous life, and by his diligent and constant preaching he hath done much good in the province." He d. December 16, 1706, in South Carolina, aged about thirty-four years, and leaving in England a widow ELIZABETH, and five children. The Governor and Council speak of his death as "a very great loss to the Province, he being a person of great piety and virtue, and by his exemplary life and diligent preaching, and obliging carriage he had the good-will of all men."

EDWARD, son of Rev. Samuel Thomas, resided at "the Forest," a plantation in S. Stephen's Parish, and was wounded in a fight with the Indians at a place called Barker's Savannah, in 1715. He is described in Ramsay's "History of South Carolina" as somewhat whimsical, living for fifteen years in complete solitude on his plantation—walking so constantly up and down his piazza for exercise that he wore a path in the boards. Suddenly his ideas changed, he visited all his friends, went over to England, and figured there as a beau and man of society. Being about to return to America he was seized with gout in the stomach, and d., aged ninety. His son, SAMUEL, was settled by his father at Betaw Plantation, S. Stephen's Parish, and m.,

ARMS OF SIR PHILIP FRANCIS

THOMAS, OF TALBOT COUNTY, MD.

CHRISTOPHER THOMAS, the emigrant ancestor, would appear to have first explored the land at another's expense before settling in it, as in Liber i., folio 87, of the Maryland Land Records, under date of September 7, 1640, Thomas Butler, of the Isle of Kent, planter, claims land for having transported to the province Christopher Thomas and two other men-servants at some time previous. In 1638 he was one of two Burgesses in the Lower House of Assembly from Kent Co., showing his estimation among his neighbors, as this was the first Assembly called by the Governor, and Kent then included all the Eastern Shore of Maryland. October 27, 1664, he demands land for transporting to the province in that year himself, Elizabeth, his wife, Susan Higgins and Catherine Higgins, his children, John Edge, and William Ladds and Jane, his wife, and received a warrant for three hundred and fifty acres (Liber vii., folio 471). He d. March 25, 1670, but his will is not found on record. It would appear from the above entry he m. a widow, ELIZABETH HIGGINS, who after his death, and before 1679, m. CAPTAIN MATTHEW SMITH, and made her will as widow, March 11, 1697, proved March 26th, making bequests to Mary Martin, wife of John Martin Smith; Blanche, wife of Cleborne Lomax, and Mrs. Elizabeth, wife of John Hawkins. By her second husband, CHRISTOPHER THOMAS, she seems to have had issue, a son, TRUSTRAM THOMAS.¹ This TRUSTRAM THOMAS was an early emigrant, as appears from a land record referring to his son Christopher in 1664-65 as "son of Trustram who settled early on the Wye River." He was Commissioner to improve trade in Talbot Co. in 1685. Probably m. a sister of William Coursey,² who deeds to him, as his brother-in-law, November 10, 1670, "Trustram," four hundred acres near the head of the northeast branch of the Wye River. He made his will apparently without date, but proved May 22, 1686, in which he names his wife, ANNE (living in 1701) and issue :

- i. THOMAS, of whom presently.
- ii. CHRISTOPHER, living in 1664-65, d. s. p.
- iii. TRUSTRAM (q. v.).
- iv. WILLIAM, b. October 18, 1669, was commissioned High Sheriff of Talbot Co., October 15, 1735. He m. JEAN —, and made his will as Yeoman, of Talbot Co., March 20, 1739-40, proved December 10, 1740 (Liber D. D., No. 1, folio 284), naming his sons :

- i. TRUSTRAM, left "my part of our servant-man called William Moores," and the reversion of the plantation left to his mother during her life.
- ii. WILLIAM, left "tables, scrutore, and two negroes;" he probably had a son named William.

WILLIAM THOMAS had also daughters.

- iii. ANN, m. WILLIAM MARTIN, and had a son Thomas. To her is forgiven "all the debts she oweth me on account of her former husband and herself during widowhood."
- iv. JANE, lately deceased leaving heirs: Elizabeth and Juliana.
- v. JULY, b. October 15, 1671, probably m. JOHN KING.
- vi. STEPHEN, b. January 15, 1673-74, left by his father two hundred and thirty-three acres, lying by John Glandwing's (Glendinning) on the Bar, "he to serve his mother until twenty-one."
- vii. There were other daughters, as four are enumerated in the will.

THOMAS, eldest son of Trustram and Anne (Coursey?).
Thomas inherited from his father the reversion of the home

² Land Records, Liber ix., 327, William Coursey enters these rights following: Trustam Thomas, Ann Thomas, his wife; Thomas Thomas, Christopher Thomas, Trustram Thomas, his children; Francis Birkettson, Jane Richardson, Derrink Peterson, Neckey Peterson, Peter Peterson, which said rights are to complete his conditional warrant and an assignment of warrant for two thousand and fifty acres from Symon Carpenter, dated April 23, 1665.

plantation after his mother's decease, and "all his father's right in the land and plantation att Chester." He m. ELIZABETH —, and made his will as of Talbot Co., August 11, 1701, proved May 8, 1706 (Liber J. C. and W. H., No. 2, folio 24), mentions his "brother and kinsman, John King and William Coursey." Issue :

- i. EDMOND, see Queen Anne's County family.
- ii. TRUSTRAM, see ditto.
- iii. THOMAS, left by his father three hundred acres in the forks of Tuckahoe, purchased of Robert Smith, "but if he does not convey it then three hundred and fifty acres, called Barbados Hall, lying in Corsica Creek, and also two hundred acres lying on Tuckahoe Creek, which I bought of John Hawkins and William Coursey."

TRUSTRAM, third son of Trustram and Anne (Coursey ?). Thomas, seems to have left no record. He inherited two hundred and thirty-three acres on the back of Madbury's Branch and was under age in 1686. He had issue :

TRISTRAM, b. January 17, 1701 ; one of the Commissioners of Talbot Co., February 1, 1745-46 ; Justice of the Peace, 1751-54 ; m. ELIZABETH MARTIN, and d. July 17, 1769. Will made July 13, 1769, proved December 5, 1769 (Liber W. D., No. 2, 443). Issue :

- i. WILLIAM, a minor to whom was left "my dwelling plantation called 'Double Ridge,' also 'Rudley' (Roadley), 'Sutton,' the addition, and my part of 'Thief Keep Out.'"
- ii. ELIZABETH, left part of "Studd's Point," "Killingworth," "Hill's Neck," and "Aire's Venture."
- iii. TRISTRAM, b. December 25, 1769, of whom presently.

TRISTRAM, second son of Trustram and Elizabeth (Martin) Thomas, b. posthumously, December 25, 1769, on Reedy Creek, Bolingbroke Neck, Trappe District, Talbot Co.; removed to Easton, Talbot Co., and practised medicine there. He m., first, December 30, 1792, SUSAN GEDDES, of Wilmington, Del., who d. leaving two sons and three daughters. DR. THOMAS, OF THOMASTON, CONN.

SETH, son of James and Martha Thomas, b. at Wolcott, Conn., August 19, 1785, founded this family. His advantages of education consisted of a very short attendance upon a distant public school. He served an apprenticeship to the trade of carpenter and joiner, and worked for some time on the construction of Long Wharf, in New Haven. Leaving at his majority with a small kit of tools and a very small sum of money, he began the manufacture of clocks in the southeastern part of the town of Plymouth, now Hancock Station, on the New York and New England Railroad, with Eli Terry and Silas Hoadley, under the firm name of Terry, Thomas & Hoadley. In 1810 Mr. Terry sold his interest to his partners, and the firm continued two years as Thomas & Hoadley. Then Mr. Thomas sold his interest and removed to the western part of the town, then known as Plymouth Hollow, and purchased the ground where the case-shop is now located. Here he continued the manufacture of clocks, on his own account, becoming very successful and building up a very large business from small beginnings. He also erected a cotton-mill and a brass-rolling and wire-mill. Politically he was a Whig, and by religious affiliation a Congregationalist, contributing largely to the building of their meeting-house in Plymouth Hollow. In 1853, feeling the infirmities of age approaching, and in order to avoid the stoppage of his works at his death, he organized the Seth Thomas Clock Company, under the laws of Connecticut. After his death the town of Plymouth was divided by act of Legislature, and the western part named Thomaston in his honor. He m., first, April 20, 1808, PHILENA TUTTLE, who d. March 12, 1810; m., second, April 14, 1811, LAURA, dau. of William and Submit Andrews, who d. July 12, 1871. BUCKLEY, OF ROCHDALE, LANCASHIRE

THIS family is of Saxon origin, the name signifying a bleak hill, according to a pedigree recorded in Sir William Dugdale's "Visitation of the County," 1664-65. It descends from JOHN DE BUCKLEY, whose brother GEOFFREY was Dean of Whalley and Vicar of S. Chad's, Rochdale, and about 1200 wrote the original grant to Saddleworth Chapel, executed by William de Stapleton. JOHN was Lord of the manor of Buckley in Hundersfeld, Rochdale, and may have been son of Geoffrey, and grandson of Adam, son of John de Buckeley. He had two sons, GEOFFREY, killed on the part of King Henry III., at the battle of Evesham, and buried in the conventual church of Evesholme in 1265, and ADAM, his heir, who attests deeds in 1323 and 1325; m. ALICE, dau. of Thomas, son of William de Leigh, and had issue: JOHN, succeeded his father 9 Edward III., attests deeds 1339 and 1359, and THOMAS.

ROBERT, son of John, living 16 Richard III. (1392-93), had a son JOHN, attests deeds in 1370 and 1390; m. ALICE, dau. and heiress of Roger Wolfenden, 2 Henry IV. Issue: RAFE or RADULPHUS, his heir, and HENRY, living 9 Henry VI. (1430-31).

RAFE, m., 7 Henry V. (1419), CATHERINE —, and had a son JAMES, m., 38 Henry VI. (1459-60?), MARGARET —. Issue: ROBERT, and ISABELLA, m., 3 Edward IV. (1463), GILBERT, son of Lambert de Leigh.

ROBERT succeeded 10 Edward IV. (1470), and had two sons, THOMAS, his heir, and JOHN, Vicar of Wasperton, Co. Warwick, 11 Henry VII. (1495-96). THOMAS succeeded, 21 Henry VII. (1505-6), attests a deed May 18, 1507, and had a son and heir, JAMES; succeeds in 1512; m., November 12, 1512, ALICE, dau. of — Howarth, of Howarth, Lancashire. There is an uncertainty about the next three generations. The Visitation pedigree is certainly wrong in making the great-grandfather of JOHN BUCKLEY, born in 1613, a Robert, baptized July 6, 1578. The most probable line runs as follows: JAMES and ALICE (Howarth) BUCKLEY had issue:

- i. ROBERT, d. s. p. in 1577, possessed of "messuages, lands, and woods at Buckley Manor and Hundersfeld in Lancashire."
- ii. THOMAS, of whom presently.
- iii. HUGO.
- iv. ARTHUR, m. dau. of Henry Hamer, of Hamer, Lancashire.
- v. vi. CATHERINE and ELIZABETH, one of whom m. THOMAS CHADWICKE, of Heley, Lancashire.

THOMAS, eventual heir of James and Alice (Howarth) Buckley, attests deeds May 16, 1561, August 16, 1580, and October 22, 1581; m., 14 Henry VIII., Margery, dau. of Ranulph Howarth, and d. August 18, 1588. Issue: A son, ROBERT, baptized July 6, 1578; m. GRACE, dau. and heiress of John Holt, of Ashworth, Lancashire. Issue: Possibly THOMAS, ELIZABETH, and MARGARET, who make the next generation on the pedigree, as well as ROBERT, d. u., ABELL, his heir, of whom presently, and THOMAS, Rector of Damoram, Co. Wilts, d. u.

ABELL, second son and heir of Robert and Grace (Holt) Buckley, was entered at Gray's Inn, November 5, 1602. Rented land from Byron, at Buckley pastures, about 1609; was called to the Bar at Staple Inn, Gray's Inn, June 11, 1617; m. ANNA, dau. and heiress of Robert Norfolk, of Barnsley, Yorkshire, and d. October 6, 1637. Issue:

- i. JOHN, his heir, of whom presently.
- ii. JOSIAH.
- iii. THOMAS.
- iv. JONAS.
- v. MARIA, m., first, FRANCIS WILFORD; m., second, RICHARD EYRE.

JOHN, son and heir of Abell and Anna (Norfolk) Buckley, b. 1613, was admitted to Gray's Inn August 15, 1628; m. BEATRICE, dau. and heiress of William Browne, of Mexborough and Swynton, Yorkshire, and, March 11, 1664, had issue :

- i. ABELL, b. 1639; m. JUDITH, dau. of Richard Cokain, of Bury-Hatley, Bedfordshire. Issue :
MARGARET, BEATRICE.
- ii. JOHN.
- iii. EDWARD, of whom presently.
- iv. DOROTHY.
- v. BEATRICE.
- vi. FRANCES.
- vii. GRACE.
- viii. JUDITH.

EDWARD, third son of John and Beatrice (Browne) Buckley, would appear to have become the eventual heir of the property. He was buried in Trinity Church, Rochdale, in 1687, leaving issue :

- i. THOMAS, of whom presently.
- ii. A dau., m. — FOSTER, of Preston, and had a son, THOMAS (heir of his cousin, Captain William Buckley), whose grandson, Edward, son of Thomas Forster-Buckley, sold the property at Rochdale to Robert Entwistle, of Foxholes, and d. in 1816.

THOMAS, son of Edward Buckley, had a faculty for the West gallery of S. Chad's Church, December 27, 1693, and d. 1697, leaving a son and heir, CAPTAIN WILLIAM BUCKLEY. August 9, 1722, he had a dispute with Major Samuel Crooke, of Crooke, over the right of way in a narrow lane at Walton, near Preston, which ended in a duel, in which he killed his antagonist. He was tried at the Lancaster Assizes and found guilty of manslaughter, but escaped with a light sentence. May 9, 1730, he made his will, settling his estates on his cousin, Thomas Foster, and finally on his kinsman, JOHN BUCKLEY, of Grotton Hall, Saddleworth, Yorkshire.

The latter, probably descended from William Buckley, of Quicke and Saddleworth, Yorkshire, who d. in the early part of the reign of Queen Elizabeth; and was of Grotton in 1712 and 1728; his descendant, Edmund Buckley, was of Grotton Hall in 1853. The present building was erected in 1664. Of this family undoubtedly was Lawrence Buckley, who, with Edmund Ashton, in 1567, was sued by Sir John Byron (ancestor of the poet) and others, the inhabitants of Rochdale, about a right of way over property at Butterworth and other rights. Also Barnarde Buckley, who contested his inheritance against Roger Gartside and John Holte, in 1569, and there is notice of an Abell Buckley, apparently m. the dau. and co-h. of Edward Lord, who brought him lands at Butterworth and Todmorden, and d. 1640.

THOMAS LEACH

BUCKLEY, OF NEW YORK

So far as known this family begins with PHINEAS BUCKLEY,¹ of London, a trader to the West India Islands and the North American Provinces, who came in that capacity to Philadelphia in the year 1713. There he m. SARAH, dau. of Elias Hugg, of Gloucester Co., New Jersey, then in the nineteenth year of her age. Not long after this he went on a trading voyage to Charleston, S. C., and is said to have died of the yellow fever in that city.

WILLIAM, his only child, was b. November 13, 1715, in the city of Philadelphia. Left an orphan during his infancy, parental care seems to have been well supplied by his mother's sister, Elizabeth, and her husband, Ennion Williams, of Bristol, Penn., of which town the latter was Chief Burgess, October 3, 1733, to 1737, and a Justice for Bucks Co., November 22, 1738, and frequently afterward. WILLIAM BUCKLEY was educated in Philadelphia, and served his apprenticeship with Joshua Maddock, a noted merchant of that city. Inheriting perhaps from his father some predilection for a seafaring life, he made a few voyages to the West Indies, but it appears he soon became weary of this vocation, and we find it recorded that he married, May 21, 1741, RUTH, dau. of Thomas and Sarah (Fry) Leach,¹ of Newport, R. I., b. December 21, 1721. In those early days of our country a journey from Newport to Philadelphia was a momentous event, and family tradition informs us that an elderly gentleman who had accompanied William Buckley to Newport, brought the bride home in his tandem, while the groom rode alongside on horseback. After their marriage William and Ruth Buckley settled at Bristol, and he engaged in the milling business of the place; was Chief Burgess from September 12, 1747, to 1754, and a Justice for Bucks Co., June 9, 1752, to 1757, and it is complained in the latter year that he "refuses to give an oath." The Buckley House, a stone structure on the banks of the Delaware River, was inherited by him, and there is still a Buckley Street in the town. The house was burned a number of years ago, and the present water-tower is on its site. During the American Revolution it was used as a hospital for soldiers. In the year 1759 he entered into a partnership with Reese Meredith, of Philadelphia, and while assisting in taking an account of their stock, which was very large, he was seized with pleurisy, the effect of over-exertion and exposure, and d. in Philadelphia, March 3d, of the same year. (His will recorded liber L, fo. 238.) His wife d. at Bristol, August 20, 1780. Issue :

- i. PHINEAS, b. April 6, 1742, of whom presently.

 - ii. JAMES.
 - iii. SAMUEL B., m., October 14, 1821, SARAH H. —, who d. at Bridgeport, Conn., September 5, 1886, her husband having died before her.

¹ Thomas Leach was the son of Thomas and Ann Leach, of Chertsey, in the Co. of Surrey, England; was b. July 16, 1682, serving an apprenticeship in London. He removed to Newport, R. I., arriving November 23, 1706. He m., May 5, 1709, Sarah, dau. of Thomas and Mary Fry, b. December 23, 1685; d. at Bristol, Penn., March 31, 1755. The arms engraved are from a book-plate, not certainly his.

- xi. ELIAS, b. May 22, 1757; d. April 14, 1760.
 xii. xiii. JOSHUA and MARY, twins, b. May 10, 1758, and d. the same year.

PHINEAS, eldest son of William and Ruth (Leach) Buckley, was born at Bristol, April 17, 1742. Having no children of their own, his father's uncle and aunt, Ennion and Elizabeth Williams, adopted him. An interesting memorial of this connection is now in the possession of his great grandson, the compiler of this history. It is a copy of Cranmer's Bible, printed in 1566, given Phineas Buckley by his adopted father, and containing the autographs of its various possessors, beginning with Ennion Williams's father,¹ of the same name, in 1702, and having pasted inside of one cover the original certificate of marriage between Ennion Williams and his first wife, Mary Hugg, dated 21st of second month, 1726. There are also the autographs of Roger Bradbury, 1700 (q. v.), and of Jo. Grayson and Jo. Grayson, Jr., whom I have not identified.

Phineas Buckley was carefully educated by his adopted parents in the principles of the Society of Friends, and led a quiet, regular life in accordance therewith. He was Chief Burgess of Bristol, September 24, 1765, and until 1775; and during the Revolution he remained loyal to the mother country, it being noted in 1775 that Phineas Buckley and one servant were non-associators. June 27, 1765, the meeting gave its consent, and in December, 1765, he m. MARY ANNA, dau. of William and Mary Rodman, of Bristol. She only lived six months after her marriage, dying of consumption.

He m., second, May 12, 1768, at Friends' Meeting-House in Wilmington, Del.,² MARY, dau. of Thomas and Mary (Marriott) Shipley, of Brandywine (q. v.). She d. very suddenly in New York (whither her husband had removed), October 29, 1795. He survived her thirty-one years, dying in Philadelphia, at the house of his son-in-law, Peter Thomson, November 21, 1826. Issue by his second wife :

- i. ENNION WILLIAMS, b. October 22, 1769, named for his father's great-uncle, ENNION WILLIAMS, Jr., who d. February 25, 1780, in the eighty-fifth year of his age. Ennion Buckley d. April 2, 1775.
 ii. THOMAS, b. January 29, 1771, of whom presently.

¹ Ennion Williams, Sr., was a cooper and baker; he probably built the Buckley House, and there is a legend that he laid the foundation of his fortune by the discovery of an iron pot of gold coins when digging the foundations (Davis's Bucks County, 345).

² It is said that the first umbrella seen in Wilmington was carried over the head of Mary Shipley as she walked to her marriage. It was spoken of as "a green silk canopy."

- iii. ELIZABETH WILLIAMS, b. May 10, 1773; m., first, in May, 1796.

- x. PHINEAS WILLIAM, b. October 20, 1791; d. u. at New Orleans, April 29, 1827.

THOMAS, second son of Phineas and Mary (Shipley) Buckley, was b. at Bristol, Pa., January 29, 1771. He removed to New York, August 15, 1790, probably beginning his business life as a dealer in the flour manufactured by the Brandywine Mills of his mother's family near Wilmington. At the beginning of the century his firm, Buckley & Abbot, is noted as a large operator in flour and grain and interested in shipping. In 1800 Mr. Buckley's ship Ariel was captured by the French. In 1809, with his brothers-in-law, John B. Lawrence and Jacob Schieffelin, he bought a large tract of land at Manhattanville. Following the fashion of the day he built¹ himself a country-seat there, on a commanding site above the Hudson River, in the centre of a plot of fifteen acres, bounded now by Riverside Drive and the Boulevard, and 124th and 128th Streets. This he called Lycoming Villa, because the purchase-money came from the sale of land in Lycoming Co., Penn. In 1839 he sold the property to Daniel F. Tieman, and in 1895 the house was torn down. In 1815, after the severe losses of the War of 1812, he was taxed on a personal estate of $20,000. He took an active part in city affairs, mercantile and benevolent, and was called to many posi-

ETHEL EASTMAN, b. May 2, 1870.

EASTMAN JOHNSON was b. July 29, 1834, in the little town of Lovell, near Fryeburg, in Maine. His father was an officer in the employ of the United States Treasury Department. The son was first known to fame as a crayon limner, being so successful in that art that in a few years he was enabled to visit Europe. There he commenced an earnest system of study and began to practise in oil; at Dusseldorf he remained two years, and then started for Italy, stopping to examine the galleries in Holland. At The Hague he fell in with Mignot, and tarried there ostensibly to copy a remarkable picture in the Royal Collection. His stay lasted four years. He met with flattering success in portraiture, painting many of the wealthy citizens and nearly all of the maids of honor. At The Hague he also painted his first pictures in oil. On his return to the United States he turned his attention with great success to native subjects, "and no one of our painters," says Henry Tuckerman in his "Book of the Artists," "has more truly caught and perfectly delineated the American rustic and negro, or with such pathetic and natural emphasis put upon canvas bits of household and childish life, or given such bright and real glimpses of primitive human nature." A more recent critic declares that "he always strikes the note which finds a responsive echo in the hearts of the masses." Probably no American artist has painted the portraits of so many men of prominence. In 1860 he was elected a member of the National Academy.

CAREY

JAMES CAREY, b. in Baltimore, February 22, 1751–52, was actively engaged in the shipping business and as an importer, and accumulated a considerable fortune. A member of the Society of Friends he was interested in the welfare of the negroes, and one of the organizers and first Vice-president of the Maryland "Society for Promoting the Abolition of Slavery and the Relief of Free Negroes and Others unlawfully held in Bondage." This was the fourth in the United States and the sixth in the world at its organization, September 8, 1798. The town of Baltimore became a city December 31, 1796. He was chosen at the first election under its charter on January, 1797, one of the two Councilmen to represent the First Ward, and held office for a second term. At the November, 1790, session of the Legislature a charter for a bank at Baltimore, under the style of the Bank of Maryland, was granted, and Messrs. James Carey, William Patterson, Robert Gilmor, Thomas Hollingsworth, James Edwards, and Otho H. Williams were appointed a committee to receive subscriptions to its stock, and in two weeks $200,000, being two-thirds of the total capital, was subscribed. Mr. Carey served as a director of the Bank from 1792 until 1817, when he became its President. The Bank was eminently successful, and did a large and conservative business. At the time of his resignation of the presidency, on account of advancing years, it was the principal and most prosperous financial institution in the State.

CHEW OF BLACKBURN, LANCASHIRE

THE Chew family was an ancient freeholding family in that portion of Billington vill, described in charters as the manor of Cho, allied by marriage to the De Bilyngtons, lords of the manor. By an undated deed of the thirteenth century Adam de Bilyngton gave to Henry, son of Hugh del Cho and Avicia, his wife, dau. of the grantor, land which Henry and Hugh his father, and their ancestors, had held of the grantor's family. It is now called the Castle Holme, and is the supposed site of a Saxon manor house. Henry was father of Richard del Cho, who about 1240 granted land to Beatrice de Blackburn, and a little later was seated at Cho Bank, and had a brother, Thomas, to whom his father gave lands called the Halgh Billington.

William Choo, of Billington, lived between 1400-1500; d. before 1523, when "uxor William Chew" was taxed for a royal subsidy. CHEW, OF MARYLAND AND PENNSYLVANIA

IN the Roll's publication, "Materials for a History of English Wars in France under Henry VI.," mention is made of the Serjeantry of Cheux, in Normandy. "Chewton" is a township in the County of Somersetshire. Chew Magna, Chew Stoke, and Chew Mendip are villages in Chewton. At Chew Magna is Chew Court, the manorial mansion. There, also, is the ancient Church of S. Stephen's, commonly called "Chew Church." A few miles farther south is the ruin, Chew Priory, established under royal charter granted in the fourteenth century by Edward the Third, in which charter order was given that the Vicar of Chew should pay an annual stipend for the maintenance of this Priory. The arms ascribed to Chew (in Burke's "General Armory," 1847) are: Azure, a catherine wheel, or, between three griffins' heads erased, argent. Crest: A griffin sejant argent gutte'e de sang; beaked, legged, and winged sable, reposing his dexter foot on a catherine wheel gules. Granted, September 15, 1703, to William Chew, of Bedfordshire and London, and there was living recently a George Chew, chief of the Income-Tax Bureau, Internal Revenue Department, Somerset House, London, who had a family seat in Bedfordshire. An application for his pedigree remains unanswered. The arms engraved are to be found on a seal ring used by Dr. Samuel Chew, Chief-Justice of Newcastle, Sussex and Kent Counties, Penna. (now Delaware), at about the same date as the grant of arms in England. Herald's College, London, reported to the late Mr. Samuel Chew, of Germantown, Pa., that "In a miscellaneous collection of arms is the following entry, evidently written about two hundred and fifty years ago; CHEW, ARG., A CHEVRON SABLE, ON A CHIEF AZURE, 3 LEOPARDS FACES OR." "It is therefore evident that the arms used by your ancestors [in America] (with some difference in the colors) are the same as those borne by the family in England." May 10, 1639, John Chewe, late his Majesty's post at Bewdley, Worcestershire, England, petitions the Council, stating at his entrance into said place he paid £100, and has been at continual charge to keep men and horses to perform the service which has obliged him to sell his lands and estate. Is behind in his pay £471, 4s., and is indebted. Is upward of ninety years of age, with many children and grandchildren. Prays he may receive relief or his creditors will cast him into prison.

BEWDLEY, WORCESTERSHIRE
From an Old Engraving

January 17, 1639-40, his will was proved as John Chewe, Gentleman, in which he speaks of his daughters Dyna, wife of Thomas Berkham; Susan, wife of John Leland; Hester, wife of Edmond Duncombe, and Sarah, wife of John Eldridge. "His loving son, John Chewe," to whom he leaves £5, and names first, and his son Samuel, whom he makes his executor and principal heir. It would seem from this will that John was his eldest son and was provided for, and had no need to share the inheritance, for there is nothing to show that his father was offended with him. It is therefore possible, though still unproved, that he was the John Chewe, of Virginia, ancestor of the family in America.

JOHN CHEWE, with three servants, in 1622, came to Virginia in the Charitie, and landed at Hogg's Island, opposite Jamestown. His wife, SARAH, followed him in the Seafloure the next year. Evidently he was a man of some substance, building a house in "James Citie," at once, and styled in the grant of land made to him in 1623, "John Chewe, Merchant." A deed of 1624 granted him "for the better conveniencie and comodotie of his new house," a rood and nine perches of land lying about it. He was a Burgess from Hogg's Island, in 1623, 1624-29, Agent, managing the business of Robert Benet in James City in November, 1622. Governor Harvey, in 1625, calls him one "of the ablest merchants in Virginia." He was commissioned at some time a Colonel of the Provincial Forces, and was a Burgess from York Co., 1642-43-44. A justice of the same Co., 1634 to 1652. In 1651, in view of his intended marriage to Mrs. Rachel Constable, he makes a deed for certain land recorded in that county. In 1668 he appears to be deceased.

His descendant, Joseph Chew, of Montreal, Secretary for Indian Affairs, writing to his cousin, Joseph Chew, of Connecticut, September 28, 1797, states that about 1643 (1653?) he removed to Maryland, notwithstanding Governor Sir William Berkeley, of Virginia, who had a particular regard for him, endeavoured to dissuade him from doing so in letters which the writer declares he had seen among the family papers. He appears to have had two sons, Samuel and Joseph.

JOSEPH, supposed the younger, who was living in York Co., Va., in 1659, may have been the Joseph Chew appointed a Justice of Newcastle on the Delaware, in November, 1674. He m., November 17, 1685, at the house of Ann Chew, in Herring Creek, Md.,¹ MARY SMITH, and d. in the same province, February 12, 1715-16. He is also said to have married a Miss LARKIN, of Annapolis, and to have had by her a son, LARKIN CHEW (q. v.). Comparing these dates with those of his brother Samuel and his children there would appear to be a discrepancy suggesting that this Joseph Chew was probably a nephew and not a brother of Samuel, but there are no records to decide the question.²

SAMUEL CHEW was residing in Maryland as early as 1648, though in Virginia in 1657. In 1659 he was a member of the Maryland House of Burgesses as Samuel Chew, Gent.; December 17, 1669, he was sworn one of the Justices of the Provincial Court and the Court of Chancery as Samuel Chew, Esq.; July 28, 1669, had been commissioned a member of the Governor's Council; sworn in October 22, 1669, and remained as such until his death. He was a prominent member of the provincial government, described the year before his death as "Colonel Samuel Chew, Chancellor and Secretary," a tobacco planter and possessed of land and considerable wealth. He resided at Herring Bay, calling himself

July 24, 1776, the soldiers of his company make complaint against him to the Committee of Safety,¹ accusing him of saying, "no poor man was entitled to a vote, and those that would insist upon voting should be put to death." They accuse his brother Samuel of saying "that a poor man was not born to freedom, but to be a drudge on earth." Evidently some of the Revolutionaries did not sympathize with Jefferson's Declaration.

SAMUEL, only son of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Benson) Chew, b. October 30, 1693, was a physician by profession, signed his name Samuel Chew, of "Maidstone," a plantation of three hundred and fifty acres on the west side of Herring Creek Bay, near Annapolis. He removed, with his second wife, to Dover, on the Delaware, where he had a residence, standing a few years ago, and a plantation some three miles out of town. He was a man of strong character, and obtained great influence in his new home. In 1741 Lieutenant-Governor Thomas appointed him Chief-Justice of the three Lower Counties—Newcastle, Sussex, and Kent—now part of Delaware, but then belonging to the province of Pennsylvania. His first charge to the Grand Jury, in which he set forth the lawfulness of self-defence against an armed enemy, and the duty of every citizen to give money and personal service in the war against Spain, gave great offence to the Quakers. Having a majority in the Assembly of Pennsylvania, they had rejected a bill to put the province in a state of defence. In the Assembly of the Lower Counties a militia law was passed over their votes, and Chew, sustaining it in his charge, they expelled him from the Society. The Chief-Justice replied to the excommunication publicly in a second speech to the Grand Jury, and in an indignant protest printed in the Gazette. These publications had great influence among the Quakers and materially aided the government. As a local poet declared :

" Immortal Chew first set our Quakers right,
He made it plain they might resist and fight,
And gravest Dons agreed to what he said
And freely gave their cash for the king's aid,
For war successful, or for peace and trade."

BENJAMIN, eldest son of Dr. Samuel and Mary (Galloway) Chew, b. at West River, November 29, 1722, apparently kept his birthright membership of the Society of Friends until after his second marriage, when his children by his first wife were baptized, together with their next brother, Benjamin, in 1758. He studied law under Andrew Hamilton, of Philadelphia, and after his death, in 1741, went abroad and entered the Middle Temple, Inns of Court, London, having as a fellow-student Sir William Blackstone. He returned to America at his father's death, and was admitted to the bar in 1746. Began to practise law at Dover. In 1751 was a member of the Boundary Commission on the part of the Lower Counties. Was Speaker of the Lower House of the three counties, 1753-58. Removed to Philadelphia about 1754, and January 14, 1755, became Attorney-General of the Province, holding this office until 1769. Recorder of the City of Philadelphia, August 29, 1755, to June 25, 1774 ; Master of the Rolls, August 29, 1755 ; and November 2d, of the same year, appointed a member of the Provincial Council, which office he held until the Revolution. He was one of the Commissioners to put the city in a state of defence against an expected war with Spain in 1761 ; was appointed Register-General of Wills, August 15, 1765, which he held until a change of the system of administration by Act of March 14, 1777. April 29, 1774, succeeded William Allen as Chief-Justice of the province of Pennsylvania. Like other leading men in the colonies he sympathized with the first movements of the Revolution ; signed the non-importation agreement of 1763, and is reported to have told a Grand Jury that "submission to the mandate of the King or his ministers when they exceed their constitutional authority is treason." But he was not prepared to go the length of rebellion and open war against the sovereign to whom he had sworn allegiance, and took no part in the subsequent proceedings of the Revolutionary party. He was naturally an object of suspicion to them, and in 1777 was arrested, with his friend John Penn, the Proprietary; but when other Philadelphia Friends were sent to Virginia, they were allowed to retire to his property, Union Forge, N. J., on parole, and the next year released from arrest. October 3, 1791, he was appointed Judge and October 4 President of the High Court of Errors and Appeals of Pennsylvania, holding this position until the Court was abolished in 1808. On coming to Philadelphia he resided on Front Street, above Dock, until he bought, May 3, 1771, from Charles Willing, the house on Third Street, below Willing's Alley, he built for his son-in-law, Colonel Byrd. About 1761 he built his country-seat, "Cliveden," at Germantown. During his exile the battle of Germantown was fought around his house, which was occupied by a detachment of British troops. Historians generally consider the delay caused by attempting to take the Chew house was the occasion of the American defeat, though later researches would seem to lessen the importance of the attack, and show the battle was lost independently of it. General Henry Knox is usually said to have opposed leaving a fortified place in the rear of the army in its advance. Colonel Pickering differed from him, but was overruled, while some authorities make General Joseph Reed responsible for the error. The traces of the attack have been preserved and are still shown to the visitor, including a discoloration on the wall of one chamber, shaped like a human profile, which is reported to be the mark left by a British officer's head struck off by a cannon-ball. Probably on account of the injuries sustained in the battle the Chief-Justice sold the house, in the fall of 1779, to Blair McClenachan, for £2,500, repurchasing it in April, 1797, for £8,500. He m., first, June 13, 1747, MARY, dau. of John and Mary (Thomas) Galloway, who d. November 9, 1755, and was buried at Christ Church, Philadelphia. Issue :

JOSEPH, eldest son of Andrew and Ann (Bye) Ellicott, b. October 8, 1732; was Sheriff of Bucks Co. in 1768-69. In 1771 he followed his brother, John, to Maryland, and with their other brother, Andrew, bought water rights and land on the Patapsco River, about ten miles west of Baltimore, where Ellicott City now stands. By 1774 they had completed their first flour-mill, which was burned in 1809. In 1783, their trade increasing, they bought their first water lot in the town of Baltimore, and built a wharf at the corner of Pratt and Light Streets, in order to export their flour to England.

They, and their family after them, carried on an extensive milling business for a number of years, and were largely interested in the early progress of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and other works of public utility. In 1837 the mill property was sold to Colonel Charles Carroll, and in 1844 the firm became Charles A. Gambrill & Co.

JOSEPH, b. about 1730, the celebrated Loyalist, a member of the Assembly of Pennsylvania in 1757 and almost continuously till the Revolution, a leader against the Proprietaries, Speaker of the House, 1766-74; Delegate to the first Continental Congress, proposed a scheme for the government of the colonies by a Federal system, preserving the connection with the Mother Country, which, if adopted, would have averted the Revolution, and possibly not a few other evils from which America suffers. It was rejected by the close vote of six colonies to five, the prime agents in the agitation seeing no hope of their advancement except by a separation from England. After this Mr. Galloway withdrew from Congress, refused Benjamin Franklin's entreaty that he would join the Revolutionists, and in 1776 went for his personal safety within the British lines. During their occupation of Philadelphia he was at the head of the civil government, and the October following their evacuation of the city he went to England. In June, 1779, he was examined before a committee of the House of Commons on the state of affairs in America, and his evidence has been printed. March 6, 1778, the Assembly of Pennsylvania attainted him of high treason, and confiscated his estate, worth over £40,000. In 1802 and 1803 he published Commentaries on the Book of Revelation, showing great ingenuity and ability in his scheme of prophecy. October 18, 1753, he had m. GRACE, dau. and co-h. of Lawrence Growdon, Councillor of Pennsylvania, and his wife, Elizabeth Nicholls. Gerald de Barri describes him as "a man with reddish hair and freckled face, bright gray eyes, delicate, even feminine features, a high voice, and a short neck, stature above the average. Freehanded, and mild of disposition. What exertion could not effect he obtained by suavity of speech. In private life more ready to be led by others than to lead. In war rather a tactician than a fighter. If supported by advice he would dare anything, but he never relied on his own judgment in ordering an attack, nor staked all on mere personal valour. During an engagement where his standard waved was ever a firm rallying point or a safe refuge for his men. In victory or defeat he displayed the same equanimity, the same unwavering purpose." OWEN GLENDOWER, Glyndyrdy or Glendourdy, as he wrote it himself, the eldest son and heir, was b. May 28, 1359. He received a liberal education, went to London, entered one of the Inns of court and became a Barrister, but left the profession of the law for arms. He was a witness in the Scrope and Grosvenor Controversy, September 3, 1386, and squire of the body to Richard II.; knighted by him in 1387, and was one of his attendants when he was seized at Flint Castle August 20, 1399, but was allowed to return to his home, Sychart, near Corwen.

Lord Grey, of Ruthin, one of the Lords marchers, presuming on his influence as a zealous Lancastrian, seized some lands of Glendower's. Owen's appeal to Parliament was disregarded, and Grey obtained the grant of a further portion of his estate, but was himself captured in attempting to take possession. The Welsh were in arms and called upon Owen as the great-grandson and heir of Llewelyn, the last native prince, to lead them. This he did with vigor and success. In his first incursion into England he defeated and made prisoner Sir Edmund Mortimer, uncle of the Earl of March, Yorkist heir of the English throne. He captured many strong castles in the marches—Conway, Ruthin, Radnor, and Oswestry—and soon formally assumed the title of Prince of Wales, was crowned at Machynlleth, and entered into a treaty with the Mortimers and Percys, having for its object the overthrow of Henry IV.

This alliance was dissolved by the battle of Shrewsbury; but Glendower maintained the contest. He repelled three formidable armies led by Henry in person, and captured many of the most considerable "English" towns and castles in Wales. Though he was attainted and proclaimed an outlaw by the English Parliament in 1403, he exercised the rights of sovereignty in Wales, expelled bishops and appointed others, and was recognized as prince by the King of France, Charles VI., who made a formal alliance with him, June 14, 1404, and sent troops to his assistance. With them he marched as far as Worcester, and though Henry of Monmouth had some success against him he failed to effect his subjugation. Several years after, when he was about to embark on his invasion of France, unwilling to leave so active an enemy behind him, he began negotiations with Glendower, looking toward a peace. While they were in progress Owen died at Monnington, in Herefordshire, September 20, 1415, having for fifteen years kept up his struggle against England.

JAMES AP GRIFFITH

A SISTER of Sir Rhys ap Thomas, K.G., m. Griffith ap Howell, and had issue : James, who in his exile assumed the name of Robert Brampton or Brancetour. In 1516 we find him, through the influence of his uncle, a Gentleman Usher of the Royal Household.

After the death of Sir Rhys he seems to have returned to Wales and resided there, probably in some office under his cousin, Rice ap Griffith. After the arrest of Rice, James ap Griffith held out for some time against the King's officers, and we find Henry VIII. addressing a special warrant to Lord Ferrars as Justice in South Wales, dated October 7, 1531, directing the arrest of James ap Griffith ap Howell, who had fortified himself in the Castle of Emlyn.¹ This was accordingly done, and he was imprisoned in the Tower of London. From this he escaped some time in 1533, and going to Wales, collected a few of the old servants of his House, and taking his wife and daughter went to Scotland. July 2, 1533, Lord Dacre writes to the King that a gentleman of Wailes, his wife and eight persons with them, were landed at St. Ninian's, in Scotland, and that he was uncle to Ryse, of Wailes. In reply, Dacre and Wharton, Henry's agents, were ordered to watch him. A later letter says he had a daughter with him, and named himself Ryse, and that the party was well favorably arrayed and appointed. He was ordered to a castle S. W. of Edinburgh, and visited there by King James. Afterwards he came to Edinburgh and was much resorted to by the Courtiers, but had no audience of the King. Finally went to the Emperor, and is noticed as being at Antwerp in December, 1533, and at Lubeck in the following May. After this we hear nothing of him until 1539, when he appears in Paris in the train of Charles V. Henry at once instructed his Ambassador, Sir Thomas Wyatt, to demand his arrest. Wyatt informed the Constable Montmorency that he was an English subject who had robbed his Master and afterwards conspired against the King, had him watched to his lodgings by a spy, and in December, 1539, taking with him a Provost Marshal's guard, surrounded the house at night. Wyatt entered Griffith's room where he sat writing at a table. He says in his report to the King that "Brancetour's colour changed as soon as he heard my voice; and with that came in the Provost and set hand on him. I reached to the letters he was writing, but he caught them afore me and flung them backwards into the fire. I overthrew him and cracked them out; but the Provost got them." Upon this Brancetour declared himself the Emperor's servant, and taking other papers from his pocket placed them in the Provost's hands. The Provost, leaving a guard with Wyatt and Brancetour, went to the Chancellor for instructions. Wyatt then attempted to persuade the prisoner to submit to him, but he made the Emperor his master and refused. "Once he told me," says Wyatt, "that he had heard me oft times say that kings have long hands; but God, quoth he, hath longer." The Provost, returning, took charge of Brancetour till the morning. After breakfast the next day, Wyatt saw Cardinal Granvelle and the Chancellor, and finally the matter was referred to the Emperor. He was extremely angry. The man, he said, "was his servant, and had been in Perse, and had followed him in all his viages in Affrica, in Province, in Italy and France these ten or twelve years past." Wyatt answered that Brancetour was his master's subject, and had of his own knowledge committed treason in Spain, and insisted that he should be surrendered in accordance with previous treaties in regard to persons guilty of treason. The Emperor cared nothing for treaties, Brancetour was his servant and should go free, and Wyatt was compelled to let him do so. Griffith returned to Germany in the train of the Emperor, and we next hear of him in a letter written by Sir Thomas Seymour at the siege of Buda, August 8, 1542, who says "there lately came to Vienna James Griffith up Powell, who calls himself Robert Brampton, and hath a letter from the Pope to the King of Hungary, to be captain of two hundred howshereres or light horse of Hungary." May 6, 1549, Cardinal Pole writes to Bishop Ceneda, Papal Envoy in France, recommending Captain Griffith, who, with Dr. Hilliard, were the Cardinal's Envoys to the Protector of England. This appears to be the last mention of his name in the English state papers. Evidently he was an active emissary of the Pope in his attempts to regain England. More fortunate than Fathers Campian, Parsons, and Garnet, he seems, in spite of the vigilance of King Henry's officers, to have escaped his vengeance.

JOHNS, second son of Samuel and Hannah (Janney) Hopkins, b. May 19, 1795, began his career in Baltimore as a clerk. With his uncles' assistance he branched out in business for himself, and entered upon a career of money-making that monopolized all his time and energy. He became the financial authority of the city; furnishing capital for its business. Close in his dealings, indifferent in his dress, and curt in his manner, he was a man of undoubted breadth of mind and soundness of judgment; and although he is largely remembered in Baltimore for his parsimony, he did much good in a charitable way that the public never knew of. He was an influential factor in the prosperity of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad during John W. Garrett's presidency, and it was his coolness that saved the banks of Baltimore in 1873. He d., December 24, 1873, leaving a fortune of upwards of $8,000,000, which he had accumulated by persistent thrift and judicious investment. Mr. Hopkins left about $1,000,000 to his relatives, and devoted the remainder of his great fortune to the establishment of a university and a hospital to bear his name. To the university he gave about $3,000,000 and his country-seat; to the hospital, which he intended to be the finest institution of its kind in the world, he gave more, the endowment being worth about $3,400,000, and including fourteen and a-half acres of ground on Broadway—a splendid elevation on one of the most beautiful thoroughfares of Baltimore.

The university was opened on October 3, 1876, with a corps of professors and associates of eminent attainments, and is already one of the chief seats of learning and culture in the country. By the provisions of the will, twenty free scholarships were founded, open to students from Maryland, Virginia, and North Carolina. The trustees have also founded ten fellowships for meritorious students, and five free scholarships open to candidates from any part of the country. The will also provided for Schools of Law, Medicine, and Agriculture, as parts of the University.

Mr. Hopkins in his will directed that the hospital should be for the "indigent sick of the city [Baltimore] and its environs, without regard to sex, age, or color." A home for convalescents will be built in the country, and an orphan asylum of large capacity, for colored children, will also be established, both being in connection with the same trust. The work on the hospital was begun in 1879 and it was opened on May 7, 1889, leaving two buildings yet to be erected, but these will not be begun until the hospital is in full operation and there is a demand for more room. On the buildings, including heating and ventilation, $1,570,000 have so far been spent, and the total expenditures upon buildings and grounds reach $2,050,000—or an average of $9,150 for each free bed. All this vast sum has been taken from the income, and the original endowment has not only remained untouched, but has been increased over $200,000.

THOMAS JOHNSON, a lawyer of Poole, near Garmouth, in England, m. MARY, dau. of Roger Baker, of Liverpool, and a ward in Chancery, and is said to have emigrated to Maryland about 1660. This date is evidently incorrect; it was about thirty years later that he settled in Calvert Co., in that State, and trafficked in furs with the Indians.

Early in the following century he attempted to return to England, and appears to have set sail in a vessel whose cargo represented his hard-earned fortune. The vessel was captured by the Spaniards, and he lost his all. After a long imprisonment he escaped, and returned to America in a Canadian vessel. From Canada he travelled on foot to his home in Maryland. The fatigue and hardships of the journey seriously injured his health, and in 1714, shortly after his return, he died. His wife died in a few months, leaving an only child, THOMAS, b. February 19, 1701-2.

In 1775 he erected powder-mills at the Catoctin Furnace. June 22, 1774, he was elected a Delegate to the Colonial Congress; and June 15, 1775, it was upon his motion that George Washington was made Commander-in-Chief of the Revolutionary Army. Being absent on account of illness, he did not sign the Declaration of Independence. While still a member of Congress, January 6, 1776, he was elected the first Brigadier of the Provincial Militia, and Commander of the Maryland Flying Camps. ELISHA KENT KANE, M.D., U. S. NAVY

From a Daguerreotype by Brady

KANE

JOHN KINTZING, son of Elisha and Alida (Van Rensselaer) Kane, was b. at Albany, N. Y., May 16, 1795. He was a graduate of Yale College, studied law with Judge Hopkinson, and was admitted to the Philadelphia Bar in 1817. Member of the Academy of Fine Arts; Member of the Musical Fund Society, and President of the latter, 1854-56; Vice-President of the Pennsylvania Institute for Blind; Member of the American Philosophical Society, 1825, and President of same; Member of the Pennsylvania Legislature; City Solicitor, 1828-30 and 1832; Attorney-General of Pennsylvania, 1844-46. In June, 1846, succeeded Judge Archibald Randall, as Judge of Admiralty of the United States District Court of Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

He m. JANE DUVAL, dau. of Thomas Leiper (q. v.), and d. February 21, 1858. Issue :

- i. DR. JOHN K., m. a sister of Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware.
- ii. ROBERT PATTERSON, of the Philadelphia Bar.
- iii. GENERAL THOMAS LEIPER, Colonel of the Forty-second Pennsylvania Volunteers in the Civil War.
- iv. ELIZABETH.
- v. DR. ELISHA KENT, b. February 3, 1820, of whom presently.

DR. ELISHA K. KANE was educated at the University of Virginia for the profession of a Civil Engineer, but was compelled to leave that Institution, in 1838, owing to a disease of the heart, from which he never fully recovered. The next year he began the study of medicine, at the University of Pennsylvania, and October 19, 1840, while still an undergraduate, and not of age, he was elected Resident Physician to the Pennsylvania Hospital. In May, 1843, having obtained the post of Surgeon in the United States Navy, he sailed in the frigate Brandywine, with Commodore Parker, as Physician to the Embassy to China. After the Embassy left, he remained six months in Whampoa, practising his profession. Between 1843 and 1846 he travelled extensively in the Philippines, Borneo, Sumatra, and India, passed through Persia, Egypt, and Syria, crossed Greece on foot, travelled on the Continent and in England, and returned to the United States in 1847. In May of that year he visited Africa, and afterward took part in the Mexican War. In these travels he met with numerous adventures, and displayed undaunted courage and persistence in his plans despite all obstacles. In 1850 he accompanied Lieutenant De Haven's Arctic Expedition as its Surgeon and Naturalist, publishing an account of the Expedition in 1854. In 1853, Mr. Henry Grinnell and Mr. George Peabody were instrumental in fitting out another Arctic expedition, to which Dr. Kane contributed his pay (about three thousand dollars), and the proceeds of Lectures which he delivered in 1852-53. He was appointed the Commander of the Expedition, which sailed from New York, May 30, 1853, in the Advance. The surviving officers and men returned October 11, 1855, having been compelled to abandon their vessel in the ice, and to travel with sledges and dogs for eighty-four days to the Danish settlements on the coast of Greenland, where they met Captain Hartstene, who had been sent to their relief. The story of the expedition was most graphically told by Dr. Kane in two volumes, published by Childs & Peterson, of Philadelphia, in 1856. Gold medals were awarded him by Congress, the Legislature of New York, and the Royal Geographical Society of London. His health again gave way, and after a visit to London he sailed for the West Indies, February 17, 1856. On the voyage he suffered a paralytic stroke, and d. at Havana, December 25th, of the same year.

THE earliest colonial notice of this name I find in Liber B, Maryland Archives, No. 2, folio 570, where is record of RICHARD LAWRENCE setting over to John Cage, on December 20, 1649, one hundred acres of land due him because he transported himself to the province about seven years since. LAWRENCE, OF CHELSEA, MIDDLESEX

THOMAS LAWRENCE, of London, d. October 28, 1594, is bu. with many of his family in the Lawrence Chapel, S. Luke's Church, Chelsea.

JOHN, his son was of Chelsea, and Delaford, in Iver, Bucks; created a Baronet October 9, 1628; m. GRISSELL, dan. and co h. of Gervase Gibbon, of Benenden, in Kent, and was bu. November 13, 1638, aged fifty. His grandson, the third Baronet, was SIR THOMAS LAWRENCE, who was Secretary of the Colony of Maryland. September 20, 1698, letters appointing Sir Thomas Lawrence Baronet revoked and Thomas Lawrence, Esq., appointed during pleasure. This was his son, who d. April 14, 1701, and July 11th his father was reappointed Secretary of the Province. The colonial records show that his position was made a very trying one by the local authorities, every possible objection being raised to his claims. He returned to England and was bu. at Chelsea, April 25, 1714. He m. ANNE, dan. of Mrs. E. English, who was bu. at Chelsea in 1710. Issue: Anne, bapt. there May 4, 1675, and John, bapt. there November 5, 1676. ANNE LADY LAWRENCE was bu. at Chelsea November 2, 1723. John, heir apparent of Sir Thomas and Anne, his wife, sold an estate at Chelsea, March 26, 1706; his wife, Elizabeth, was bu. there

RESIDENCE OF SIR JOHN LAWRENCE
LORD-MAYOR OF LONDON, 1665

August 7, 1701, but the Secretary Baronet appears to have left but small estate, and the family¹ disappears from notice in this generation.

SIR JOHN LAWRENCE, Knt., of S. Helen's, Bishopsgate Street, London, was of Dutch extraction, despite the shields with the cross raguly which are seen on his house. He claimed connection with the Chelsea family, was Lord Mayor of London in 1665, and accumulated a large fortune. His dau., MARTHA, m. SIR STEPHEN ANDERSON, of Eyworth, Bedfordshire, in 1673.

A certain SIR OLIVER LAWRENCE bought Crick Grange, in Steple Parish, Dorset, in 1540; m. ANNE, sister of Henry Wriothesley, Earl of Southampton; had two sons:

- i. EDWARD, m., first, ALICE, dau. of Thomas Trenchard; m., second, JOYCE HUDLESTONE.
- ii. AUGUSTINE, m. ANNE, dau. of Francis Kelwaye.

(For this family see Harleian MS., 1451, and the Visitations of Dorset, in 1565 and 1623.)

Another family was of Cirencester, Gloucestershire, descended from DR. WILLIAM LAWRENCE, b. September 11, 1753, son of William Lawrence, of Burford, Oxfordshire, represented now by SIR JAMES JOHN TREVOR LAWRENCE, Bart., b. December 30, 1831, son of William Lawrence, a distinguished surgeon, author of "Lectures on the Physiology, etc., of Man," 1819, and other works; President of the College of Surgeons, 1846-55; created a Baronet, April 30, 1867. (See the Dictionary of National Biography and the Baronetages.)

LAWRENCE, OF LANCASHIRE, ENGLAND

JAMES LAWRENCE, living 37 Henry III. (1252), by some called son of Sir Robert Lawrence; m. MATILDA, dau. and heiress of John de Washington, of Washington, Lancashire. Issue :

JOHN, living in 1283; m. MARGARET, dau. of Walter de Chesford. Issue :

- i. JOHN, presented to the Church at Washington in 1326; m. ELIZABETH HOLTE, of Stabley, Lancashire, and d. 1360. From him most of the English families of the name claim to be descended through a supposed son, Robert.
- ii. WILLIAM, of whom presently.

WILLIAM, son of John and Margaret (de Chesford) Lawrence, was probably the William Lawrence who held in 1311 lands at Ashton, on the Ribble, near Preston, in right of his wife, who was a dau. and co-h. of Heydock, or Eyedock, of Haydock, in the same county. This seems to dispose of the crusading Sir Robert Laurens, of Ashton Hall, making the property come to the Lawrence family by this marriage. William Lawrence was a Burgess in Parliament, 1326, and living in 1341. His son, JOHN, succeeded him in his estate in 1368. His inquisition in 1399 reads : John, son of William Lawrence, dec. 1368, "feoffavit Laurencium de Myerch cap. .de omnibus terris suis in Ribbleton, Ashton, Preston, Laton et Thorn- ton. idem Johannes obiit die ante Ascensionem 1398." WILLIAM, his son and heir, aged eighteen years; mother, Margaret. In 1344 another WILLIAM DE LAWRENCE was seneschal of Henry, Earl of Lancaster, Steward of Blackburnshire, 1351-54. He m. ALICE, dau. of Sir Nicholas de Stapylton, by Sybil, dau. of Sir John de Bella Aqua and Laderine, who was dau. of Peter Brus, of Skelton, and Helwyse de Lancaster. William and Alice (Stapylton) Lawrence had a son and heir, SIR EDMUND, who m. MARY —. Had a manor "ex dimisione" from his grandfather, Sir Nicholas de Stapylton, and was summoned to a Parliament at Westminster, in 1362, about the affairs of Ireland, as one of the heirs of Camville holding land in Ireland. As he was not again summoned, it is held that no barony was created by this writ. His heir, apparently, was Sir Robert Lawrence, of Ashton Hall, Escheator of Lancashire in 1403; Sheriff of Lancashire, 1407 and 1420; proved his arms, 1419, 1427, 1429; d. 18th Henry VI. (1440).

According to Harleian MS. No. 6, 159, a copy of the Visitation of Lancashire in 1567 with additional pedigrees, he was the son of Edmund Lawrence, and had brothers James and William, who both d. s. p.

The best supported version of this pedigree as revised by the Rev. R. Gwynne Lawrence, with corrections from my own researches, is as follows :

SIR ROBERT LAWRENCE aforesaid, who may have been Robert Lawrence, Esq., who, with two men at arms and six foot archers, was of the retinue of King Henry V., in 1417 (see Nicholas's "Agincourt," p. 381), possibly m. MARGARET HOLDEN, of Lancashire. Issue :

- i. ROBERT, b. in 1400, of whom presently.
- ii. EDMUND, who had issue :
 - i. THOMAS, d. s. p.
 - ii. ROBERT.
 - iii. JOHN, father of John.
 - iv. NICHOLAS, d. s. p.
 - v. JAMES, d. s. p.
- iii. THOMAS (q. v.).

ROBERT, the eldest son of Sir Robert and Margaret (Holden) Lawrence, m. MARGARET, dau. of John Lawson or Lawrence, of Rixton or Raxton, and d. 1450. Issue :

- i. SIR JAMES, Knt., of Ashton, aged twenty-two at his father's inquisition, who d. 1490; m., first, CECILIA BOTILER; m., second, ELEONORA, dau. of Lord Welles and widow of Lord Hoo and Hastings (Lord Hoo d. 1455), by whom he had no issue; by his first wife he had:
 - i. SIR THOMAS, K.B., 1501, d. before 1513; his only son, John, d. s. p. abroad before his father. Some say a dau., Cecilia, m. William Gerard, ancestor of the Lords Gerard.
 - ii. SIR JOHN, m. but d. s. p. at Flodden in 1513, being the last male of the main line.
- ii. ROBERT, killed at Bosworth in 1485, leaving issue: only daughters (who were co-heiresses of their cousin, Sir John Lawrence of Ashton):
 - i. AGNES, m. — SKILLICORNE.
 - ii. MARGARET, m. JOHN RIGMAYDEN.
 - iii. ELIZABETH, m. — BUTLER, of Rawcliffe.
 - iv. ALICE, m. CUTHBERT CLYFTON, of Clifton.

THOMAS, third son of Sir Robert Lawrence, of Ashton Hall, m.
MABILLA, dau. and heiress of John Redmayne, of Yeland Redmayne. Issue:

- i. EDMUND, of whom presently.
- ii. JOHN, d. s. p.
- iii. WILLIAM, d. s. p.
- iv. ROBERT, d. s. p.
- v. RICHARD, d. s. p.
- vi. JAMES, d. s. p.
- vii. ELIZABETH, m. JOHN NAUSIER, and had a dau., AGNES; m. WILLIAM PRESTON.

EDMUND, the eldest son of Thomas and Mabilla (Redmayne) Lawrence, had issue at his death, 6th Henry VIII.: LANCELOT. LANCELOT LAWRENCE was heir male of the family and d. 26th Henry VIII., leaving issue: THOMAS; and SIR OLIVER, knighted at the Battle of Musselburg in 1547, d. s. p.; THOMAS, the eldest son, d. 35th Henry VIII., leaving an only son and heir, Robert, who m. Anne, dau. of Thomas Bradley, of Bradley, and d., in the second year of the reign of Philip and Mary, possessed of lands at Yeland Redmain, Dylake, Heysham, Myddleton, Bolton, Warton, Skirton Hutton, Flokborow, and Sylverdale in Lancashire. He left an only dau., Anne, aged ten at her father's inquisition, who was the sole heiress of the family, and m. Walter, third son of Sir John Sydenham, of Brampton, Co. Somerset. This seems to be the full history of the Lawrence family of Lancashire, though many pedigrees of doubtful authenticity will be found in print and manuscript, setting forth its later history and recording the great alliances the family has made. A writer in the European Magazine for 1796, vol. 29, page 275, calls the family cousins to Dudley, Duke of Northumberland, and to his rival, the Earl of Warwick, to Lord Guilford Dudley, Lady Jane Grey's hapless husband, to Leicester, and to Sir Philip Sidney, and therefore to "Sidney's sister, Pembroke's mother," celebrated by Ben Jonson, though some of these exalted claims need proving. An examination of the coats of arms used by nearly all of the name who have attained distinction will show that they claim descent from this Lancashire family. Among the more prominent of the name may be noted General Stringer Lawrence, b. at Hereford, England, in 1697, called the "Father of the Indian Army," whose skilful generalship in the last century expelled the French from India and laid the foundation of English rule in that country. Also the sons of Lieutenant-Colonel Alexander William Lawrence and Catherine Knox, who did so much to preserve it to the empire.

- i. SIR GEORGE ST. PATRICK, b. at Trincomalee, Ceylon, March 17, 1804; d. November 16, 1884.
- ii. SIR HENRY MONTGOMERY, b. at Madura, Ceylon, June 28, 1806; d. at Lucknow, July 4, 1857.
- iii. JOHN LAIRD MAIR, b. at Richmond, Yorkshire, March 24, 1811, created Lord Lawrence of the Punjab in 1869, Governor-General of India, 1863-69; d. June 27, 1879.

- Jo. Tuttell, aged one year.
- Joan Antrobus, aged sixty years (mother of Mrs. Tuttell).
- George Giddings, aged twenty-five years.
- Jane Giddings, aged twenty years (dau. of Mrs. Tuttell).

John Tuttell, b. 1596, was a freeman, March 13, 1639; Representative in 1644, when he was at Ipswich, Mass. Lieutenant in the Provincial forces, a member of the Artillery Company; probably had more children in America, as Simon and Mary. After a few years Savage says he went home and established himself to advantage in Ireland, whither, in 1654, his wife followed him. He d. December 30, 1656, at Carrickfergus, whence his widow writes in 1689 to George Giddings. There is little known of the New England life of the emigrant Lawrences. The sister, Marie, disappears from sight. The second brother, Thomas, came over at a later date. Landing at Plymouth first, they afterward removed to Ipswich, and at about 1644 appear to have gone to Long Island, John, possibly going first and his brothers following him.

JOHN, eldest son of Thomas and Joan (Antrobus) Lawrence, bapt. July 26, 1618; emigrated in 1635, in the Planter, to New England. He must have attained some eminence in the Massachusetts Colony before removing to New Amsterdam, as Governor Endicott writes, September 15, 1658, specially commending him. November 16, 1644, we find him as one of the original corporators of "The Great Plains" (afterward Hempstead, L. I.), and October 10, 1645, of Flushing. February 1, 1648, he is one of the committee asking that a minister shall be settled at Flushing. In 1658 removed to New Amsterdam and engaged in business there; July 23, of that year, the Council inquires concerning "goods removed from the house of Cornelis Steenwyck by John Laurens, an English merchant." He owned a small trading vessel called The Adventure, with which he traded up the Hudson to Albany and on both sides of Long Island. He was very successful in his affairs, became a Burgher of the city and gained the good-will of the Dutch. Governor Stuyvesant, speaking of him, June 10, 1664, as "well affected to the Dutch." May 29, 1664, he buys a negro for three hundred and forty-five florins. In October, 1663, with two others, is sent as a Commissioner to the General Assembly at Hartford, Conn. March 1, 1664-65, he is Attorney for Flushing in a boundary dispute. After the capture of the province by the English he is one of the first aldermen appointed, June 12, 1665, holding office until 1667, and again 1670-72, the latter year he is elected Mayor. August 18, 1673, "the Burgomasters and Schepens resolve that the mace, gowns, and city seal of the late Mayor, John Lawrence, be brought in, and the late Mayor reappearing delivers up his gown or cloak, with the city seal and mace." November 1, 1673, is one of three guardians of the estate of Richard Morris, brother of Colonel Lewis Morris. In the Dutch recapture of the city, in 1673, his house was not plundered. February 19, 1674, in a valuation of the best and most affluent inhabitants of New Amsterdam, John Lawrence has ten thousand florins, Holland currency, only ten others having as much or more. Is again Alderman of New York in 1680, and until 1684. September 29, 1683, he has at Flushing "1 male, 12 acres upland, 10 of meadows, 1 horse, 5 cowes, 6 young cattle, 1 pig, and is taxed 7 shills. 5d." The same year has at New-town "10 acres of lande, 4 cowes, and 3 three-year oldes." In 1674 is appointed a member of the Governor's Council. The same year he has, in New York City, a house of the first class, and property valued at $10,000, on the west side of Pearl Street, called the Water Side, between Wall and William Streets, and a house of the fourth class, and property valued at $1,500, on the west side of Pearl Street, between Franklin Square and Wall Street. In 1687 is Alderman of the East Ward of New York. August 20, 1689, appointed a Justice of the Peace for New York City. March 26, 1690, he is one of the Special Commission to try Jacob Leisler and his confederates after their unsuccessful revolution, and as such signs and seals Leisler's commitment. A facsimile of his signature will be found in General J. Grant Wilson's "Memorial History of New York." March 27, 1691, with Colonel Richard Townley, who had married his brother's widow, he is reappointed to the Governor's Council, and the same year is again Mayor of New York. April 20, 1693, he is one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the colony. September 28, 1698, Governor Bellomont writes that "he has suspended from the Council Colonel Bayard, Colonel Minvielle, Colonel Willet, and Mr. Lawrence, because they were always resty and perverse in everything that I proposed for the King's service, tho' such sycophants as to comply with Colonel Fletcher in all parts of his corrupt administration," while the third head of the bill of complaints against the Governor, dated March 11, 1700, declares that "upon frivolous pretences he suspended ten of the most considerable for estates and parts and experience in busynesse (Mr. Lawrence named amongst them) and placed six of the Leislerian faction in their room." October 21, 1698, as further excuse for his action the Governor writes he is superannuated, being eighty-two years of age. His will, proved January 7, 1698-99, recorded Liber 5, p. 346, names "his dau., Martha, widdow of Thomas Snowsell (deceased above seventeen years ago), his sons, John and Thomas, daughters, Martha as aforesaid, Susanna, wife of Gabriel Monvielle, his dau., Withingham's children, and his son Joseph's dau." and states that he was a patentee in Hempstead and Flushing and the only survivor in both. He has given to every one of his children a considerable part of his estate, they being all of full age and marriageable. Ends: "Soe I pray God Bless them as my children, & make them his children, by faith and love in Christ Jesus. Amen." His wife, Susanna and Gabriel Monvielle are executors. He m. SUSANNA —, who survived him. Issue :

- i. JOHN, in several papers called his eldest son, of whom presently.
- ii. JOSEPH, said to have d., leaving a dau., d. y. There is no trace of him outside the mention in his father's will.
- iii. THOMAS, may possibly be the Thomas Lawrence taxed at Flushing, October 9, 1675, on thirty-two acres, and is said to have d. u.
- iv. MARTHA, m. (License dated August 22, 1675) THOMAS SNOWSELL, who d. s. p., in 1682.
- v. SUSANNA, m., first (License, January 25, 1676-77), GABRIEL MINVIELLE, or MONVIELE, Mayor of New York and Member of the Governor's Council. Made his will March 8, 1697-98; proved, October 1, 1702. Executors, Robert Livingston and John Barbarie, his nephew. He leaves his wife,¹ "All his servants, household stuff, silver plate, gold chains, pearles, dyamonds, gold rings and other jewells;" the rest of the estate to his nephews and nieces. She m., second (by License, dated December 22, 1702), WILLIAM SMITH, Alderman of New York, and d. s. p.
- vi. MARY, m. WILLIAM WHITTINGHAME, graduated at Harvard University, in 1660, and had a dau. MARY, of some literary culture, a liberal benefactor of Harvard and Yale Colleges; m. GORDON SALTONSTALL, Governor of Connecticut, and d. in 1730. See a notice in Knapp's Female Biography, p. 453.

JOHN, eldest son of John and Susanna Lawrence, must have been born 1644, at latest, as in 1664 it is noted that John, son of John Lourens, English merchant and Burgher at the Manhattans, was sent to New England for provisions by Governor Stuyvesant, and brought back some three or four tons. In 1680 he was witness to a deed given by his aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Carteret, September 29th (possibly this may be his cousin of the same name). By marriage license dated November 20, 1682, he m. SARAH, dau. of Thomas Cornell, and widow successively of Thomas Willett, first English Mayor of New York (m., September 1, 1643), and Charles Bridges, by whom he appears to have had no issue. March 4, 1697-98, Will Book 5, p. 278, records that "John Lawrence, Esq., of his Majesty's Council, having a son non compos mentis, married, and has an estate at Jamaica, in Queen's Co.; his wife, lately deceased, is appointed guardian to his son's person and estate, by Governor Benjamin Fletcher." As late as 1712 he was still alive, and insane.

THOMAS, second son of Thomas and Joan (Antrobus) Lawrence, of S. Albans, England, was bapt. there March 8, 1619-20. He appears to have emigrated after the rest of the family, but the date is not known. The first notice I find speaks of him as being at New Haven, August 24, 1651, with money of Governor Stuyvesant's to which the New England authorities laid claim and arrested him. After his release he joins with his brothers in the patent of Middleburgh, afterward Newtown, L. I., in 1655, and appears to have settled there; on July 10, 1662, being owner of two lots. August 23, 1665, he receives license, as Captain Thomas Lawrence, to purchase of the Indians "Round Island near Helgate," about eight or nine acres of land. This purchase is disputed by William Hallett, in 1667, but confirmed by the Governor. March 14, 1669-70, he is one of the road surveyors at Newtown.

In September, 1675, he has at Newtown forty acres of land, 2 horses, 4 oxen, 8 cows, 12 younger cattle and 8 swine. Three years later he has 4 persons, forty acres, 10 horses, 2 oxen, 8 cows, 22 younger cattle, 20 sheep and 12 swine. December, 1677, he has a patent of Anneke Jans's farm on Hellgate Neck. February 16, 1689-90 he is spoken of as Major Thomas Lawrence of Queen's County, on December 24th, of that year, having been commissioned by Jacob Leisler as Major of horse for the Co. This branch of the family adhered to the cause of Leisler. William Lawrence was one of the Committee of Safety. John and Daniel had commissions in the Co. militia from the rebel governor. His first wife's name is unknown. November 9, 1692, Thomas Lawrence, widower, of Newtown, has a license to marry Mary Ferguson. His will was made February 5, 1703; proved, April 25, 1703 (Liber 7, pp. 134, 135). He leaves "his son Thomas the great neck of land with the island, his wife Mary, the third part of his movable estate, his son Johnathan (sic) that lot of land which was—(illegible) the house he now lives in; to his sons William and Johnathan the piece of Salt Medow bought of Robert Beacham, to son Daniel, Trains Medows, names also his grandchild Elizabeth Saunders and four sons—Thomas, William, John, and Johnathan." Spells his surname Lawrance. January 27, 1704-5, Mary, his widow, complains of ill-treatment at the hands of William Lawrence, her stepson. February 5th, 10th, and 17th there are further depositions in the case, and April 3d she complains also against John his brother. By his first wife MAJOR LAWRENCE had issue (the order of birth is uncertain, but probably was) :

- i. THOMAS, for whose descendants see Thomas Lawrence's Genealogy of the family (1858) pp. 84-87.
- ii. WILLIAM, of whom presently.
- iii. JOHN (q. v.).
- iv. JOHNATHAN, see Lawrence Genealogy as above for his issue.
- v. DANIEL, commissioned Cornet of a troop of horse by Governor Bellomont. His issue, if any, is unknown.
- vi. ELIZABETH, m., by license dated July 26, 1683, JOHN SAUNDERS, and had a dau. ELIZABETH, living in 1703.

WILLIAM, second son of Major Thomas Lawrence, was an adherent of Jacob Leisler, probably a member of the Committee of Safety. A comparison of the terms in which this William Lawrence and his cousin of Flushing are spoken of by Governors Bellomont and Cornbury, will show that politics in the Province differed little in their amenities of speech from those of the present State of New York. January 16, 1700-1, Lord Bellomont adds to the Council William Lawrence, of Newtown, Queen's Co., on Nassau Island, "an honest understanding man. He has a good estate and must be distinguished by the place of his dwelling from another of the same name and surname, who has not so good a character." (Historical MSS., New York, iv. 834.) April, 1701, Paroculus Parmiter, an attorney, (afterward Attorney-General of Pennsylvania), exhibits a bill of costs against him. December 27, 1702, he complains to the Council, and expresses surprise that he has not received authority to sue him, "as the way to justice ought to be like the way to hell, smooth and broad." December 31, 1702, he writes again enclosing two bills of costs to the Council. January 14, 1703, he makes an affidavit regarding his claim, and February 19th asks relief in equity against Lawrence and others. October 22, 1704, he writes to Thomas Cardale, Sheriff of Queen's Co., in relation to John and William Lawrence, and November 6th there are affidavits of the sheriff and Christopher Rousby as to his proceedings. There is no record that he ever obtained the satisfaction he sought ("New York Colonial Historical MSS.," English, 282, 305, 307, 333). January 23, 1703, William Lawrence writes excusing his absence from the Council on account of sickness.

“November 8, 1673, he met Jacob Wiltse, of Newtown, on the highway near the late Thomas Lawrence’s, and assaulted him with a stake which he suddenly took up and smote him with that violence and blows that he broke his arm; under the pain and bruises of which,” it is shortly after testified, “he now languishes.” But Lawrence being of his Majesty’s Council, Wiltse “can get no satisfaction unless he presents him to the Council.” This he does the next day (Colonial MSS., vol. 48, in Onderdonk’s “Queen’s County,” p. 15). August 10, 1706, Lord Cornbury, the Governor, writes to the Commissioners for Trade and Plantations: “I must acquaint your Lordships that I have been forced to dismiss Mr. William Lawrence from the Council after having borne with him upwards of three years in many irregularities. One time having a complaint against him for assaulting a man upon the highway I sent for him and told him if he would not cease committing those irregular proceedings that he had been guilty of, I should be forced to remove him. He promised to amend his ways, but instead, in a few weeks, I had a complaint by some of the justices of Queen’s Co., where he lives, that he, and some other persons moved by him, had committed a riot. The Council were all of opinion that he ought to be dismissed. Therefore I did dismiss him (“New York Historical MSS.,” IV., 1181).” The aforesaid riot may refer to the case of William, John, Daniel, and Jonathan Lawrence, on December 12, 1705, cutting down the fence of William Hallett, of Newtown, with axes (Onderdonk, p. 16), or the assault on George Hallett by William Lawrence and John White, about which Hallett and Joseph Moore make depositions on March 6 and 7, 1706. In spite of the governor’s bad opinion of him, June 26, 1706, he had been appointed one of the Commissioners about a claim of the Mohegan Indians. After his dismissal from the Council he drops out of public notice. December 3, 1731, he made his will as of Newtown, proved the following February 11 (Liber 11, p. 218). He leaves to his wife ELIZABETH his best bed and furniture, to his eldest son WILLIAM, his plate, with £5 in money, the rest of his estate in equal proportions to his wife, his sons WILLIAM, SAMUEL, JOHN, and the child his wife is now pregnant with if a son, but if a daughter then £5 to her. His uncles and friends, James Hazard and Nicholas Berrien, to be executors.

The descent of this line of the family has never been traced.

JOHN, third son of Major Thomas Lawrence, of Newtown, b.

1668, was commissioned captain of the troop of horse in the Queen's Co. Regiment by the Earl of Bellomont (who d. March 5, 1701) (New York Papers, N. O.; O. 14); with his brother Daniel in September, 1698, was fined £3 each for burning a hovel valued at £12 2s., which William Hallett, after digging a cellar, had set up on land they claimed as theirs. He was sheriff of Queen's Co. in 1698. He m. DEBORAH, dau. of Richard Woodhull, one of the patentees of Brookhaven (b. 1659, d. January 6, 1742), and d. December 17, 1729. Issue :

- ii. THOMAS, m., January 3, 1730, DEBORAH WOOLSEY, and d. 1752.
See Lawrence genealogy (1858) for his issue.
- iii. NATHANIEL (q. v.).

JOHN, eldest son of John and Deborah (Woodhull) Lawrence, b. at Newtown, September 9, 1695, was in the county magistracy for a number of years. He m., December 6, 1720, PATIENCE, dau. of Joseph Sackett (b. April 29, 1701; d. October 24, 1772), and d. May 7, 1765. (Will proved August 9, 1765, Liber 25, p. 108). Besides two sons and a dau. d. y., he had issue :

- i. JOHN, b. 1721, of whom presently.
- ii. JOSEPH, b. 1723, commander of the sloop Wheel of Fortune, July 19, 1763; m. PATIENCE, aunt of Bishop Benjamine Moore, of New York. Issue.

- iv. NATHANIEL, b. 1727; d. u. at St. Eustatia in the West Indies, 1761, whither he had probably gone as commander of the privateer Catherine.
- v. WILLIAM (q. v.).
- vi. SAMUEL, b. 1735; m., but early lost his wife and child, and d. s. p., 1810.
- vii. JONATHAN, b. 1737 (q. v.).
- viii. DANIEL, b. 1739, served as a member of the Assembly of New York from Queen's Co.; through the Revolution he was commissioned a colonel in the militia; m. EVA VAN HORNE, and d. 1807, leaving issue.
- ix. THOMAS, b. 1743 (probably 1733), engaged in privateering, and in 1758 commanded the ship Tartar, sixteen guns, of which his brother John was part owner. (The date of his commission would imply an error in that given for his birth.) In this pursuit he accumulated wealth, and purchasing land on Flushing Bay settled there. In 1784 commissioned a County Judge; m. ELIZABETH, dau. of Nathaniel Fish, of Newtown, L. I., and d. in 1816, leaving issue.

JOHN, eldest son of John and Patience (Sackett) Lawrence, b. 1721, became one of the leading merchants of New York City. He entered into partnership with Lawrence Kortright, and engaged extensively in what was then the legitimate and profitable business of privateering. September 28, 1756, with John Jauncey, Mariner, he petitions for a commission for Richard Harris Captain of the Privateer, Charming Sally, 26 guns, and in case of his death to James Lilley, First, and Stephen Skinner, Second Lieutenant. October 4, 1764, the firm ask for a commission for Peter Healy as Captain, Thomas Duren, First, and Thomas Hays, Second Lieutenant, of the Harlequin 18 guns. January 3, 1757, the same vessel as a sloop with 8 guns is to be commanded by Captain Doran. September 27th, Henry Lane is to be Captain. November 29th, James Wright is to be Captain, and 2 guns have been added to the armament. July 10, 1758, John Lawrence, Jr., of New York, merchant, owner of the Brigantine, Catherine, 10 guns, applies for a commission for Nathaniel Lawrence (his brother) as its commander. September 28th, with Kortright he applies for a commission for Nathaniel Slooe to command the Harlequin, 10 guns, and John Harrison as commander of the Ship Hunter, 18 guns, of which they are owners. October 5th, with his father-in-law, Philip Livingston, he applies for a commission for Thomas Lawrence (his brother) to command their ship, Tartar, 16 guns. April 19, 1760, with others, owners of the Privateer, De Lancey, commanded by Stephen Skinner, he petitions for the release of the vessel and crew, which had been taken by the Dutch of Curaçoa. April 25th, Governor De Lancey writes to Governor Rodier, of Curaçoa, and orders Captain John Van Ranst, of Schooner Polly, to demand their release. Mr. Lawrence resided on Dock Street and was Alderman of the Dock Ward. He m., in 1759, CATHERINE, dau. of Philip Livingston, and sister of Governor William Livingston, of New Jersey (who survived him) and d. s. p. August 3, 1764. George Whitefield preached his General Sermon in the Presbyterian Meeting-house, and he was buried in Lord Stirling's vault in Trinity Churchyard. His will, made August 11, 1761, proved September 25, 1764, Liber 24, 481, distributes his large estate among his relatives, and is valuable for its numerous statements of relationship. "On the Friday before April 13, 1747, Captain John Lawrence, late of the Privateer Rainbow, being in a bit of lunacy, ran himself through the body with his sword. Had been subject to these fits. Came to himself and died very penitent."¹ Evidently he was of this branch of the family, though I have not identified him.

WILLIAM, fifth son of John and Patience (Sackett) Lawrence, b. about 1729; possibly commissioned Captain, Newtown District, August 14, 1776 ("New York Archives," I., 286); a magistrate of Queens Co.; had apparently by his first wife, ANN BRINCKERHOFF, with other issue, a son, ISAAC, b. 1768, of whom presently.

ISAAC, youngest son of William and Ann (Brinckerhoff) Lawrence, b. 1768, was a merchant in New York City, and for several years President of the United States Branch Bank there; m. CORNELIA, dau. of Rev. Abraham Beach, D.D., Rector of Trinity Church, and d. 1841. Issue:

- i. WILLIAM BEACH, b. October 23, 1800; Chargé d'Affaires at London, in 1827; settled at Ochre Point, Newport, R. I. Was Lieutenant-Governor of the State in 1850, afterward Governor. For many years Vice-President of the New York Historical Society. Was member of the Institute of the Law of Nations, a statesman, Diplomat, and International Jurist of the first rank. Wrote (in French) a "Commentary on International Law," and many pamphlets; edited, with extensive notes, Wheaton's "International Law;" translated Marbois's "History of Louisiana," from the French; m. ———, and d. in 1881. Issue:
 - i. ALBERT GALLATIN, b. 1835, graduated at Harvard and studied law at the Cambridge Law School, obtained the position of Secretary of the American Legation at Vienna, but left that post at the outbreak of the war. After serving on General Stahl's staff in the Eleventh Army Corps and as a recruiting officer he went to the field as a Captain of colored troops. In the assault on Fort Fisher he received three wounds, one of which resulted in the loss of his left arm. For his gallantry he was thanked by the General commanding and the Legislature of Rhode Island, while the War Department gave him the brevet rank of Colonel, which was raised to Brigadier-General. 1866-68 he was appointed Minister to Costa Rica, by President Johnson. During a visit to Washington he engaged in a duel with an attaché of the Prussian Legation, who had cast a slur upon the American flag. The Prussian fired and missed, and General Lawrence fired into the air. The sensation caused by the affair and criticisms from official quarters caused General Lawrence to resign his post. His only subsequent public service was a report which he made, after investigation, upon the Sitting Bull and other Indian troubles. He m. ———, and d. in January, 1887. Issue:

I., was in business as a partner of the firm of Watson, Murray & Lawrence, of New York. Prospering himself and inheriting largely from his brother, John, he purchased the original estate of his emigrant ancestor, at Hellgate, and retired from business. In 1772 was commissioned Captain in the local militia, but joined the Revolutionary party and, 1774, was a member of their Committee, at Newtown. In 1775 elected a member of the Congress at New York, and again in 1776 and 1777. In 1776-77 member of the Constitutional Convention, and appointed Major of the Militia of Queens and Suffolk Counties, of which Nathaniel Woodhull was Commander. Was Captain of a company in the regiment of Lieutenant-Colonel John Harper;¹ and April 14, 1777, Captain in the regiment of Colonel Albert Pawling,¹ one of sixteen additional of the Line, authorized by Congress. This company was one of four made up of refugees from New York and Long Island. He was an active member of the Revolutionary party in New York, and held many important positions on committees and commissions for the carrying on of the war. Was member of the New York Senate, 1777-83; and in 1783, with two other senators alone, opposed the passage of the iniquitous bill declaring those described therein, who had been loyal to the Crown, to have been aliens from the date of the Declaration of Independence. This Bill, clearly in violation of the provisional treaty of peace, and introducing endless confusion into the land titles on Long Island and WILLIAM, third son of Thomas and Joan (Antrobus) Lawrence, b. at S. Albans, Hertfordshire, England, and bapt. there July 27, 1622; was brought to New England in the ship Planter, by his step-father, John Tuttell, in 1635. Ten years later, with his brother John, October 10, 1645, he was one of the eighteen original incorporators of Flushing on Long Island, and seems to have made that his permanent residence thereafter. April 22, 1655, William Lawrence, Thomas Saul, and Edward Ffarrington were appointed Magistrates of Flushing. March 25, 1656, he was elected by the Council Presiding Magistrate of the town.

January 26, 1657-58, with Tobias Feke and Robert Ferry, deputies to the Council about the encroachments of Hempstead upon their boundaries. The following letter from him to Governor Stuyvesant is on record:

“HONORED SIR:

 “ the 20th 1658.”

July 10, 1662, with his brothers, John and Thomas Lawrence, and his father-in-law, Richard Smith, he is among the taxables at Middleburgh (Newtown), Long Island. January 7, 1664, some Indians complain that they were summoned to a conference about some land at Flushing by him, but he was not present when they came. In 1665, Captain of the Queen's Co. Militia. September 27, 1666, was one of the jury in a lawsuit between Gravesend and Flatbush. The same year Rev. Francis Doughty, Minister of Flushing, in a suit about his unpaid salary, states that his contract of salary was burnt one year before the trial by William Lawrence's wife, who “put it under a pye in an oven.” He claimed back salary, and the defence was made that Governor Stuyvesant forced them to call him. His son recovered, in 1669, six year's salary, each party to pay their own costs. December 18, 1666, William Lawrence, of Flushing, for seditious words is fined £15, and to make an apology to the Court.

February 24, 1670-71, “Captain William Lawrence, with consent of the major part of the inhabitants of Flushing, receives a patent of his land where hee lives, with an addition of a piece of swampy meadow ground lyeing within that Neck.” Consent of Thomas Willett and others to this patent was given February 15, 1670-71. September 29, 1672, one of his negroes at Flushing is complained of as a thief. August 31, 1673, he is schout or sheriff of Flushing, and several letters to him in that capacity are among the Historical MSS. of the State of New York. The same year commanded the “Flushing Foote Companie,” at the surrender of New York to the Dutch. In 1674 either he or his son of the same name has a house of the second class, valued at $2,000, on the east side of Broadway between Beaver and Wall Streets, in New York. May 19th of that year, it is complained that “Richard Smith of Nessequack, with the aid of his son-in-law, William Lawrence, the Sheriff," in a lawsuit, "had chosen such jury as were favourable to him." September 14, 1675, it is ordered by the Council that Captain William Lawrence be "added to ye justices of ye peace of the North Riding of Long Island." In October, 1677, judgment is entered against him in a suit for £6 19s. 5d. May 7, 1678, the constable and others complain of Captain William Lawrence fencing in the highway. April 29, 1679, his negro, Andreas, is convicted of the murder of a squaw; verdict, "conditionally manslaughter." Early in the next year he died, his estate being administered March 25, 1680, by his "widow Elizabeth and eldest son (by a former venter) William Lawrence." The principal items of the inventory returned by Richard Cornell, John Bowne, John Lawrence, and Abraham Whorley on April 19, 1680 (recorded Lib. 2, pp. 212-223) are:

CAPTAIN WILLIAM LAWRENCE had a first wife whose name is unknown, by whom he had issue, two sons:

- i. WILLIAM, of whom presently.
- ii. JOHN (q. v.).

By license dated March 4, 1664, he m., second, ELIZABETH, dau. of Richard Smith, of Nessequack, patentee of Smithtown, L. I., and had further issue:

- iii. MARY, b. in 1665; m., first, in 1682 or 83, JAMES EMOTT, Secretary of the Province of New Jersey; Clerk of the Council, in 1683; Deputy-Secretary, 1684; Captain-Lieutenant of a foot company at Perth Amboy, December 11, 1686. He was Counsel for the celebrated pirate, Captain Richard Kidd, and d. at New York in April, 1713, leaving his widow with four sons, and a fortune of £2,000. She m., second, in 1714, REV. EDWARD VAUGHAN, Missionary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, at Elizabeth, who d. October 12, 1747.

- iv. JOSEPH (q. v.).
- v. THOMAS, b. 1668 ; d. October 26, 1687.
- vi. RICHARD, at school, a pupil of Rev. John Harriman, Puritan pastor at Elizabeth, between 1695 and 1702 ; m. (license, September 24, 1699), CHARITY, dau. of Thomas Clerke, or Clarke, of Brookhaven, Gent. ; and had a dau., CHARITY, m. — DAYTON.
- vii. SAMUEL, b. 1672 ; d. August 16, 1687, and with his brother, THOMAS, was buried in the rear of the Meeting-house, at Elizabeth. Their graves are now covered by the First Presbyterian Church, and their monuments adorn the rear wall of the building, the most ancient stones in the cemetery.
- viii. SARAH, m. JAMES TILLET.
- ix. JAMES, of whom nothing is known.

After the death of CAPTAIN WILLIAM LAWRENCE, his widow m., second, in April, 1681, the HON. CAPTAIN PHILIP CARTERET, b. 1639, Seigneur of the Manor of La Houque, Parish of S. Peter, Island of Jersey, and Governor of the Province of East and West Jerseys, and removed to Elizabeth with her seven children. Like many of the Provincial Governors he was involved in disputes with the local authorities, and by high-handed injustice on their part even imprisoned.

He d. between December 10 and 20, 1682, leaving his estates in Jersey to his mother, and to "his most deare wife Elizabeth Carteret and her heirs," all his estate in New Jersey and all his negroes and other servants "except Black Jack who is to be set free." After his death she occupied for over a year and claimed as her own, in her husband's right, the Government house and property at Elizabeth. May 29, 1684, the Council speak of her "many clamours made against the proprietors and late Governor on pretence of Rong Don her." In her petition presented to the Hon. Gawen Laurie, Deputy-Governor of the Province of East New Jersey and his Council, she claims :

"1st, her husbands sallery for being Governor amounteing to the sume of 1000 lb.

"2d. A patent for 3,596 acres in Elizabeth Towne bounds as expressed in 2 patents when Robert Vicars was Secretary.

"3d. Patent for lot of land on Rareton River purchased by her husband of the Indians.

"4th. That the house, lot, and orchard in Elizabeth Towne, now in possession of the proprietors, be delivered to her."

"The Bord" answer to 2d and 4th: "patents of that date are voided." 3d, deny Carteret's having paid for the land. 1st, "is not in their province," so that her complaints failed to procure her any redress. September 29, 1683, in the list of taxables at Flushing, appears Widow Cartwright (Carteret) "with 4 males, 30 upland acres, and 50 meadows, 2 horses, 14 oxen, 3 cows, 4 younger cattle, taxed £1. 3s. 9d." In 1685 she m., third, COLONEL RICHARD TOWNLEY, eighth son of Nicholas Townley, of Littleton, Middlesex, England, a junior branch of the Lancashire family of Towneley, of Towneley, and d., 1712.¹ Colonel Townley emigrated to Virginia in the suite of the Earl of Effingham, Governor of that province in 1683; the following year removed to East New Jersey. May 27, 1685, was appointed Justice of the Court of Common Right. Member of the Council, October 20, 1686, and also on his return to the province, February 5, 1710. Captain of Foot Company at Elizabeth, December 11, 1686. Was of the New York Council in 1692-1697, though accused in the latter year of not attending its meetings. Was presiding Judge of Quarter Sessions, when he d. in April, 1711.

WILLIAM, eldest son of Captain William Lawrence, the Emigrant, by his first wife, was prominent in the troubled politics of New York of the end of the seventeenth century. He was probably the William Lawrence who signs and seals first of the Committee of Safety on the commission dated August 16, 1689, appointing Captain Jacob Leisler Commander-in-chief of the Province. December 11, 1689, he was named of Leisler's Council, and was frequently present at its sessions. December 14th, the same year he was one of the justices of peace for Orange Co. In March, 1691, with other Councilors is imprisoned by Leisler. September 9, 1692, being confined on treasonable charges, petitions for release. There is some uncertainty whether his cousin William, son of Thomas Lawrence, of Newtown, may not be the Councillor.

September 29, 1683, Captain William Lawrence has at Flushing "2 males, 20 upland acres, 50 of meadow, 4 horses, 2 oxen, 5 cows, 9 younger cattle and 10 swine, and is taxed 19 shills. 9d." August 19, 1697, he bought 1,000 acres of land near Percassin, Bucks Co., Penn.,

which he afterward sold. In the 1698 list of inhabitants of Flushing, third in rank is "Major William Lawrence, Deborah his wife, eleven (sic) children, William, Richard, Obadiah, Daniell, Samuell, John, Adam, Deborah, Sarah, —; and six negroes, James, Tom, Lew, Bess, and two children." May 5, 1699, with John Barbaree, recommended by his uncle, John Lawrence, as guardians of his idiot son, John. July 20, 1703, John Embree, of Flushing, asks for an injunction against him for trespassing on his land. August 2d of that year, William makes a counter-complaint against John Embree, of intrusion on part of his estate called Tew's Neck, Flushing. May 31, 1704, with others, is complained of as surveying the common lands in the town of Flushing. He appears to have been removed from the guardianship of his lunatic cousin, for on January 20, 1709, he petitions to be restored to it; and again, March 1, 1711, there are further proceedings in reference to it. April 27, 1711, he renders an account, and March 20, 1711-12, there is a report upon it. July 28, 1719, he made his will; proved March 16, 1719-20 (Liber 9, p. 152), leaving "his wife Deborah half his household stuff and farm, half to his dau. Elizabeth Lawrence, to his son Joshua a bond for £57 10s. New York money, to his son Caleb," my farm I now live on in Tew's Neck, to his son Stephen 500 acres of land at a place called "on Springhill in East and West Jerseys I bought of the Underhills," to his sons Obadiah, Daniel, Sam^l, Joshua and Adam Lawrence, and son-in-law Joseph Rodman, "right of land in Smithtown Patent which Father Smith gave me in his Will, all rest of moveables and 2 lotts at New York, bought of Coster Larensen, lying on William Street, to all his children."

JOHN, second son of Captain William Lawrence by his first wife, was probably the John Lawrence admitted to the Council of the Colony by Royal Mandamus, dated August 10, 1702. He is named in the list of inhabitants of Flushing of 1698, with his wife Elizabeth, and children William, Richard, Eliza, Mary, and Deborah. He m. ELIZABETH, dau. of Richard Cornell (who was b. 1662), and made his will September 29, 1712, proved February 21, 1714-15 (Liber 8, pp. 332-33). In it he leaves to his wife Elizabeth, his houses, etc., until his son Richard is twenty-one, then he is to have half, "other half the widow for life, then to son Benjamin at twenty-one, after which they shall pay the widow £20 per annum." He gives negroes to his daughters, Charity Lawrence, Sarah Lawrence, Elizabeth Fford, and Mary Briggs. His brother, William Lawrence, is an executor. Issue :

JOSEPH LAWRENCE, eldest son of Captain William, and Elizabeth (Smith) Lawrence (q. v.), b. about 1666. September 10, 1684, was commissioned an Ensign in the New York Provincial troops. March 14, 1685-86, there is a capias against him recorded, for a debt of £20.0.0. In 1701 he signs a petition of the inhabitants of East Jersey, addressed to the King, and does the same again in 1717, with his brother Richard, also John Bowne, John and Benjamin Lawrence. In 1698 he is recorded at Flushing, with his wife Mary and children, Richard and Thomas. December 8, 1754, he made his will, proved April 18, 1759, recorded Liber 22, p. 7. Mentions his wife, his sons Richard and John, and dau. Elizabeth Bowne, Sarah Lawrence, Hannah Molyneux, and Abigail Forbes. Unvarying family tradition marries him to a MARY TOWNLEY, who was probably a dau. of his mother's third husband, Colonel Richard Townley, of New Jersey. There appears to be no legal proof of his wife's name, and the early records of the first Presbyterian Church of Elizabeth where the marriage was probably performed, have been destroyed. In this connection it may be well to note, that even though it were proven Mrs. Lawrence was a dau. of Colonel Townley, that would not make her descendants heirs of any great English estate, for two good and sufficient reasons: first,¹ Colonel Townley was eighth son of a younger branch of the family and the elder line Towneley, of Towneley, has never lacked direct male heirs until 1879, when the three daughters and co-heiresses of Colonel Charles Towneley, elder brother of Colonel John Towneley, the last male, carried the property into the families of their respective husbands Lord Norreys, Lord Lennox, and Lord O'Hagan. A second reason² why there is no English fortune for her heirs, is the non-existence of any such enormous unclaimed sums of money in the possession of the British Court of Chancery, or the Bank of England, and the passage of an Act in 1869 by Parliament which escheated to the Crown all unclaimed

After the dissolution of their partnership Mr. Lawrence had an intimation from his friend Judge Wright, engineer of the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company, that he had, in his survey of the route of the canal, discovered large beds of hydraulic limestone in Ulster Co. Through his friends, General Joseph G. Totten and Colonel De Russey, he succeeded in introducing his Rosendale cement into general use, and many of the government works have been constructed with it. LAWRENCE, OF S. IVES, HUNTINGDON- SHIRE

THE first of this line on record was an EDMUND LAWRENCE, called fourth son of Sir Robert Lawrence, of Ashton Hall. (This seems merely an attempt to make a connection with the Lancashire family, as there is no evidence offered to substantiate the claim.) EDMUND had issue : i. RICHARD, who had a son, JOHN ; and ii. JOHN LAWRENCE DE WURDEBOYS, who was Abbot of Ramsey Abbey, in Huntingdonshire, from 1507 ; in 1539 he was not only very forward in procuring his own abbey to be surrendered to the king when the Vicar-General Cromwell sent out his visitors, but influenced others to submit, for which service he obtained, according to Dugdale, the large pension of £266 13s. 6d. per annum. In his will, dated in 1541, and proved in November, 1542 (Registro Spert), he makes considerable bequests to the churches of S. Ives, Ramsey, and Burwell, leaves £10 among twenty paupers, and his silver plate, etc., to his cousin, William Lawrence. He desires to be buried in S. Mary's, Burwell, and appoints William Lawrence of S. Ives one of his executors.

JOHN, son of Richard, and nephew of the Lord Abbot, styled in all evidences "generosus," d. in 1538, leaving by his will (Registro Dingley), besides considerable donations to the Church, two of his best mares to my Lord of Ramsey for supervising his will. He had issue : EMMA, m. GABRIEL, third son of Richard Throckmorton, of Higham Ferrers, Seneschal of the Duchy of Lancaster ; AGNES, m. GILBERT SMYTH, of Fenton ; and WILLIAM, who settled at S. Ives, was High Sheriff of Cambridge and Hunts at the death of Queen Mary, and was buried at S. Ives, December 20, 1572. By his will (Registro Peter) he bequeaths to his son HENRY his armour, the plate he inherited from his uncle the Abbot of Ramsey, and "the iron chest in the library, containing papers which had been particularly mentioned in the will of his father."

He m., first, FRANCES HOUSTON, and had issue by her :

- i. HENRY, of whom presently.
- ii. WILLIAM (ancestor of the Lawrences of Chichester and Aldingbourne).

WILLIAM LAWRENCE, m., second, MARGARET, dau. of Edward Kaye, of Woodson, in Yorkshire and had further issue :

- iii. ROBERT, d. in 1597 (ancestor of the Lawrences of Norfolk).
- iv. LEWIS.
- v. ELIZABETH, m., JOHN HUTTON, of Cambridge.

HENRY, son of William and Frances (Houston) Lawrence, probably entered Gray's Inn from Barnard's Inn in 1569 ; m. ELIZABETH, dau. of John Hagar, of Bourne Castle, Cambridgeshire, and was buried at S. Ives, February 25, 1580-81, having had a son and heir, JOHN, who entered Gray's Inn, April 24, 1597, was knighted by James I., in 1603, at Windsor ; m. ELIZABETH, sole dau. and heiress of Ralph Waller, of Beaconsfield, who after his death, and before 1646, m., second, Robert Bathurst, Sheriff of Gloucestershire, whose son Edward was created a Baronet in 1643. SIR JOHN LAWRENCE was buried at S. Ives, February 10, 1604. In his will (made January 10th, proved February 9, 1604, Registro Hayes) he mentions his two sons, HENRY and JOHN (q. v.). HENRY was then aged three years, two months, and four days (Cole's Escheats, Harl. MS., 760). He entered Emanuel College, Cambridge, in 1622, as a fellow-commoner ; B.A. 1623 ; M.A., 1627. Had been registered at Gray's Inn August 7, 1617. In 1641 was in Parliament as a Knight of the Shire for Westmoreland. Milton, in his "Second Defence of the People of England," calls him "a man of the highest ability and best accomplishments," and addresses his son in a sonnet, "Lawrence of virtuous father, virtuous son." He is also said to have assisted him in writing his treatise "On Angels." He was M.P. for Westmoreland, 1645 ; one of the Commissioners to keep peace with Scotland, 1646 ; was at Arnheim, in Flanders, December, 1645, and at Altona, January 21, 1646. From a preface to a work of his, printed in 1646, it appears that he was abroad at the beginning of the Civil War : "The warre found me abroad, not sent me thither, and I have beene onely wary without a just and warrantable reason to ingage my selfe in that condition from which a providence seem'd to rescue mee." He found such reason shortly thereafter, as he appears as a Member of Parliament for Hettfordshire in 1653, and, July 14th of that year, is added to the Council of State by Cromwell; July 27th is on the Committee of Foreign Affairs, was present at seventeen sittings of the Council in November and December, 1653, and at one hundred and sixty-four in 1654, being the only member present at all the sittings. December 19, 1653, Cromwell appointed him Lord President of the Council for one month from date. January 16, 1653-54, there was an order by the Protector that "Hen. Lawrence be continued President of the Council until further order;" February 9, 1654, we find him paid £300, apparently his salary. Notices of his action as Lord President may be found in Domestic State Papers for 1653-54, and he is not unfavourably mentioned by Clarendon in his history. He was elected M.P. for Colchester and Carnarvonshire in 1656, and chose to sit for the latter shire. In December, 1657, he was gazetted a Lord of the other House, Cromwell's attempt at a life peerage. As Lord President he took the responsibility of proclaiming Richard Cromwell as his father's successor, but on the Restoration of Charles II. was allowed to return to private life. He opposed the execution of Charles I., and there is in Thurloe's "State Papers" a letter to him from the Queen of Bohemia, Elizabeth Stuart, wife of Frederick Elector Palatine and mother of Prince Rupert, recommending Lord Craven to his good graces, and saying she knew he had only accepted office in order to render services to those who needed them. He published at Amsterdam, in 1646, "Militia Spiritualis, a Treatise of our Communion and Warre with Angels;" in the same year an anonymous treatise "On Baptism;" in 1649 a "Vindication of the Scriptures," and in 1652 "Gospel Ordinances." The author has a copy of the third edition of the first treatise "On Angels," formerly in the possession of the Woollaston-White family, heirs of the President's grandson, Sir Edward Lawrence, Bart. Afterward in that of Major J. H. Lawrence-Archer, who has made some MS. memoranda relating to the Lawrence genealogy, of which I have made use in the above sketch of the Lord President's ancestry, in connection with the Memoir written by Sir James Lawrence, Knight of Malta, and the English State Papers. Major Archer also had a photograph made of the unique drawing in the Queen's copy of Clarendon's "Rebellion," at Windsor Castle, from which the engraved portrait of the President was copied. He m. AMY, dau. of Sir Edward Peyton Bart., of Iselham, in Cambridgeshire, and d. August 8, 1664, intestate. Major Archer says the records of the Probate Court show his widow was administratrix; but Sir James Lawrence states that his son Henry administered the estate. According to his gravestone (visible in 1802) in the chapel at S. Margaret's Als Thele, in Hertfordshire, the President had issue seven sons and six daughters :

- i. HENRY, M.P. for Carnarvonshire in 1656, d. in 1679, leaving issue :
 - i. HENRY, d. u.
 - ii. EDWARD, created a Baronet, with remainder to his sister's son, and d. May 2, 1749.
- ii. EDWARD, M.P. for Pembrokeshire in 1656, and d. in 1657.
- iii. JOHN, emigrated to Jamaica, of whom presently.

- vii. THEODOSIA, d. September 2, 1664, aged twenty.
- viii. HENRIETTA, d. September 30, 1664, aged thirteen.

The others I have not been able to trace. Hotten's "Original Lists of Emigrants," etc., New York, 1874, notices that Henry Lawrence owned ten acres of land and six negroes in S. James's Parish, Barbadoes, December 20, 1629. This may have been the Lord President.

JOHN, supposed son of President Henry Lawrence (q. v.). Emigrated to the West Indies, settling first on Barbadoes Island, removing afterward to Jamaica. He may have been Captain John Lawrence, mentioned in a letter, March 10, 1682-83, as commanding a ship expected to sail to the Leeward Islands. He made his will May 10, 1690 ; m. MRS. JANE (COLLINS) DUNN, and had three sons and six daughters.

JOHN, eldest son of the emigrant, John Lawrence, m. SUSANNAH PETGRAVE, and d. in 1725. Their dau., SUSANNA, m. LAWRENCE LAWRENCE (Will, 1743), and had RACHEL, m. LIEUTENANT-COLONEL HARRY GORDON (Will, 1787). Their dau., Ann, m. Alexander Edgar, of Lanarkshire (Will, 1820), and had Mary, m. J. H. Archer, of the Umberslade family (Will, 1840), whose son was Lieutenant-Colonel J. H. Lawrence-Archer. (See also Roby's "History of the Parish of S. James, Jamaica," Part 3d.) Of this family was (Major) John Lawrence, d. January 7, 1718-19, in the forty-sixth year of his age, a buccaneering commander under Sir Henry Morgan ; and Rev. Richard Brisset Lawrence, d. October 13, 1831, aged thirty-one years and three months.

The HON. COLONEL JAMES LAWRENCE, third son of John Lawrence the emigrant, was of Fairfield, Jamaica, bu. June 15, 1756, in the forty-seventh year of his age, who m. MARY, dau. of Colonel Richard James, and had an eldest son, RICHARD

JAMES, who m. MARY, fourth dau. of Thomas Hall, of Kirkpatrick, and d. November 8, 1830, having had five sons :

- i. Sir James, Knight of Malta, author of the " Nobility of the British Gen-try," " The Prisoner of Verdun," " Empire of the Nairs," etc.
- ii. George, of Cowsfield House, Wilts.
- iii. Charles, of Mossley Hall, Lancashire.
- iv. Henry, Barrister-at-Law.
- v. Frederick Augustus, a Gentleman of the Privy Chamber.

JOHN, younger brother of President Henry Lawrence, d. in 1670, leaving an only son, THOMAS, Physician-General of the Army, Physician to Queen Anne and four other crowned heads. He d. in 1714, leaving an eldest son, THOMAS, a Captain in the Royal Navy ; m. ELIZABETH, dau. of Gabriel Soulden, of Kinsale, and widow of a Colonel Piers. Their second son, Thomas, b. May 25, 1711, was Dr. Samuel Johnson's physician, President of the Royal College of Physicians, and an author. He m., May 25, 1744, Frances, dau. of Dr. Charles Chauncey, of Derby, who d. January 2, 1780 ; her husband d. June 6, 1783, leaving a son, Sir Soulden Lawrence, b. 1751, Justice of the Common Pleas, and knighted in March, 1794 ; promoted to the King's Bench, June of the same year ; d. u. July 8, 1814. Of this family were the Lawrences of Studley Royal and Fountains Abbey, whose heiress m. a Mr. Aislabe, in the middle of the present century.

LEIPER

ACCORDING to family tradition THOMAS LEIPER, living at Strathaven, in Clydesdale, Scotland, at the beginning of the eighteenth century, was descended from a Frenchman who came to Scotland in 1561 in the suite of Mary Queen of Scots. This THOMAS LEIPER m. HELEN, dau. of Hamilton, of Kype (she m., second, before 1771, — Scott)¹, and great-granddaughter of John Hamilton, of Stanehouse, and dying in 1763 left issue :

- i. ROBERT, inherited the homestead and left descendants living there in 1856.
- ii. DR. JAMES HAMILTON, of whom presently.
- iii. THOMAS, b. December 15, 1745 (g. v.).
- iv. NANCY, living in 1771.
- v. JANET, living in 1771.
- vi. ANDREW, b. in 1750, a graduate of the Medical School of the University of Edinburgh; emigrated to Virginia, and practised medicine at Richmond. Served through the Revolutionary War as surgeon, m. FRANCES, dau. of Alexander Trent, of "Warehill," Chesterfield Co., Va., and d., October 17, 1798, of yellow fever contracted while attending a sailor in the hold of a vessel in Richmond Harbour, and is bu. in S. John's Churchyard under a handsome tombstone erected by his wife. Issue:
 - i. ANDREWETTA HAMILTON, b. 1797; m. Dr. GEORGE WILLIAMSON, of "Woodlawn," Henrico Co., Va., and d. December 25, 1833, leaving issue.
 - ii. FRANCES ANN, m. RICHARD CROUCH, and left issue.

JAMES HAMILTON, second son of Thomas and Helen (Hamilton) Leiper, was educated at the Medical School of the University of Edinburgh, is said to have come to Maryland and settled in Prince George's Co. before 1763, but in his will, dated in 1771, calls himself "surgeon, and resident of London." He m., according to his will, ELIZABETH, sister of General William Small- wood, a prominent officer of the Revolutionary forces and Governor of Maryland, 1785-88. November 15, 1771, being about to voyage to Lisbon for his health he made his will, which was proved December 2, 1771. In it he names his children, GEORGE ROBERT LEIPER, who d. u., and LUCY ANN HEBBARD, who is said to have married BERNARD MOORE, son of Bernard Moore, of Chelsea, Va., by his wife Anne Catherine, dau. of Major-General Alexander Spotswood, Governor of Virginia, and d. leaving issue. ELIZABETH m. WILLIAM PENN TAYLOR, of "Hayfield," Caroline Co., Va.

THOMAS, third son of Thomas and Helen (Hamilton) Leiper, b. at Strathaven, December 15, 1745, was educated at Glasgow and Edinburgh, his father's intention being that he should become a minister of the Scotch Kirk. This was not to his taste, and in 1763, at his father's death, he followed his brothers to America. According to a MS. account, written by him, now in the possession of one of his descendants, he sailed from Scotland in April, 1763, landed in Maryland in June, went to Port Tobacco and resided as assistant in Mr. John Semple's store. In the fall was compelled by the fever and ague to go to Occoquan. The fever remained with him through the winter, but in the spring "taking up his line of march for Frederick County," it left him without the aid of medicines. From Frederick, in the spring of 1765, he went to Philadelphia, attracted by an advantageous offer of employment made him by his cousin Gavin Hamilton, who was extensively engaged in the storage and shipment of tobacco to Europe. In a few years he left him and went into business for himself. At the breaking out of the Revolution, the leading tobacco house being interdicted, he seized the opportunity to push his business, and became the principal factor in Philadelphia. He also engaged in the manufacture of snuff and other tobacco commodities. By ability, energy, and business tact, he soon accumulated a considerable fortune. At the Revolution he took sides against the mother country, contributed largely of his means to the cause, and was an active member of the "First Troop of City Light Horse," and present with them at the battles of Princeton, Trenton, Brandywine, and Germantown, besides several skirmishes. He was graded first as Orderly Sergeant, afterward as Lieutenant; as Treasurer of the Troop he carried the last subsidies of the French to the army before Yorktown. After the war he acted with the corps in quelling several civil insurrections and riots, notably the whiskey insurrection, of 1794, and in the attack upon the residence of James Wilson, at the southwest corner of Walnut and Third Streets, where he was one of the seven troopers who charged and routed the mob of two hundred rioters. He was active in politics, taking a position of opposition to Washington and the Federalists, and during the violent party quarrels which arose he was Major of the "Horse of the Legion," raised to oppose the "Black Cockade" forces of the friends of Mr. Adams's Administration, and it was said recruited and equipped the first company of troopers at his own expense. He built and equipped the first permanent tramway in America (one for temporary purposes being used in Massachusetts, in 1807), from his quarries, on Crum Creek to tide-water, a distance of three-quarters of a mile. He was a Presidential Elector in 1809, and in 1825 Director of the Banks of Pennsylvania and the United States, Commissioner for the Defence of the City in the War of 1812; a member, and ultimately President (1801-5, 1808-10, 1812-14) of the Common Councils of the city of Philadelphia. Was one of the Executive Committee of the S. Andrew's Society; Secretary in 1774, and Vice-President from 1804 to 1810, and 1812 to 1816. Active in his business affairs, there was hardly an industry which he did not turn to profit. He was also enterprising and progressive in the adoption of new machines and improvements in agricultural implements long before his neighbours forsook the time-worn appliances they had inherited from their fathers. "In personal attributes¹ Thomas Leiper was noticeable for comeliness of countenance and grace of figure. Slightly above the medium height, with a square and compact frame, and finely proportioned limbs. His countenance exhibited an ample and perfectly fair forehead, dark brows, bright, but thoughtful eyes of a hue between a hazel and dark blue, finely cut and expressive features, with a remarkably clear and ruddy complexion, traits combining to produce a visage indicative of intelligence, firmness, and benignity. This manly beauty of face and form obtained for him the cognomen of the 'handsome Scotchman.' His habits were particular nearly to fastidiousness, being daily shaved, head powdered, and hair dressed with a short queue, tied with black ribbon. These services were performed by a German barber, who had formerly been Trumpeter to the City Troop. As to dress, he retained the style in vogue during his earlier days, consisting of a blue or black dress coat, with bright brass buttons, vest of cloth or marseilles, according to season, breeches buckled at the knee, where they were joined by hose of silk, cotton, or wool, as circumstances demanded, the whole terminating in shoes ornamented with broad silver buckles for in-door wear, or yellow top-boots for out-door service. Hat, a low-crowned, broad-brimmed, white or black beaver. Naturally of a quick and impulsive temper, he had it under much control, never indulging in long-lived anger or harbouring malice. He was reverent and punctual in attendance upon religious services, being a pew-holder in both the First and Second Presbyterian Churches."

GEORGE GRAY, eldest son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Gray) Leiper, b. February 3, 1786, lived at Lapidea, near Leiperville, Delaware Co., Pa., was a member of Congress, 1829-31; Associate Judge (lay) of the Delaware Co. Circuit Court. He served numerous terms in the Pennsylvania Legislature, and at one time was waited upon by a delegation of distinguished Democratic politicians, who pressed him to become their candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, but he told them he would have to decline the nomination, as his private interests had already suffered too much, in his service to his State and country, every office he had ever held making him a poorer man. He was intimately acquainted with all the public men of his day, and his house was one of open hospitality, and one where numerous public men were wont to stop on their way to and from the Capitol. He was a personal friend of Andrew Jackson, and supported him warmly when he ran for President, making a large number of speeches in his behalf throughout the country. When a member of the Pennsylvania Legislature, he met James Buchanan, and an intimacy sprang up which lasted throughout their lives. He completed the canal which was projected by his father for the purpose of conveying stone on boats from his quarries, and it continued in use until 1852. He had large mills, quarries, and numerous farms, and was equally as active as his father had been in the management of his business interests. He was also a member of the Philadelphia City Troop. SCHIEFFELIN

THE family of Schieffelin can be traced back to the thirteenth century, when it had large properties in Germany and founded a Chapel in Nordlingen, at a place called the Wine Market, in the year 1269. There was a branch of the family existing in Switzerland in the middle of the fifteenth century, and it has been claimed, seemingly with little authority, that the Swiss was the elder branch. However this may be, CONRAD, the son of Franz Schieffelin, of Nordlingen and Nuremburg (for in 1476 the latter kept up residences in both places), migrated to the Canton of Geneva, Switzerland, and in consideration of his near relative, the Lord Syndic Besançon Huges, he was admitted to citizenship February 14, 1518, gratis, and became possessed of the Fief de la Moliere, July 6, 1527. He left descendants prominent in the cantonal affairs of Switzerland for several generations. In 1543 HANS LEONARD SCHIEFFELIN, second, the nephew of Conrad, being the son of his brother, Hans Leonard, also moved from Germany to Switzerland, making Friburg his residence. A picture painted in 1538 is still extant, representing the elder Hans Leonard Schieffelin and his two sons worshipping the Paschal Lamb, which is also the crest of the family in this country. The first of the family to visit America was JACOB SCHIEFFELIN, of Weilheim an der Deck, in Germany. The family had a dwelling in Weilheim and a seat in the country, with the perpetual right vested in the family of sending the eldest son to the College. JACOB SCHIEFFELIN died 1746, and in the same year his son, also named JACOB, came over to Philadelphia and settled in this country, bringing his family Bible, printed in 1560, with him, which is still in the possession of the family.

JACOB SCHIEFFELIN, second, was b. February 4, 1732; m., September 16, 1756, REGINA MARGARETTA KRAFTEN RITSCHAURIN (b. in Milhaus an der Ense, Germany, September 9, 1739), and d. 1769. Issue :

- i. JACOB, b. August 24, 1757, of whom presently.
- ii. MELCHIOR, b. August 16, 1759.
- iii. JONATHAN, b. July 16, 1762.
- iv. THOMAS.

JACOB, son of Jacob and Regina Margarett Schieffelin, was b. in Philadelphia, August 24, 1757, and baptised by the Rev. Mr. Muhlenberg, of the Lutheran Church. While still a young man he went to Detroit as Secretary of the Province, and owned considerable property in that town. He came to New York, holding a commission in the British army, early in 1780, and August 16, 1780, m. HANNAH, oldest dau. of John and Ann (Burling) Lawrence (g. v.), one of the handsomest women of her time, and a distinguished poetess (d. October 3, 1838). He afterward removed to Montreal, where his two eldest sons were born. Taking his wife back to New York, he left her there and spent some time in London. Returning to Montreal, his wife joined him in that ancient city. About 1794 he returned to New York, and went into business with his brother-in-law, John B. Lawrence. Five years afterward they dissolved partnership to allow Mr. Schieffelin to engage in ship-owning, which Mr. Lawrence considered too hazardous. Jacob Schieffelin continued to carry on business at No. 195 Pearl Street, and in 1805 his son, Henry Hamilton, was taken into partnership. In 1814 Jacob Schieffelin retired, and the firm was carried on until 1849 under the title of H. H. Schieffelin & Co. Only by extreme care and perseverance was the business at times continued successfully. There were the troubles caused by the wars of the great Napoleon, England with its Orders in Council, France with its Berlin Decrees, the piracies of the Barbary Powers, and the Great Panic of 1837. Through all these, as well as the later financial crises of 1857, 1861, and 1873, the house has been guided with sagacity and success. In 1849 Henry H. Schieffelin retired, leaving as his successors his four sons, by whom the business was carried on until 1865, when the firm name became William H. Schieffelin & Co., under which title it continues a flourishing existence in New York, having agencies in London, Chicago, and San Francisco. A pamphlet, recently published in commemoration of the centennial of graduating from Columbia College in the class of 1819 (he was its oldest living alumnus at the time of his death), entered the law office of his brother-in-law, Benjamin Ferris, and in due course was admitted to the Bar. He continued in active practice until 1843.

Upon retiring from active business, Mr. Schieffelin devoted himself to the care and oversight of his private interests. He indulged to a limited extent in the excitements of political life, accepting an election to the Common Council and serving as President of the Board during 1843-44. Upon the expiration of his term of office he declined a nomination for Congress. He was a prominent member of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and in 1823 drew up the articles of incorporation of the church of S. Mary, Manhattanville, which is built upon land donated by his father; was a vestryman or warden of the church from that time until 1889, and at the time of his death its Senior Warden. He enjoyed the distinction of representing the church in the Diocesan Convention for more than sixty years. He also served S. Thomas's Church as vestryman for a considerable period, and for many years was prominently identified with Grace Church, in the city of New York.

In early life he was much interested in the militia of the State of New York, holding the commission of Brigadier-General.

SHIPLEY

WILLIAM SHIPLEY, b. in 1693, in Leicestershire, England ; early in 1725 sailed from Bristol, England, and came to Philadelphia. He settled first at Ridley, in Delaware Co., Pa. In 1735 he purchased twelve acres of land in Willingtown, Del., and removed there with his family in the fall of the same year. A man of wealth, enterprise, and influence, and a prominent member of the Society of Friends, he exerted himself successfully in behalf of the little town in which he lived. He induced emigrants to settle there ; in 1736 built the market-house on the corner of Fourth and Market Streets, and in 1740 was one of the most active in building a vessel (the Wilmington) for foreign trade, the first which ever sailed from Willingtown, now Wilmington, September 8, 1740. At the first election for municipal officers, November 23, 1739, he was elected Chief Burgess, or Mayor, and again September 12, 1743. He m., in England, about 1717, MARY, dau. of Robert and Ann Tatnall, who d. in 1727. Issue :

After his first wife's death WILLIAM SHIPLEY m., second, in 1728, ELIZABETH, dau. of Samuel Levis, of Springfield, Pa. She was a very remarkable woman, and one of the most eminent ministers of the Society of Friends in America. The novelist, Charles Reade, has introduced her in his "Wandering Heir." Soon after her marriage she had a dream, in which she supposed herself to be traveling, on horseback, with a guide, some distance from her home, through a wild, unsettled region of country. Coming to the summit of a little hill a beautiful landscape lay before her, and the guide told her that she was to remove there with her husband, and they would become the instruments of great benefits to the place and people. Several years afterward, travelling on a religious mission to the Friends on the peninsula between the Delaware and Chesapeake Bays, she passed through the little village of Willingtown. The road crossed a hill on the west of the town, and when she reached its summit, through a vista in the woods she saw the landscape of her dream. On her return home she persuaded her husband to visit the place, and his sagacious eye noting the capabilities of the situation, decided him to remove there, and become one of the most active agents in the growth of what is now the flourishing city of Wilmington, Del.

During the fall of 1777, in the darkest days of the American Revolution, Mrs. Shipley was confined to her bed with her last illness. One evening, a few friends being by her bedside, she desired her nurse to raise her up, and addressed the company on the existing state of public affairs and the general distress of the country, expressing strong sympathy with the Revolutionary party, and ending with this prophecy: "But I have seen, in the light of the Lord, that the invader of our land shall be driven back; for the Arm that is mighty to save and able to deliver from the hand of the oppressor is stretched forth for the deliverance of this nation, which, I am firm in the faith, will secure its independence." Soon after uttering this prophecy she d.; her husband d. December 19, 1768. Issue:

He did not remove to Wilmington until 1755, when he purchased, on the Brandywine River, the mill property erected some time before by Oliver Canby, and valuable water privileges which became the source of great wealth to his family. He built the famous old Shipley mill, and in 1762 associated Joseph Tatnall with him in the business. Eight years later the latter withdrew and formed a partnership with Thomas Lea, now represented in the Centenary Association of business firms by the William Lea & Sons Company (see

In 1819 he went to England in the employ of John Welsh, of Philadelphia, father of the United States Minister to that country in 1878. While there he was offered a partnership by William Brown, of Liverpool, which he accepted, and the firm became that so well known under the name of Brown, Shipley & Company, of Liverpool and London. He continued in active business for thirty years, and was largely instrumental in the success of the firm, and in the building up of its reputation for ability and uprightness. His health failing, he withdrew from business, and in 1851 returned to his native State, and purchasing a large property in Brandywine Hundred, built a handsome mansion on it, to which he gave the name of "Rockwood." THE SNOWDEN PLANTATIONS, BETWEEN BALTIMORE AND WASHINGTON

From the Traveller's Directory, 1804

SNOWDEN, OF MARYLAND

THERE is no clear trace of this family in England or Wales, and but few notices of any bearing the name. I find only the following in the printed English State Papers: Richard Snowden, Merchant, is taken prisoner by the rebels in Ireland in July, 1529. John Snowden, who returned to England in 1591 (which he had left in 1582) was a priest, born in Worcester, a spy of Burleigh's, but would not "inform against a Catholic for religion but only for treason." "A mean fellow Dr. Robert Snowden made Bishop of Carlisle in 1616" (d. May 15, 1621). George Snowden of Ashe, Co. Kent, mentioned May 7, 1622. Thomas Snowden has a grant of an alms-room in S. Stephen's, Westminster, October 15, 1631. Luke Snowden, aged twenty-one years, having a certificate from the Minister of Gravesend, embarked in the Primrose for Virginia, July 27, 1635.¹ Rutland Snoden, Justice of the Peace, Co. Lincoln, June 30, 1686. Ditto, a delinquent, April 22, 1648 (see Seventh Report Historical MSS. Commission).

In the middle of the eighteenth century there was a Quaker family of the name at Gisborough, in Yorkshire, of whom John Snowden signs a testimonial of the meeting, March 28, 1754, and Mary Snowden d. in sixth month, 1745, in the fifty-seventh year of her age. George Snowden was a banker of Stockton-on-Tees, Durhamshire, in 1800.

Henry Snowden, of Talbot Co., Md., in his will¹ dated March 7, 1698-99, proved June 20, 1699, mentions his "Wife Elenor, sons William and Henry, daughters Rachel and Henrietta, Maria and child his wife was now pregnant with."

RICHARD SNOWDEN, of Wales, said to have held a major's commission under Oliver Cromwell, came to Maryland in the seventeenth century. His son, RICHARD SNOWDEN, Sr., is mentioned as a well-known owner of land near South River, Md., in a deed dated October 13, 1679. At Treadhaven, West River, meeting, October 8, 1684, the Friends appointed to visit him report "that he disownes friends' practices, and that he denyes friends before they deny him, and abuses several friends and said yt he had not lately been at a meeting at John Lynam's and that John Lynam² and his company were honest people and that they lived in the fear of God & friends had done them honest people wrong." August 1, 1686, a tract of land containing 10,500 acres was patented to him. October 13, 1688, William Parker deeded him certain land for £306. April 12, 1704, he presented to the West River meeting a paper of condemnation "of the spirit that led him to accept the office of Captain."³ May 20, 1711, he was buried, leaving a son, RICHARD, Jr., of whom presently.

RICHARD SNOWDEN, Jr., was one of the Quakers who sympathised with the rebel, Richard Clarke, for November 5, 1707, he brought to Herring Creek quarterly meeting a paper on his giving the government occasion against him on that account. He m., before 1690, MARY —, and both were living December 19, 1717, when they signed their son's certificate of marriage.

This son, RICHARD SNOWDEN, "the youngest," as he is called in his marriage certificate, was b. about 1690, and early in life began to take an active interest in affairs. His father probably was the builder of Birmingham Manor-house in 1690, destroyed by fire August 20, 1891; but the son added very largely to the lands of the Manor, ten thousand acres and over being patented to him in 1719, and at his death it included the plantations now known as Birmingham, Snowden Hall, Fairland, Montpelier, Oakland, Snow Hill, Avondale, Woodland Hill, Alnwick, Elmwood, Brightwood, and Maple Grove, and part, if not all, of the town of Laurel. Before 1736 he engaged in the manufacture of iron, September 29th of that year land being patented to the "Patuxent Iron Work Company," in which were partners "Richard Snowden, owning 11-16, Edmund Jennings, of Annapolis, owning 2-16, and John Galloway and Joseph Cowman, of Annarrundel, and John Pritchard, mariner, then of London, each owning 1-16."

This business Richard Snowden continued until his death, at which time it appears by his will¹ he was sole owner of the works, and was engaged in building a new forge. These iron works were among the first ever operated in Maryland. It has been noted that "Birmingham Manor-house was preserved through all the generations owning it without modernizing or destroying its antique elegance. The site was commanding. The grounds were extensive and the approaches impressive. The house was built in the old English style of bricks to the second story, where shingles formed side-walls with a leaning toward the roof. There were recessed windows to the second story. There was a porch in front, through which the massive front door was reached, and the door opened into a quaint hall. There were large old-fashioned fireplaces in the rooms and in the hall, and the house was a most interesting souvenir of colonial days. The house had near it a terrace and a quaint old garden, edged with immense borders of box, and a family burial-ground is on the place."

He lived at "Montpelier," which was on the great Northern and Southern Post-road, and entertained great numbers of people who were then continually passing upon it, and, in accordance with the hospitable customs of the day, would not hesitate to stop at his residence for the night. CHARLES ALEXANDER, eldest son of Azel and Sarah (Griffith)-Warfield, b. December 14, 1751, at Bushy Park, in the upper part of Anne Arundel (now Howard) Co., where he resided until his death.

He was graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, and was one of the founders of the Medical School of the University of Maryland. He had a very large practice, extending over several of the counties. In early life he was a prominent member of the Whig Club, and on hearing of the arrival of the Peggy Stewart, at Annapolis, loaded with tea, went with the Club to that town, determined to destroy the vessel and its cargo. Samuel Chase, the signer of the Constitution, who had been employed by Mr. Anthony Stewart, the owner of the vessel, as his lawyer, met them opposite the State House, and attempted to divert them from their purpose. Finding that his speech was having some effect upon the mob, Dr. Warfield interrupted him, pronouncing it submission and cowardice in the Club to hesitate, and called on them to follow him to the vessel. It is said that Mr. Stewart was compelled to kindle the torch which Dr. Warfield carried, and to set fire to his vessel by threats of hanging him if he refused. This act had an extensive influence in deciding the course Maryland took in the Revolution.

Some one suggested the President (Tyler). Cries of "No! no!" showed his unpopularity; and the Professor, smiling, repeated, "Well, then, gentlemen, who shall it be?" A gentleman said, "Mrs. Dolly Madison, President Madison's widow." This met the approval of all present, and Mrs. Madison was sent for. But covering a thousand years they can be given for England with an accuracy unparalleled elsewhere.

As more than one bishop took part in each consecration (three at least being required by the canons), I have selected those of special distinction where it was possible to continue the line through them, in a few cases slightly increasing its length in doing this. To illustrate: From Bishop Clark to the English and Scottish consecrators thirty-nine bishops have taken part, but I have taken the shortest possible line.

THE NAME "THOMAS"

Thomas, from the Hebrew, meaning "twin," has its historic beginning with the doubting Apostle, but does not seem to have been a popular name until a late date. The saint having a place in the calendar, those born on his day (December 21) were at times no doubt given the name, but only after it had received additional lustre from its mediæval bearers, Thomas à Becket, Thomas Aquinas, and Thomas à Kempis, do we find it at all common. In England at least, from the strange delusion that Becket in his self-willed quarrel with the king, fought their battle and fell a martyr to their cause when murdered at his own high altar in Canterbury, the people gave him special reverence, and his shrine was the most frequently visited of all, his name the most popular. Illustrations of this may be seen in the family of the premier duke of England, which has seldom lacked a Thomas Howard ; or the Thomas Butlers of Ormonde in Ireland, said to descend from a sister of Becket. How early the name became popular we see in the fact that Tom was its recognized diminutive when "Piers Plowman" talks of Tomme Trewe-tonge as a proverbial personage ; also in the large stock of words it has contributed to the language, such as "tom-cat," "tom-boy," etc., which seem to show a certain idea of manliness and virile strength, a masculine character at least, as associated with the name. "Tomfoolery" is a later derivative, "Jack-fool," or as we have it to-day in the clown, "Jack-pudding," preceding and still retaining its vogue. The derivatives or modifications of the name in its use as a surname are very many, as Thomason, Thomson, Thompson or Tomson, Thomes, Thoms or Toms, Thompkins, Tompkins, Tomkins, and

From an old Engraving after Raphael

Tomkinson, Tomlin, Thomlins, and Tomlinson. The use of Thomas as a patronymic I believe is generally a sign of Celtic, ordinarily of Welsh descent. This probably results from the impossibility of combining the ap or ab, which signifies descent, with Thomas, as is easily done with other Welsh names, as ap Rice becomes Price, or ab Evan becomes Bevan. At the present day Thomas is one of the most common surnames; Dr. A. R. Thomas in his family history (Philadelphia, 1891), from calculations based on its occurrence in the Directories of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, and Washington, estimates that in 1888 there were 134,418 persons of the name in the United States. There will be found an entertaining article on the name in the Cornhill Magazine, vol. lxi., p. 628, to which I am indebted for some of this sketch. In Latin the name becomes Thomasius; in French, Thomas or Thomassin; in German, Thomae; in Italian Thomasis, Tomásio, Tommaseo, Tomasini, and Tomitano; and in Portuguese, Thoma or Thomé.

THOMA, JOAÕ A SANCTO, b. 1589, Portuguese Dominican; d. 1644.

THOMA, RUDOLPH, German musician, b. 1832.

THOMACELLI or TOMACELLI, Pietro of Naples, Roman Pope in 1389 as Boniface IX., was notorious for his shameless sale of benefices and dispensations, d. 1404.

THOMAE, ELIAS, b. 1628, Rector of Gymnasium, at Breslau, d. 1687.

THOMAE, JOHANNES, German mathematician, b. 1840.

THOMAE, JOHANNES, b. 1624, professor at Jena, d. 1680.

THOMAS, called Didymus, or the Twin, one of the Apostles of Christ, requiring proof of the resurrection of his Master, when that was given, made the supreme acknowledgment of his faith, calling him "My Lord and my God." (S. John xx. 28.) He is said to have carried the light of the Gospel to the Parthians, Medes, and Persians, and even, following an ancient tradition, to the Indians. One account says he was martyred in the city of Calamine and his body carried to Edessa; another that it was at Meliapur or San Thomé in India, and the Portuguese claim to have his relics at Goa. In art his emblems are the spear of his martyrdom, or a builder's square, in allusion to the legend that he was put to death by the heathen king because he used for the poor the treasure given him to build a palace, building, as he said, "A palace in heaven" for the king.

THOMAS, Patriarch of Constantinople from 607 to 610.

THOMAS, Monothelite Patriarch there in 666, d. 668.

THOMAS was Bishop of the East Angles 647-654, the second Saxon promoted under the Normans.

THOMAS, a soldier of an obscure family, became Generalissimo of the Eastern Empire under Leo the Armenian. After the emperor's assassination, in 820, he claimed to be a son of the Empress Irene, and was crowned at Antioch by the Patriarch Job. He failed in his attempt and was put to death by Michael Le Begue in 823.

THOMAS, Bishop of Breslau and author, d. 1268.

THOMAS, Bishop of Strengnas and poet, d. 1443.

THOMAS, author of a Greek dictionary printed in Rome 1510.

THOMAS, a philosopher of Ravenna, Italy. Portrait engraved 1560.

THOMAS AQUINAS, or of Aquino, called Doctor Angelicus, b. at Rocca Secca near Aquino, Italy, in 1225, one of the greatest of the schoolmen. Entered the Dominican order 1243; studied under Albertus Magnus at Cologne; lectured at Paris, Rome, Bologna, and Pisa; author of "Summa Theologiæ" and other works. Printed first complete in 17 volumes folio, Rome, 1570; d. near Terracina, March 7, 1274. Canonized by Pope John XXII. July 18, 1335, and his theology practically rules in the Roman Catholic Church.

THOMAS HYBERNICUS, Latin writer between 1556-1567.

THOMAS WALDENIS, called Netter. Carmelite monk and author, b. 1367, d. 1430.

THOMAS WALLENSIS, English Dominican author, flourished 1331.

THOMAS À BECKET was son of Gilbert Portreeve of London and his wife Rohesia, whom the legend makes a Saracen. The surname Atte Becket or à Becket, by the beck or stream, is derived from one by his father's house. S. Thomas's Hospital is on the site. This, like most churches of the name in England, is under the invocation of the Archbishop, not of the Apostle, and his shrine at Canterbury was the most popular place of pilgrimage in the kingdom. Chaucer's poem describing a party making the journey is familiar to all students of our literature. Thomas, b. 1118, entered the household of Theobald, Archbishop of Canterbury, 1142, and was much favored by him. Took deacon's orders; was Archdeacon of Canterbury 1154; appointed Chancellor 1155; lived magnificently, and discharged vigorously the duties of his office. In the war with Toulouse, 1159, he fought as a knight and seemed to regard himself as a layman and the king's friend. June, 1162, he became Archbishop of Canterbury with the full approval of the king, who expected him to sympathize and aid in his statesmanlike plans for England. Instead he became an ecclesiastic pure and simple, an unflinching and unreasoning supporter of all clerical claims, right or wrong. In the quarrel with the king his object is to put him in the wrong and craftily to embroil him with his many enemies; his conduct is in the last degree exasperating. There is no earnest striving for peace and very little care of the flock over which he was overseer. By some strange misconception he was regarded by the people as their champion against the nobility and a martyr to their cause when, December 29, 1170, the three knights murdered him at the altar of S. Benedict in the north transept of Canterbury Cathedral. Two years after his death he was canonized. King Richard I. instituted an order of Knights of S. Thomas after taking the city of Acre, probably as a branch of the Hospitalers. The garment was white; ensign, a red cross charged with a white escallop shell.

She made her will as his widow, with a du., Elizabeth, wife of Richard Thomas; proved June 1, 1714. Authority: Their wills.

THOMAS, GEORGE, went to India in a man-of-war in 1781-1782 and served various chiefs in southern India, and by 1787 had found his way into the far northwest to the Court of the Begum Samru at Sardhana, whose service he entered. This he quitted in 1792 for that of Apa Khanda Rao, a Maratha chief, with whom he quarrelled in 1795. He was now a personage of importance in possession of a jagir granted by his late chief, and was able to help Begum Samru when in distress. Upon Apa Khanda Rao's suicide, in 1797, Thomas seems to have been on uniformly bad terms with his successors, and spent most of his time in defending his jagir from their attacks. In 1798, taking advantage of the troubles of the times, he appears to have given up the lands he held from the Marathas and to have seized the district round Hisar and Hansi, known as Hariana. The latter town he made his capital and established himself as Rajah thereof. His territory comprised two hundred and fifty-three villages, and paid a revenue of about Rs. 300,000. Again, according to his biographer, quoting his own words, "Here," says Mr. Thomas (with that energy and spirited animation which distinguished him throughout the scenes of his extraordinary life), "I established a mint and coined my own rupees, which I made current in my army and country," &c. After establishing himself at Hansi, the rest of Thomas's life, like that of the neighboring chiefs, was one of perpetual war, in his case against the Marathas and the Sikhs, as represented chiefly by the chiefs of Patiala, Nabha, and Jind. In his case, also, it ended in a general combination against him, his flight into British territory, and his death at Berhampore in 1802. He built a fort due east of, and not far from, Delhi, which he named after himself—Georgegarh—but which is now known as Jahazgarh, just as he is known as Jahaz (ship) Sahib, apparently in recollection of his origin.

In December, with troops that he had had to reorganize, he won the battle of Nashville, destroying the last considerable Confederate Army of the Southwest. For this he received the thanks of Congress and was appointed Major-General in the regular army. After the war he commanded the military division of the Pacific, and d. at San Francisco, March 28, 1870. He was of a nature kindly, gentle, and singularly modest, of unswerving loyalty and sterling integrity, a soldier trained in nearly every arm of the service, he won and held the confidence of all who served under him. One of the noblest characters and best generals of the Civil War. See his life by Van Horne, New York, 1882.

APPENDIX X

COLONIAL THOMAS GRANTS IN VIRGINIA

BY ROBERT A. BROCK

The following describes the mode of acquiring lands in Virginia from the settlement of the Colony until 1776 :

The first adventurers who came to Virginia as colonists were, with the exception of a favored few blessed by birth or family influence, practically for a season the servants of the London Company. They were brought hither at the expense of the company, supported by its means, subject to martial law, and bound by contract to obey all of its orders for the term of five years ; at the expiration of which they were "set free," becoming entitled to one hundred acres of land, termed a dividend, or, as it was usually spelled, "the dividend" of the planter. This was required to be seeded and planted—by the clearing of a small portion of its area, the planting of a few fruit trees, and the building of a house upon it within the period of three years from the date of the grant, when the first dividend was augmented by the granting of one hundred acres more. But if the first allotted dividend was not planted and seeded within the three years the land was said to be "diverted," or lapsed, reverted to the grantor and became subject to reappropriation. The lands of orphans, however, were specially exempted from forfeiture for diversion until three years after their full age.

This was the earliest mode of acquiring lands in Virginia, and such grants are confined to the "old planters," or those who were in the country "at the last coming of Sir Thomas Gates," that in August, 1611.

By one of the ordinances adopted by the Virginia Company, which was continued in force by the Crown, after the revocation of the charter, every person removing to Virginia at his own expense with the intention to settle and remain there was entitled to fifty acres of land. The same rule extended also to every member of his family ; and a husband was entitled to the same number of acres for his wife and children.

All of these rights were called "head-rights," and were assignable. If one returned to England and came again to the colony, it appears from the grants that each coming to the colony was allowed as a head-right. The names of the head-rights are not always given in the grant or appended to it. In some instances the statement is made that settlement has been made with the Auditor or Receiver-General by payment. All of the books of the patents are not the original books. Some of them are copies, in which, although the statement is made that the patent is in consideration of the transporting of persons to the colony, the names of such transports are omitted.

The mode of taking up lands was this : the individual entitled to any dividend or head right made affidavit to such fact, appending a list of the names of those to whom the rights claimed originally attached, who were described as "transports." This affidavit was ordinarily submitted to the court of the county in which the applicant was resident, by which it was forwarded to the officer of the Secretary of the Colony, was there examined and verified, and if found regular was recorded ; a certificate or warrant was then given to the claimant for the guidance of the surveyor. The survey being made, a copy was returned to the Secretary's office, together with the warrant whereon it had been made. If no objection was urged, a patent was made out in conformity with the survey and warrant, signed by the Governor and recorded in the office of the Secretary. A patent so obtained gave to the grantee a fee simple estate in the land conveyed, upon condition of paying an annual "quit rent" of one shilling for every fifty acres, and of planting and seeding thereon within three years from the date of the grant.

Lands were allotted and laid off from a known base of a water-course, in strips or parallelograms, running back, the back lines of the same furnishing in turn a basis for succeeding grants.

Lands were granted later in consideration of the payment of ten shillings per hundred acres and sometimes partly for such consideration and partly for the transportation of persons to the colony, the quit-rent being also required.

The immense tract of the Northern Neck, comprising quite half of the territory of the colony, was granted by Charles II., regardless of any rights or privileges of the colonists, in the twenty-first year of his reign, to Lord Hopton and others, and became by purchase the sole right of Lord Thomas Culpeper, to whom it was repatented. It comprehended the counties of Lancaster, Northumberland, Richmond, Westmoreland, Stafford, King George, Prince William, Fairfax, Loudoun, Fauquier, Culpeper, Madison, Page, Shenandoah, Hardy, Hampshire, Morgan, Berkeley, Jefferson, and Frederick.

Catherine, the daughter of Lord Culpeper, married Thomas, Lord Fairfax, to whom she brought as dower the Northern Neck. Their son, Thomas Fairfax, Sixth Lord, and Baron Cameron, in consequence of continued territorial disputes, petitioned the King in 1733 to order a commission to ascertain the bounds of his patent. Commissioners were appointed severally in behalf of the Crown and Lord Fairfax. These were respectively Wm. Byrd, John Robinson, and John Grymes; and Wm. Beverley, Wm. Fairfax, and Charles Carter.

They made their report December 14, 1736, to the Council for plantation affairs, which body, on the 6th April, 1745, confirmed the report, which was in turn confirmed by the King, who ordered the appointment of Commissioners to run and mark the dividing line. This was done in 1746. The conflicting rights of the Northern Neck patent with those claimed by Jost Hite and others, have been the cause of innumerable lawsuits, which crowded the records of the State courts to a period advanced into the nineteenth century. There was an attempt made by Maryland, in 1832, to extend her boundary line by an infraction of the line of the Northern Neck established in 1746.

An office was established in Virginia by the proprietors for the granting of lands in 1690. Their agents were successively Philip Ludwell, George Brent, Edmund Jennings, Robert Carter, and Thomas Lee. The proprietor, Thomas, Sixth Lord Fairfax, coming to the colony, established his seat at "Greenway Court" in Frederick Co., where he lived in much style to a good old age. He died, unmarried, in 1782, at the age of ninety-two, from grief, it has been stated, at the surrender of Cornwallis and the defeat of the Royal Cause. His principal agents were his kinsmen Col. Wm. Fairfax, Geo. Wm. Fairfax, and Col. Thomas Bryan Martin, who had collectors and surveyors under them in the several counties. George Washington served for several years as a surveyor ere he attained his majority. The provisions under which lands were granted by the proprietor were similar to those under which grants from the crown were issued. The lands were escheated to the State in 1783, and the grants within their limits were signed thereafter by the Governor of the State.
